Poetry.

THE GARDEN ON THE SANDS. Once on a time, some little hands Planted a garden on the sands, And with a wish to keep it dry, They raised a wall five inches high. Within the wall, and round the walks, They made a fence of slender stalks : And then they formed an arbor cool, And dug in front a tiny pool. Their beds were oval, round and square, I hrown up and trimmed with decent care, In these they planted laurel twigs, And prickly holly little sprigs Of ash and poplar, and, for show, Bright daffodils, and heart's-ease low ; With pink edged daisies by the score, And buttercups, and many more, One rose they found with great delight, And stuck it in with all their might. This finished, then they went away, Resolved to come another day.

The sea meanwhile, with solemn roar, Approached and washed the sandy shore; But all this time he did not touch The little spot they loved so much; And many strangers passing by The garden spied with smiling eye, But no one ventured to disturb A single plant, or flower, or herb. Still, when the children came again, They found their labor all in vain: The flowers were drooping side by side; The rose, the heart's-ease all had died ; No one could make them grow or shoot. Because they had not got a root; And then the soil, it was so bad, They must have withered if they had.

Now so it is that children fall, Just like the garden in my tale; They have good wishes, pleasant looks, Are busy with their work and books; Their conduct often gives delight, And you may fancy all was right; But by-and by, with sad surprise, We see how all this goodness dies; Instead of being rich with fruit, They fade away for want of root.

Oh! pray that he who only can Renew the heart of fallen man, May plant you in His pleasant ground, Where trees of righteousness abound ; So shall you be in early youth

THE RELIGIOUS INTELLIENCER.

TWO SISTERS. I heard from a distant land, the other day, of two little girls, whose story I am sure you would like to hear. The younger of the two was called Grace. She had heard of Jesus from her earliest infancy-had often spoken of him, and thought about him, and in her own way prayed and sung to him-but it was not till she him, and became one of the lambs of his flock. It was a happy day for the little girl that on which she put her hand in that of the Friend of Children, and said to him "Be merciful to me according to thy Word ;" and He said to her, "Thou art mine," "I give unto my sheep eternal life, and they shall never perish, neither shall any pluck them out of my hand."

with her. Angelica, was two years older than Grace, but she willingly allowed herself to be led into the Good Shepherd's presence. There they knelt down together, and the younger prayed that He would not cast out her dear Angelica. The answer did not come all at once, but again, and again, the two together, and the younger prayed that He would not all at once, but again, and again, and again, the two children went on the same errand, and one day the answer did come. Angelica's heart was filled with new light and love as they knelt-for He who is Love and Light had entered it-and the two mingled their tears and their praises. Immediately they became "sisters of mercy." There were a good many children living near them who knew nothing of the Saviour, and although, as I have said, Grace was but seven, and Angelica but nine years old, they resolved to try to get some of these together every Sabbath morning, and speak to them of Jesus. Away accordingly the two went- Country, at Grace leading Angelica by the hand, for I have not yet told you that Angelica was blind-and going from door to door, they delivered their errand. They wanted the children, they said, to "come to their house, to read the Bible, and sing, and pray together." But the Lord had other things in store for one of them. Before the Sabbath had come round Grace was taken ill, and in a few days "she was not, for Chains and Traces; 190 boxes Window GLASS, 8x10, 10x12, God had taken her." It was a terrible blow to poor blind Angelica; but she joyfully left berself in the hands of Jesus, and after a little, He gave her "beauty for ashes, the oil of joy for mourning, and the garment and other STEEL. of praise for the spirit of heaviness."

Then, blind although she was, she felt as if the more bound by her sister's death to the work on which they had hoped to enter together. Taking the hand of a still younger sister, she went round the houses again, with the same invitation. Next Sabbath-day her scholars little ones gathered round her, telling them of Jesus,

Do you bear the family likeness in and became friends; for little children have none of the same way? that mean pride which we sometimes see among older people, till they are taught it.

One day, when Sallie was dressed very neatly, she asked leave to take a walk, and bent her steps towards the mansion on the hill. She did not know to go a- been godly. But in all cases let the young reround the road, so she climbed over fence and wall till she reached the grounds. There, to her delight, women. "Have you berries to sell, little girl ?" Sallie laughed, and said, "No, I'm Sallie ; don't you remember me? I came to play with you a little while. May that man open the iron gate for me? It is very day, it is a peculiarly pleasant sight to see them surheavy."

"I should like to play with you, and to let you ride on my pony," replied pleasant Lucy, "but I know mamma would not allow me to play with you." "Why not" asked Sallie, in wonder. "I never say naughty words, and I'm all dressed clean this afternoon.'

"O," said Lucy, ""it is because your father works with his shirt sleeves rolled up and has a smutty face and hands."

"Oh, the smut washes off !" replied the innocent child. "He is always clean in the evenings; and when he has his Sunday clothes on, he is the handsomest man in the world? Mother is pretty all the time."

"O, but-mamma would not let you in, I know, because your father shoes the horses," added Lucy.

"That is no harm, is it? Don't your father want his horses shoed ?" asked the wondering Sallie.

"We're not poor; we're very rich, replied Sallie. Father owns the house and shop; and we've got a cow and a calf, and twenty chickens, and the darlingest baby boy in the world !"

But after all this argument, little Lucy shook her head sadly and said, " I would not dare to ask you in ; but I will give you some flowers."

At the Annual Meeting held in August 1859, the following highly satisfactory results were shown :---

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

The most gratifying proof of the expansion of the busi-ness is exhibited in the one following fact—that the increase alone of the last three years exceeds the entire business of some of the existing and of many of the recently defunct fire insurance companies of this kingdom.

The Premiums for the year 1855 being ..... £130,060 While the Premiums for the year 1558 are .... 196,148 Showing an actual increase of ...... 66,088 or upwards of 50 per cent. in three years.

The recent returns of duty made by Government for this latter year (1858) again show the "Royal" as more than maintaining the ratio of its increase as stated in former years. Only one among the London insurance offices exhibits an advance to the extent of one-half the increase of the Company, while all the others respectively fall far short of the moiety of its advance. LIFE DEPARTMENT.

fhe amount of new Life Premiums received this year is by far the largest received in any similar period since the commencement of the business, and must far exceed the average of amount received by the most successful offices in the kingdom. The number of policies issued in the year was 832, the sum assured £387,752 6s. 8d., and the premium £12,854 3s. 4d. These figures show a very rapid extension of business during the last ten years. Thus :--

.. 98 ****************** .. 190 95,650 9 11 .. 422 . 181,504 10 6 .. 408 161,848 13 4 4,694 16 0 .. 703 297,560 16 8 8,850 3 11 882 887,752 6 8 12,354 8 4 The remarkable increase in the business of the last four ears is mainly consequent upon the large bonus declared in 1855, which amounted to no less than 22 per cent. per annum on the sums assured, and averaged 80 per cent. upon the premiums paid.
