The news from Japan shows that the expulsion of in the general plaudits. foreigners is the cause of the recent troubles in that The Daily News says, one of the most enthsiastic country. England and France insist that the treaties meetings ever held in London, must have convinced entered into shall be respected, and the isolation of Beecher of the truth of Russell's assertion, that the Japan is no longer possible.

ARRIVAL OF THE "CANADA." CAPE RACE, Oct. 26, 1863.

The Canada for Halifax, from Liverpool, 17th, and Queenstown 18th, intercepted at 3 P. M., on Monday. Henry Ward Beecher delivered his promised lecture on America at Philharmonic Hall, Liverpool, on 16th, before a densely crowded audience. Fears entertained of a riot, Southern sympathisers having previously placarded the Town with bills calculated to influence the public against Beecher. There was a large number of Secessionists at the meeting, and did all they could to get up a row and interrupt Beecher. They were in a great minority. On the whole, Beecher's reception, from first to last, was enthusiastic. He was continually interrupted by disgraceful outcries, but he showed great calmness and tact, and could not be put down. He showed by forcible arguments, how much England was interested by the triumph of the North; asserted Slavery was the root and branch of the trouble, and maintained that the North fought for the Union, because it believed the Union would ultimately secure Emancipation. He believed that under influence of Russell's speech at Blairgowrie, and seizure of suspected rams in Mersey, the hostility of North to England would disappear. He concluded by pointing out that in view of threatening aspect of affairs throughout the world, kindred nations like England and America should not be estranged, for united they would be a match for the world. A vote of thanks to Beecher was carried with great cheering, not unmixed with hisses.

On same day address was delivered before Liverpool Southern Club by Mr. Beresford Hope, who reiterated his oft-expressed ultra views in favor of South. The Club afterwards entertained Hope at a banquet, where Southern sentiments were, of course, the order of the day. Sir Roundell Palmer, Attorney General, had been addressing his constituents at considerable length on American affairs; he showed that England could not recognize the South until her independence was fully settled; contended that England was bound to extend belligerent rights to Secessionists, and strongly demonstrated obligation for continued neutrality.

Times has editorial on that part of Palmer's speech which shows there is no doubt about the spirit and design of the laws respecting the iron-clads seized in the Mersey. Ministers have not been doubting whether if these steamers are designed for the same service as what the Alabama was they could be lawfully despatched, but whether suspected destination could be lawfully proved against them. As however intent of law is clear, few will be found to deny that difficulties in the way of such proceedings. Times says in conclusion, if this is the state of the law, it is unsatisfactory in the extreme, and if both

[Condensed from the Presbyterian.] The news is scanty and not of great interest. The President calls for 300,000 additional volunteer troops is being discussed, and it will probably be responded to, to a considerable extent. The removal of Rosecrans is confirmed. He is succeeded by Gen. Thomas. We cannot learn that there is much progress made Charleston. The Confederate Government have expelled the British consuls on the pretence that they interfered with enlistment; they were divolged. merely protecting British subjects, just as the British consuls in New York and elsewhere are called upon to do. The matter is explained in a letter addressed to Mr. Slidell, and in further correspondence, from which we make an extract or two:-Confederate States of America, Department of State, Richmond, Oct. 8, 1863. SIR-The conduct of the British consular agents in the Confederacy has compelled the President to country, and it is deemed proper to put you in posession of the causes which have produced this result, that you may have it in your power to correct any misrepresentations on the subject. To this end it is necessary to review the whole course of the British Government and that of the Confederacy in relation to these officials.

The point of the despatch in which Mr. Fullarton is notified of his dismissal, reads thus: MR. BENJAMIN TO MR. FULLERTON.

J. P. BENJAMIN, Secretary of State.

A Fullarton, Esq., Savannah, Georgia. At the banquet to the Russian officers in New York, Mr. D. D. Field indulged in statements which were not true as regards the aid given by England to the Confederates and its effects; the fact being that the Federals have got more aid from England than their opponents. The statement is otherwise most reprehensible, though it, no doubt, represents the convictions of many Americans-convictions which are being rapidly removed. The Rev. M. H. Smith, "Burleigh" of the Boston Journal, thus describes Mr. Field's address and its effects:

But David Dudley Field struck the popular heart in his allusions to the conduct of England and France in strengthening the rebellion and making it more bloody. He alluded to the future of those nations and the retribution which awaited them, and of their conduct toward us, said "these things will never be torgotten so long as Americans can read and remember. (Cheers.) And, more than this, the men of this generation, who have smarted under these wrongs, will not rest until some of them are righted. (Enthusiastic cheers.) We see the ground fresh with graves, half of which would never have been opened but for the countenance which England and France have given to the rebellion; and, whether it shall be procured from their apprehension of the consequences, or their sense of justice, reparation must yet be made or the seed which has been sown in these three years will ripen into an iron harvest of future war, of which no mun can foresee the end." This brought New York up to its feet with tremendous cheering. The Corporation Counsel, Judge Daly, Recorder

Hoffman and Gen. Walbridge made addresses. By latest papers it appears that France is determined to blockade all the ports of Mexican cities which adhere to Juarez; thus while Maximilian is by the Rev. James Steven, Mr. John Malcolm to Miss asking Europe to guarantee his proposed crown, and the Mexicans to go through the farce of electing a Harpsburg as their sovereign, Napoleon is determi-
