THE GRAVE OF THE YEAR.

Be composed every toll and each turbulent motion, That enforces the heart in life's treacherous snare,
And the hour that invites to the calm of devotion, Undisturbed by regrets, unnumbered by cares.

How cheerless the late blooming face of creation, Weary time seems to pause in his rapid career,
And fatigued with the work of his own desolation, Looks behind with a smile on the grave of the year.

Hark! the wind whistles rudely, the shadows are closing,
That enwrap his broad path in the mantle of night;
While pleasure's gay sons are in quiet repose, Undismayed by the wrecks that have numbered his flight.

From yon temple, where fashion's bright tapers are lighted,
Her votaries in crowds, decked with garlands, appear,
And as yet their warm hopes by no spectre appear, Assembled to dance around the grave of the year.

O! I hate the stale cup which the idlers have tasted, When I think of the life of the lifeless, and gay, How the flowers of my childhood their verdure have wasted,
And the hopes of my youth have been stolen away.

They think not how fruitless the warmest endeavor, To recall the kind moments neglected when near—
When the hours that oblivion has cancelled for ever, Are interred by her hand in the grave of the year.

Since the last solemn reign of this day of reflection, What throngs have relinquished life's perishing breath!

How many have shed their last tear of dejection, And closed the dim eye in the darkness of death!
How many have suddenly their pilgrimage ended, Beneath the low pall that envelops the bier, Or to death's lone valley have gently descended,
And made their cold beds with the grave of the year.

'Tis the year that so late its new beauties disclosing, Roses bright on the happy, the careless, and gay, Who now on their pillows of dust are reposing,
When the soil presses down on their bosoms of clay.

Then talk not of bliss while her smile is expiring, Disappointment still dwells in misery's tear; Reluctant and woe, for the day is retiring,
And to-morrow will dawn on the grave of the year.

Yet awhile, and no seasons around us will flourish, But darkness for each ear-drum mission prepare,
When beauty no longer her roses shall nourish, Nor the lips that spread this wan cheek of despair.

But the eyes shall with lustre unending be brightened, When it wakes to true bliss in yon orient sphere,
With sunbeams of splendor lighted unlighted, Which no more shall go down on the grave of the year.

SCRIPTURE WORDS OF COUNSEL.

FOR YOUNG MEN AND WOMEN.—It is God's word that strikes deepest, whether for counsel, or comfort, or warning. It is "quick and powerful, sharper than a two-edged sword." Let us take it up and try its edge. Young men and women, listen; "he that hath an ear, let him hear."

I. Young Women.—They are to be modest, gentle, simple, chaste; not vain or light either in word or deed; not given to levity, and foolishness, and companioning, either among themselves or with those of the other sex. Their conversation is to be as becometh holiness; and in their deportment, their looks, their dress, their manner, they are to be pure, so that they may be well reported of for good words. Of the virtuous woman Solomon could say, "Many daughters have done virtuously, but thou exceedest them all. Favour is deceitful, and beauty is vain; but a woman that feareth the Lord, she shall be praised. Give her of the fruit of her hands; and let her own works praise her in the gates" (Prov. xxxi.
23-31). Read God's message to the daughters of Zion (Isa. lvi. 1-26), and His counsel to the female members of the Church (1 Tim. ii. 9-10). Young women! live as followers of the Lord. Be sober, be circumspect, be watchful against Satan. Flow youth full lips. Beware of sin in every shape, and shut him temptation to it. Avoid foolish talking and jesting; leave the company of the profane, and licentious, and immoderate. If you have begun to follow Christ, follow Him fully and faithfully. Take heed to your steps, lest you should go astray or backslide, and so bring discredit on Christ's name and the Gospel. If you have not begun to follow Him, begin now. Go to Him this very hour, and receive salvation at His hands.

II. Young Men.—You are now in the prime of your manhood. The world tempts you; Satan tempts you; riches tempt you; business tempts you, lust tempts you; pleasure tempts you. You think yourselves entitled to enjoy the vanities and gaieties that surround you; to plunge into sin for a little, or, at least, to go round the earth in harmless amusements.
But beware! You have a soul to save; a pardon to obtain; a hell to escape from; a heaven to win; and are those trifles that can be postponed? What will it profit you to gain the whole world, if you lose your soul? Oh, seek first the kingdom. Lay up treasure in heaven. Hear Christ's message, "I counsel thee to buy of Me gold tried in fire." Be aware of pleasure, and flee youthful lusts. Beware of evil company. Keep yourselves pure, in word and deed. Reclaim the time; gather up thy fragments. Don't keep late and irregular hours at night; and turn away from all ungodly companionships.
Abhor blasphemy, all swearing, and lying, and evil speaking, and passionate words. Be honest in all you do; in the shop or out of it; under your master's eye or away from it; in doing business either for yourself or others. Shun everything that wears the remotest aspect of cheating, or meanness or unfairness. Be upright; be generous; be sincere; be frank; as ever under the eye of God. Don't be in haste to grow rich. Leave that to God; and remember that the love of money is the root of all evil.
Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world. Set your affections on things above. Live for eternity; and begin this hour, if you have not begun before. The world's eye is on you. Be Christians always, wherever you are. Never let the ungodly say, There goes one of your playing hypocrites; he can cheat and lie like any other body. There goes one of your church-going sinners; he likes money! Be circumspect, be holy, be an out-and-out follower of the Lamb.

TOBACCO EXPERIENCE.

