DANO-GERMAN WAR.-Conference met again in London on the 12th.

The Daily News says Conference approached question of political future of Duchies. The discussion which took place, however, did scarcely more than make evident the universal divergencies of views of several Powers and difficulties which would attend arrangements of acceptable terms of peace. After sitting three bours, conference adjourned till May 18th. Danish Government officially announced raising of the blockade of German ports. Copenhagen despatch says conditions of truce are that belligerents are to give notice of the intention to renew hostilities one week, before expiration of month agreed upon. Allies will remain in possession of Jutland and Danes of Alsen. Allies are not to impose any further contributions in Jutland, nor interfere in civil government of that province. In addition to ministerial resignation, previously reported at Copenhagen, it is rumored that the Minister of War also tendered his resignation. Times is astonished at Gladstone's important reform speech in Parliament Lardner that steamships could not be used to cross his ultra Democratic views, and believes the mass of an advance this spring, you will witness another ticulation wonderfully easy.

In one respect the finances of the Confederacy and the North deserve comparison. In the last three few families use tea, coffee, sugar, or wines, and everybody wears old clothes. Consequently the Confederacy owes no debt to Europe; and at the close of the war it will have its immense stock of cotton, tobacco, and naval stores ready to export. Per contra, for three years the North has been running up a bill in Europe; extravagance has been the order of the day. According to their view of the matter, they have been getting rich by flooding the land with paper money, and running up a debt of sixteen hundred millions of dollars. A late New York paper shows that, since the 1st January, 1864, the merchandize imports at that port have equalled $41,859,-913, in gold valuation ; while exports for the same period have been about $17,700,000; thus bringing the North in debt some $24,000,000 computed in gold. How long is this to go on without a crash ? On the subject of the
