IMPERISHABLE.

The pure, the bright, the beautiful, That stirred our hearts in youth, The impulse to a wordless prayer, The dreams of love and truth ;

The longings after something lost, The spirit's yearning cry, The strivings after better hopes-These things can never die.

The timid hand stretched forth to aid A brother in his need, The kindly word in grief's dark hour

That proves a friend indeed,-The plea for mercy, softly breathed, When justice threatens high, The sorrow of a contrite heart-

The memory of a clasping hand. The pressure of a kiss, And all the trifles, sweet and frail, That make up love's first bliss:

If with a firm, unchanging faith,

These things shall never die.

And holy trust and high, Those hands have clasped, those lips have met, These things shall never die.

The cruel and the bitter word, That wounded as it fell; The chilling want of sympathy, We feel but never tell,

The hard repulse that chills the heart Whose hopes were bounding high, In an unfading record kept-These things shall never die.

Let nothing pass, for every hand Must find some work to do: Lose not a chance to waken love-Be firm, and just and true. So shall a light that cannot fade Beam on thee from on high, And angel voices say to thee-These things shall never die.

"Yes, sir." "How do you learn to walk ?"

"By walking."

"We learn to think by thinking." "May I ask what is thinking?"

"It is seeing the truth-seeing with the mind's eye. A thinker is a seer. A seer is one who sees. We see the truth by looking at it. Some truths are seen at once, but others only by long and patient looking. All men see some truth. Seeing ordinary, surface, commonplace truths, does not constitute one a thinker."

OUR HOMES.

What a rich blessing is a happy home. Alas! how often we forget to thank our Father in heaven for the comfort and peace we experience there. In our approaches to the throne of grace, our common, every day blessings are apt to be lost sight of; we regard them too much as things of course, and not as th kind gifts of a loving Father who delights in the hap piness of his children. Surely the quiet enjoyment of a domestic comfort demand thanksgiving. It is wise and gracious arrangement of Providence, tha the light of earthly love does so much to beautify anillume our pathway through this life of sin and trial It matters not how dark, wide and cheerless the great world about us sometimes appears, if only on hallowed spot be ours, to which the surcharged hear can confidently turn for sympathy and love. Hov surely and sweetly is grief soothed, and care robbe of half its weight, when shared by those we love Then let us prize these earthly homes; let us guar them as something sacred. We, who are wives an mothers, should pray God to grant his grace to mak them what he designs they should be-types of hea ven. Much as we love them now, let us strive to love them more: Let us ask of God strength and wisdom to enable us to exercise an elevating and re fining influence upon all who share our fireside pri vileges and joys. Could we but awaken to a deepe sense of the mighty trust reposed in us, as guiding stars in our domestic circles, then would an influenc go out from Christian homes broad as the world, an ever widening and deepening throughout the cycle of eternity .- Ch. Adv. and Journal.

LITTLE ONES SHOULD LEARN TO PRAY. I do not mean that children should learn to sa their prayers, and nothing more; though I would no say a word against those holy forms which we a learned, I trust, as soon as our infant tongues coul lisp "Our Father." These little prayers are connec ted with too many sacred memories to be laid aside

But I would have children pray their own prayers I would have them go to their dear Father above just as they would to their parents on earth, tellin; him how they love him, confessing their faults, anasking forgiveness.

I think that the sweetest prayers I ever heard wer from two little children. Ella was five years old and Jamie two; and every one who loves children knows how interesting they may be at those ages. poor widow. His clothes were well mended, but love to hear their child talk, their innocent prattle;

It is as free from smell, and as clear from grit or dirt as Lard or Sperm Oils, and from thorough practical tests made by reliable Engineers and Mechanics, on Locomotives and Steamboats, in Machine Shops and Factories, it has proved to be the only reliable Lubricating Oil that will keep bearings cool, and will not gum, It is not affected by heat or cold, which makes it the best for winter or summer use; will last GENERAL LEATHER AND FINDING STORE.—Constantly on hand, a large and well selected Stock of English, French, American, and Domestic Leather and Shoe cle in use.
