The breath is hushed, the little heart ceases to beat, -O mother, it was the Angel of Death that. stood at thy side, and yet he was a messenger of mercy! Behold, the thin veil which hides the spiritworld from her eyes is drawn aside-she sees the ransomed host-she sees the Lamb!-and her boy is And few shall know we ever lived, a hundred years clasped in the Saviour's arms! O what love beams in Jesus's face as He looks at him and whispers, "Little Rosebud, I love thee, and therefore I have transplanted thee in my garden, where no sin enters to wither my bright flowers. Fair thou art, but thou wouldst never have weathered the storm, for amidst those bright rosy leaves a worm was hidden, and its name is selfishness. The very idolatrous love of thy mother would but have assisted to ruin thy soul, but I love thy soul, I died for it! And, little Rosebud, small as thou seemest to be, yet thou didst hide My Why should we toil so earnestly in life's short, nar- face from thy mother's eyes. She never looked beyond thee, never looked up to that Friend who On golden stairs to climb so high above our brother sticketh closer than a brother, and who gave His life for her too. But where the treasure is, there the heart will be. Living thou wouldst but have broken her heart-dying, thou wilt save her soul!" And Our gods will rust, ourselves be dust, a hundred her boy smiled as only angels can smile as he looked up in that love-beaming face, and bright spirits hovered around him, and called him brother and co-heir of glory. Once more he looked backwards; he looked down to where his mother knelt in unutterable despair at the side of what was once himself; and he heaved the last sigh he ever would heave, dropped the last tear his eyes would shed, and whispered, "Mother, my mother, He knoweth better what is good for his children; 'My ways are not thy ways,'

The mother awoke and looked at her child. The roses had faded away, the solemn stillness of death The starry wilderness of of worlds that gem night's had settled on the marble brow-her child was gone! But that same celestial smile which she had seen in Will light the skies for other eyes a hundred years her dream was now beaming in that pale white face, and the thought of what might have been, had he been spared to see manhood, and of what he was now, filled her heart with meek and humble gratitude in the midst of all her bereavement. No rebellious An open page, like babes we cling to thy protecting thought now rose in her heart, and, bending over the little boy, she said with a trembling voice, "O Lord, Change, sorrow, death, are naught to us if we may I thank Thee; rather-a thousand times ratherlose him here on earth and give him back to Thee, than have his soul lost. Thy ways are not our ways, -Thy will be done!"

Years rolled by-the flowers blossomed sweetly on that little grave, other children sprung up around her, but she never forgot her first-born. Side by side, in her daily walks and conversation, walked the bright vision of her smiling angel boy. She never thought of her Saviour but with her child pillowed Over the death-bed of her first born a mother was on His loving breast; she never thought of her child, bending with an aching heart and eyes, to which but leaning against His heart; and thus earthly and even the relief of a tear was sternly refused. Chairman of the London Board .- SAMUEL BAKER, Esq. Chairman in Liverpool .- CHARLES TURNER, Esq. The Royal Insurance Company is one of the largest ffices in the kingdom. At the Annual Meeting held in August 1859, the following highly satisfactory results were shown: FIRE DEPARTMENT.

The most gratifying proof of the expansion of the business is exhibited in the one following fact-that the increase alone of the last three years exceeds the entire business of some of the existing and of many of the recently defunct ire insurance companies of this kingdom. The Premiums for the year 1855 being......£130,060 While the Premiums for the year 1558 are 196,148 Showing an actual increase of. or upwards of 50 per cent. in three years.

atter year (1858) again show the "Royal" as more than all the requisites for Feeding Infants naintaining the ratio of its increase as stated in former years. only one among the London insurance offices exhibits an only one among the London insurance offices exhibits an advance to the extent of one-half the increase of the Company, while all the others respectively fall far short of the pany, while all the others respectively fall far short of the LIFE DEPARTMENT.

The amount of new Life Premiums received this year is

y far the largest received in any similar period since the mencement of the business, and must far exceed the werage of amount received by the most successful offices in the kingdom. The number of policies issued in the year was 832, the sum assured £387,752 6s. 8d., and the prem £12,354 3s. 4d. These figures show a very rapid extension business during the last ten years. Thus: Years. No. of Policies. Sums Assured. New Premiums. £1,380 9 £48,764 17 0 181,504 10 5,828 5 161,848 18 4 4.694 16 297,560 16 8 887,752 6 8 The remarkable increase in the business of the last four years is mainly consequent upon the large bonus declared in 1855, which amounted to no less than £2 per cent. per PERCY M. DOVE, Manager and Actuary. JOHN M. JOHNSTON, Secretary to the London Board. All descriptions of property taken at fair rates, and Fire osses paid promptly on reasonable proof of loss—without
