THE LITTLE BOY THAT DIED.

thor of the following beautiful lines, written on the gave him strength ; and we know what he overcame, occasion of the death of a young son, whom he great. and what he did, through the grace of his Savior. Do ly loved :

I am all alone in my chamber now, And the midnight hour is near, And the fagots' crack, and the clock's dull tick; Are ' only sounds I hear; And , by soul in its solitude Sweet it lings of sadness glide; For my heart and my eyes are full when I think Of the little boy that died.

I went one night to my father's house-Went home to the dear ones all, And softly opened the garden gate, And softly the door of the hall. My mother came to meet her son-She kissed me, and then she sighed ; And her head fell on my neck and she wept For the little boy that died.

I shall miss him when the flowers come In the garden where he played; I shall miss him more by the fireside, When the flowers are all decayed ; I shall see his toy and his empty chair, And the horse he used to ride, And they will speak with a silent speech Of the little boy that died.

We shall go home to our Father's house-To our Father's house in the skies, Where the hope of souls shall have no blight, Our love no broken ties; We shall roam on the bank of the river of peace, And bathe in its blissful tide; And one of the joys of life shall be The little boy that died.

TOBACCO.

I must be permitted to specialize still another danger from the general head of dissipation-one that" you are not accustomed to hear spoken of in the pulpit. I mean the danger of using tobacco. Do not think that I purpose to deliver an indiscriminate tirade of abuse against this practice. I wish to speak moderately, and to give the result of my reflections founded upon much observation.

I do not deny that there are many temperaments that seem to be able to use tobacco all their life long with comparatively little inconvenience-to themselves. I do not mean that every young man who addicts himself to chewing or smoking will of necessity take on other vices, or let this habit run to excess. But we are a nervous people. · Everything in the economy of our society tends to develope the brain and the nervous system unduly. Now, as a matter of fact, it is true that among such a people smoking is apt to lead to thirst and drinking. Not always, not necessarily ; but frequently and naturally. The cup and the cigar are well acquainted with each other.

The use of tobacco always tends to waste the nerveforce and the brain-force; and in thousands of cases there can be no question but that it squanders life by leakage right from the centre. And you do not know whether you are the one in five that will be poisoned and prematurely destroyed, or not. If there was one single reason for this habit, there might be some excuse for those that indulge in it; but it is a Brooks was murdered in Dubuque, Ia. If you chew and smoke, your you are here ? and for such a crime ?" He answered, misery is double ; and if you do but one, do not try "Yes! I had a letter from her yesterday, she's dying to cure yourselves by doing the other, for you will with grief." And with this he burst into a pitiful end in doing both. On grounds of simple common wailing, his groans pierced the hearts of all who heard sense, I ask every young man in this congregation him,-he trembled like a man in an ague fit, great who is addicted to the unwholesome practice of smoktears rolled down his cheeks, and drops of sweat stood ing or chewing, is it worth your while to spend your means, and to entail upon yourselves an unnecessary The mention of his mother quite overcame him ; expense for the sake of keeping up a habit that inhis thoughts were carried back to the innocent days commodes others, that annoys those about you, that of his childhood, when his boyish gambols had so will probably have a bad influence upon your health, awakened the heart of that mother whom he loved, and that will possibly injure your morals? How many people do we call on from year to year, and know no more of their feelings, habits, tastes, family ideas, and ways than if they lived in Kamschatka? And why? Because the room which they call a front parlor is made expressly so that you never shall know. They sit in a back room,-work, talk, read, perhaps. After the servant has let you in and opened a crack in the shutter, and while you are waiting for them to change their dress and come in, read them now? "I will try to cure my bad temper, that I am resolved," said Fred; but he made the resolve in his own strength. The next day showed him how weak he was in himself; for only on a slight affront he flew into a passion with his cousin Charles, who got before him in class; he scolded his sister Mary, who had by accident broken the tail of his kite; and he burst into a fit of anger when he stumbled over the yard dog as it lay basking in the sunshine.

and wrote her a letter, in which he said-

"To-day is my birth-day, and I mean to turn over a new leaf, as father calls it. I have quite made up my mind to attend to what you told me. I will never more be angry. I will always fight against my naughty temper. It makes me very unhappy, and my parents are unhappy too. And you said that it The Watchman and Reflector speaks of an aged offends the holy God."

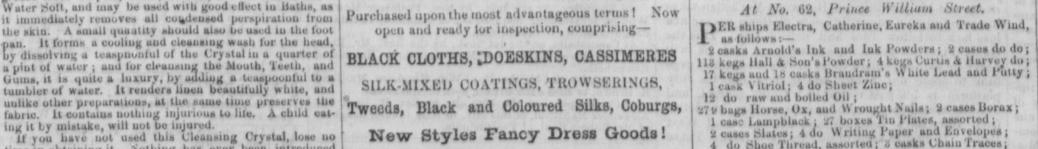

Now this was quite right; but then Fred had forgotten to pray. He had again resolved in his own substituted "sweet fern" for tea and coffee, and strength to fight against his temper. He had not "find no inconvenience," they write, "from the asked to be forgiven his past sins, nor sought help change." We presume they find it, on the contrary, from God to overcome his evil passions.

CORRECT SPEAKING .- We would advise all young people to acquire, in early life, the habit of correct speaking and writing; and to abandon, as early as celebrated Washing Crystal, which is the most harmless compound extant. It is free from Lime, Vitriol, and all possible, any use of slang words and phrases. The longer you live the more difficult the acquirement of correct language will be; and if the golden age of youth, the proper season for the acquisition of language, be passed in its abuse, the unfortunate victim if neglected is, very properly, doomed to talk slang for life. Money is not necessary to procure this education. Every man has it in his power. He has merely to use the language which he reads, instead of the slang which he hears ; to form his taste from A few weeks after the lady had left, he sat down the best speakers and poets in the country ; to treasure up choice phrases in his memory, and habituate himself to their use, avoiding at the same time, that ing it by mistake, will not be injured. pedantic precision and bombast, which show the weakness of vain ambition rather than the polish of time in obtaining it.
