Thick darkness shrouded Horeb's brow, Fierce lightnings played around, While deafening thunders o'er it rolled. And fearful shook the ground. Affrighted Israel veiled their heads, And bent in trembling awe; Or sought within their tents to fly

But he, their dauntless leader, who With fearless eye, had stood Before the great Egyptian King, And braved his wrathful mood; Who strong in faith, had seen the sea At his command divide. And at his touch the flinty rock Pour forth the cooling tide,-

The terrors of God's law.

Though e'en he trembled* as he gazed Upon that fearful scene, His faith still saw behind the gloom, Jehovah sit serene : And at his bidding calm he drew To the thick darkness near, And waited 'mid the thunder peals.

The still small voice to hear.

O favored friend of God, amid That darkness thick and dread. What visions met his wondering eye! What glories round him spread! There face to face he talked with God, As friend with friend alone. While on his brow a glorious light

From heaven's own radiance shone.

O Christian! does the storm-cloud brood In terror o'er thy path, And seem its bolts and lightning strokes, But tokens of God's wrath? Seest thou no light amid the gloom? Dost no faint star appear? And round thee deep and deeper folds The darkness thick and drear?

Yet faint not, stricken one, nor seek A father's frowns to fly, But to the deep and awful gloom With filial trust draw nigh. A father still, behind the cloud He veils his heart of love, And waits with yearning tenderness Thy confidence to prove.

Draw near -- and like the prophet, thou Within the cloud mayst see Such glories as through brighter skies, Had never shone on thee. Such tokens of a Father's love .

Thy fainting heart may cheer. Thou fain wouldst in the darkness hide That brings thy God so near. - Congregationalist.

Here Henry's face was almost as red as the rose that bloomed on the bush at his clow, and the face of his sister was in much the same condition, while Mr. Seymour laughed heartily at them both, and told them that they had been fairly caught in the trap; that for his part he doubted not that the paper would turn out to be an instructive paper, and the man who had thrown it from the coach to be a wise

"The writer of that paper," said Mr. Seymour, " knew something about the heart of young people; he knew that when once he had got curious young persons to begin his paper, that they would never be satisfied till they had read to the end.

"Come, finish the paper, Henry," said he; "for, to tell you the truth, I feel a little curious about it myself." This last remark made Henry and his sister feel more comfortable; and Henry, in a tone a little louder than before, thus continued reading the paper. "Well, I may now venture to alter my tone, and instead of keeping to my first title, adopt another, which is,

'YOU MAY READ IT AS OFTEN AS YOU LIKE;' for, as everything in the paper is intended to do you good, the oftener you read it perhaps the better. There are three questions which the oldest man and the youngest child should frequently ask. Now I want you to ask them. I could put these questions to you, but that would not be like your putting them

"The questions are, What am I? Where am I? and, Whener am I going? . If you ask and answer these questions faithfully every day of your lives, you will derive great advantage. I will now put these questions to myself, and you will see by my answers to them that they are very important.

THE ROYAL INSURANCE COMPANY 92, Chairman of the London Board.—Samuel Baker, Esq. Chairman in Liverpool.—Charles Turner, Esq. The Royal Insurance Company is one of the largest flices in the kingdom.

At the Annual Meeting held in August 1859, the following aighly satisfactory results were shown:-FIRE DEPARTMENT. The most gratifying proof of the expansion of the business is exhibited in the one following fact—that the increase alone of the last three years exceeds the entire business of some of the existing and of many of the recently defunct re insurance companies of this kingdom.

The recent returns of duty made by Government for this latter year (1858) again show the "Royal" as more than maintaining the ratio of its increase as stated in former years. Only one among the London insurance offices exhibits an

The amount of new Life Premiums received this year is by far the largest received in any similar period since the commencement of the business, and must far ex eed the average of amount received by the most successful offices in the kingdom. The number of policies issued in the year was 832, the sum assured £387,752 6s. 8d., and the premium £12,354 3s. 4d. These figures show a very rapid extension of business during the last ten years.