Mary Allerton, in the November number of the Tract Journal, gives the following experience of an old lady in relation to smoking:

Almost a century ago, she, a girl of eight years, was one of a party of neighbors, who, leaving their native village in Massachusetts, sought new homes in the New Hampshire forest. The journey was a tedious one, and the little traveller, though greatly enjoying her unworldly elevation in the saddle, was weary enough when, at night, the party encamped on the banks of the calm, self-possessed Merrimack, basked in "the smile of the Great Spirit," or rested beneath the rocks of the "hill country," to need, in her fellow-travellers' opinion, a whiff of the pipe, which always preceded the social prayer meeting and reading.

The little colony, once settled, soon had a church, of course, and ere many years our friend, now a young matron, was one of the active members thereof. Her husband was early received to the same body, as were several of her sons, as they attained to years of discretion.

After the lapse of many years, the family removed to another town, where the voice of the living preacher was never heard, except as an itinerant passed that way. Often the father read a sermon, selected from his scanty library, to his own large family and a few seriously disposed neighbors. At last, this "gude-man" dying, full of years and of grace, was succeeded on the farm by a son, whose privilege it was to minister to his mother, now nearly eighty years old. Then the old lady felt free to yield to the solicitations of a son, who had come with his own easy carriage, loaded to take her to the distant city, where he had become eminent in his profession. She feared that her ignorance of etiquette would be the cause of mortification to her son and his cultivated wife, but her womanly tact and thorough appreciation of St. Paul's code of politeness, recorded Phil.
iv. 8, preserved her from awkward blunders, and no stranger would have imagined that the respected and respectable old lady had not for seventy years been outside the limits of her own sparsely settled county.

Her comfortable pipe, which she had been accustomed ever since her first journey, now became a serious source of annoyance to her. Though welcome to smile in any room of her son's handsome house, she always retreated for that purpose to an unoccupied room, and even then she feared lest the fumes should penetrate to the family apartments.

Had she not felt that not only her comfort but her life would be endangered by breaking off, she would have relinquished this habit, though, a comfort, she knew to be useless, foolish, and inconvenient.

After she returned to her own farm-house, where she could peacefully smoke in her accustomed corner, she still was not quite at ease. Finally, one day, the folly and sin of the self-indulgence came before her so forcibly, that she took her pipe from her mouth and placed it on the mantel-piece, and never again did her lips touch the accursed thing, though she lived nearly twenty years, more of the time cut off from ordinary sources of enjoyment.

The son, at whose house the moral struggle was commenced, knew nothing of it till on a visit to her, long after, he noticed that she did not smoke. In reply to his inquiries she told him of her decision. "But mother," urged the son, "do you not greatly miss your pipe?"

"Yes," said the aged heroine, "I do feel faint-like and low-spirited when my smoking time comes, but then I open my Bible and read a chapter, and the bad feeling goes away."

THE LITTLE GIRL.—A man called at a shop in a town in England, to purchase some articles which he wanted, and observing a bill lying on the counter relative to a meeting of the Bible Society, he began to ridicule that blessed book which was the object of the Society to circulate.
A little girl, the daughter of the shopkeeper, being present, was much grieved at his wicked conduct, and asked him, "Sir, did you ever read the Bible?" He was a little confused at this question, but at last replied, "I cannot say I have." "I thought so," she replied; "for if you had with serious attention, you would not have treated it with so much contempt." The man having obtained what he came to purchase, went away.

Not long afterwards, the little girl was taken ill and died; but during her illness her father was one day sitting by her bedside, she said, "Father, I wish to ask you a large gift." The father, who was affectionately answered, "What is it, dear?" "I wish that I can give you, or do for you, I am willing to do immediately." "I wish you," said the dying child, "to give me eleven shillings." "Eleven shillings?" said her father. "What can you want, in your circumstances, with eleven shillings?" The child without mentioning her reason, still continued her request to have the money, till at last her father gave it to her.

"Now," said she, having the money in her hand, "I wish that with these eleven shillings one of the best Bibles may be bought, and when I am dead, let it be conveyed to the man I saw in the shop, who declared the contents of the book to be false. Let him be informed it is my legacy, and it is the earnest wish of a dying child that he would read it with solemn and serious attention."

Very shortly after her death, her request was complied with; the book was purchased, and given to the man, with the dying injunction of the little girl.
He was much struck when he heard it, and though he did not love the book, yet he determined to read it for her sake. It pleased God to change his heart in the reading of it. He became a Christian, and afterwards purchased two books of the same kind, and gave one to each of his two companions, who had begun from his former evil example to become haters of that which is good.—S. S. Bonner.

CALL THEM IN.
A little girl, once a wild Arab, born of most wicked parents, but brought to Christ, as Jesus lay dying said; "Fetch them in, and tell them of Jesus—tell them of Jesus!"

"Call them in," the poor, the wretched, Sin-stained wanderers from the fold;
Peace and pardon freely offer, Can you weigh their worth with gold?

"Call them in," the weak, the weary, Laden with the doom of sin;
Bid them come, and rest with Jesus, He is waiting—"call them in."

"Call them in," the Jew, the Gentile, Bid the stranger to the feast;
"Call them in," the rich and noble, From the highest to the least.

Forth the Father runs to meet them;
He hath all their sorrows seen;
Robe and ring, and royal sandals, Wait the lost ones—"call them in."

"Call them in," the broken hearted, Covering "neath the mantle of shame; Speak low the message, low and tender—
"Twas for sinners Jesus came."

"Call them in," the little children; Tarrying far away, . . . away;
Wait—O wait not for to-morrow; Christ would have them come to-day!

"Call them in," the Master waiteth; Save them from the anathema of hell; Rest ye "neath the blood stained towel;
Of the grace that seeks them, tell.

Hark! on the crowded highway,
And amid the city's din, Sounds a child's voice, sweet and solemn—
"O BE SURE AND CALL THEM IN!"
