Mr. Speaker, and Gentlemen of the House of Assembly : His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor having proceeded to England on leave of absence from Her Majesty, the duty has devolved upon me of meeting you at the close of this Session as Administrator of the Government.

I have great pleasure in relieving you from further attendance to your Legislative labors; and in returning to your homes, I assure you that you will carry with you my best wishes for your individual pros perity and happiness.

BRITISH AND FOREICN.

The Daily Telegraph learns that Queen Victoria is about to emerge semewhat from her seclusion by shortly holding two state receptions at Buckingham officials. Another paper remarks :

It is nothing new, to observe the prompt compassion which has been shown from the Palace for the poor people whose homes and friends were swept away by the flood at Shetfield. Nor is it in the least degree a matter of surprise, that the great charitable crusade of the Bishop of London has earned the sympathy of the Sovereign, and elicited her usual bounteous co operation. But in many other ways-as in the simple visit lately paid to the Windsor work-house-has evidence been furnished to that assurance we have already ventured to give, that in due time the Queen would emerge from her seclusion. We avowed our anticipation that the change would be gradual; and accordingly, by degrees, as easily as a great grief would permit, her Majesty has been complying with her own desire and that of her people to resume her former round of life. The Queen's visit to the Windsor work house is thus referred to:

Her Majesty commenced her inspection with an examination of the men's dining hall and old men's ward, whence the illustrious visitors passed to the boys' schoolroom, where the boys were at work under the superintendence of the schoolmaster, and after an examination of this portion of the house her Majesty was pleased to express her approbation of the discipline and appearance of the children. The boys' dorm'tory, old men's and able bodied men's the Queen appearing surprised and delighted with the the 14th. arrangement of the latter department. Her Majesty then passed through the women's sleeping wards the rebel cruiser Georgia was reflitting in the Garonand girls' dormitory, and afterwards proceeded to ue, not being allowed to anchor in front of Bordeaux the girls' schoolroom, where the girls of the union because port regulartions exclude ships with powder were engaged in school and needlework. The Liverpool Mercury says :---

"Freedom of thought is hateful to the Papacy, because it may lead to the freedom of action and to the overthrow of usurped authority. So, at least, hotels are filled. thinks the Pope. Some months since, a Congress of the Roman Catholic Savans of Germany was held in the city of Munich, and prolonged discussions took place upon theological and philosophical questions. The result of the gathering was duly reported at the Vatican, and the Pope has now addressed to the Archnishop of Munich a brief, in which his Holiness contends that the scientific assembly in question was without the authority of the Church, and its tendency was to interfere with "the right of the spiritual government and of legitimate teaching, which, in virtue of the Divine institution, belong of right to the Roman Pontiff and to the bishops who are in union and in accord with the successor of St. Peter." On the continent this document is construed as a general censure of the opinions and proceedings of what are called Laberal Catholics, and many of the expressions are understood to refer as much to M. Montalembert and the Congress of Malines as to the scientific gentlemen who assembled at Munich.
