Proposal made and accepted, subject to a reference, for a prolongation of armistice fifteen days. Conference meets again 6th. Fears gain ground that hostilities will recommence.

The French correspondent of the New York Observer, in a private letter of a recent date, says ;---

In Europe all is suspense. The great powers distrust each other. France is dissatisfied with England, and England keeps upon her guard. Russia, Prussia and Austria have concluded an especial affimore. Italy is agitated and restless; she would like to descend upon the battle field, and is afraid to risk it. Spain cannot find a stable position. We are constantly on the eve of a general war.

In France, as you have read in one of my former letters, the Protestant churches are plunged in a sort of chaos. Pastors, led away by negative and special theories, fall gradually into complete infidelity, and yet they pretend to keep their titles, their position, and their salary ! They are leagued with the radicals of the political press, in maintaining that Protestantism ought to have no fixed doctrine or any authority. The consistories mutually attack each other ! It is indeed a tower of Babel ; and the Romanists who behold these unhappy collisions, say with triumph that the Protestants will soon abandon their communion to enter the Catholic Church. This is absurd. But it must be confessed that our internal dissensions are deeply deplorable.

The incapacity and selfishness naturally produced such results as led the European powers, and logically enough, to the conviction that the North and its greatly superior population, its numerous resources and its credit will never be able to recover the South. Sympathies which would have been with us from the outset of the war were turned against us, and in this way the Administration has done the country a double wrong abroad. I am sure the Electors of Queep's will not ask their Re-presentatives to sustain an Administration whose Attorney-General (Johnston), in addition to the salary of $2,400 with fees, members pay, &c., took $:00 for attendance at the late Kailway trials, and who, with the other members of the Government, opposed the grant of $400 recommended by a Committee of the House, to the poor widow whose ittle boy was killed at Bothsay, through the enrelosaness of the Nailway Officials, as proved by the verdict of the jury. the charge of the Judge and the award of the Claverumen to others who were injured on the accusion. When a Government is composed of man who have no fixed principles of defined policy, and who have little or no onfidence in each other, and whose only hond of union is the $2,400 a year, it has outlived its uschimoss and been in power too long.

The press and the people are calling aloud for a change, may Queen's have the house of strikts, the first blow. Should you return me at the coming election. I shall seek nothing beyond your welfare and prosperity, for i shall regard your approval of my conduct, of more value than the gift of any office five Government can bestow. UNITED STATES.

The New York Observer gives its opinion of the so that Burnside joined Smith. Warren went to th war as follows : ---

A deep impression prevailed at the North and at the South that the present summer is to see the close of the war. The Southern papers have even put the issue upon the campaign in Virginia, and have said whichever wing, the war is at an end.

We do not take this view of the case, though we fervently wish and pray that the impending stroggle may be the overthrow of the military power of the rebellion, and the establishment of peace and good government in the whole land. But we must bear is mind that the resources of the rebellion have proved far greater than was expected at the beginning, and that with the desperation of failure, the rebels fight with flercer valor and more endurance than ever. If we defeat and scatter their armies now; if we take Richmond and Atlanta, they have still vast regions in which they may concentrate their forces again, and renew the fight until utterly exhausted. We must be prepared to hold on, and hold It is probable that the unity of sentiment is greater at this moment at the North, than it has ever been since the war begun. The more the war save it.

A Washington correspondent to a Boston paper writes, under date of June 6th, as follows :---

As vernal flowers perfume the morn,

But wither in the rising day, Thus lovely was this infaint's dawn, Thus swiftly flod his life away.

He died before his infant soul Had ever burned with wrong desires, Had ever spurned at heaven's control, Or ever quenched its sacred fires.

He died to sin, he died to care, But for a moment felt the rod, Then rising on the viewless air, Spread his wings and soared to God.

This bleased theme now cheers my voice, The grave is not the loved one's prison : The stone that covered half my joys Is pulled away, and lo bo's ricen.
