Slung from his neck-a weary weight-His precious charge he bore; His failing strength, at war with fate, Could bear no feather more.

But not against his life alone Uprose the breakers wild ; A woman, on the billows thrown, Held up her drowning child.

"Save her !" she cried, "in mercy save !" As through the surf she rolled: He heard; and cast beneath the wave His prize of Indian gold.

Fearless he breasts the tropic storm With limbs by love new strung. While round his neck, all soft and warm, Two infant arms are flung.

He hails the land -the blessed land! He drinks its spicy air; He strains to reach its coral strand, He greets it with a prayer.

Vainly the angry tempest raved, His feet have touched the goal; And, with his living burthen saved, He stands-a rescued soul!

The child has lived, bloomed, loved, and died, Alone the old man lies; Another sea, of stiller tide, Steals o'er his closing eyes.

Glows now for him no tropic light, But, where life's waters freeze, The glory of the Polar night-The calm of Arctic seas!

His hard earned gold beneath the deep Lies hid; -but where is she, His God-gift, whom the star-worlds keep, His daughter of the sea?

Where cloud-waves foam the rippled skies, Touched by the golden day, A beauteous form in angel guise Floats up the liquid way.

He follows, hushed in rapt delight, Of dread and death beguiled, She, swimming slow with pinions bright, He, clinging like a child.

The dross of earth is cast away; She leads him by the hand, Thro' heaven's blue sea her white wings play He nears the happy land.

She parts the waves that beats him back; He breasts life's surge no more; His feet, upon an angel's track, Have touched the immortal shore!

THE SAVIOUR'S WELCOME TO LITTLE

Nobody could doubt that the children were going to get a story out of Aunt Mary, as they gathered round her on a bright Sabbath afternoon in summer. There was an eager look in their faces, and a disposition to creep near to her, which could not have deweived one less used to children's ways.

And so Aunt Mary did not disappoint them; but Sabbath story in her own quiet way.

Outside a city, years and years ago, was a little cottage, wherein dwelt a man and his wife named Mary and Zadok, with their two children. The cottage was prettily built of wood, which had one day miles away rising thousands of feet, and seeming to kingdom of heaven."

were preparing for a journey, and the children were low, sweet voice, so that no one heard but Zadok, looking on wondering what was going to be done. and Mary, and the children. Zadok was outside, under a shed, giving some food Ah! what a happy company went back that day to his donkey, and taking great pains to make him to Capernaum. Mary loved her children before, but clean and tidy, as if he were going into very good ever after that day she handled them and talked to company. Within, Mary was beginning to dress the them as if they belonged to heaven. In course of children, in the very best clothes she could find, so time the two boys grew up to be men, and had a neatly and carefully that they wondered what was boat and fishing nets all their own; but they never going to be done with them. Then he set him in the midst of his disciples, and Moliere's old housekeeper was a great help to his still keeping hold of his hand, he told them (speaking genius; and Montagine's philosophy takes both a out loud, so that we who were at a little distance gentler and a loftier character of wisdom from the could hear quite plainly) that unless they all became date in which he finds, in Marie de Gournay, an little children they could not enter into the kingdom adopted daughter, certainly beloved by me, says the of heaven, and that whoever made himself lowly, like Horace of essayists, " with more than paternal love.

down to little children to help and comfort them."

"Why," said Mary, her face glowing with hope, "if the Saviour comes to us as a little child to see whether we are kind and loving, and keeps bright angels to help little children while they live and take them to heaven when they die, it must be right. He must give his blessing to our little ones if we ask him. I am sure he will."

Zadok could not resist such words; he had never heard them before. He cast one fond loving glance at the children, and said, "They shall go, and let us haste on our journey."

So away they started, the road winding by the shores of a beautiful lake, and almost under the shadow of the high mountains on the other side. They had not gone far when they saw before them a company of people moving slowly along the road. They soon overtook them, and found three or four men carrying on a mattress, covered with soft straw, a little sick child. He looked very ill, and scarcely fit to be out; and his mother, who walked by his side shading his face from the hot sun, looked at him anxiously, yet not without hope.

"Where are you taking the child?" said Mary, "I am following the Lord, to see if he will heal my child," said the mother; "and I am but trusting to his great love, for if I fail I am afraid the journey will be too much for my child."

Mary said no more to her fellow-traveller on what was moving her so deeply; but whispering her own errand, the two companies passed on their way together-the two mothers keeping near each other.

When they came to the place where they hoped to meet the Saviour, they found that he was still on the other side of the river, and so they had to cross. There was no bridge, but large stones at a little distance from each other, over which they walked easily, as the river was not very deep.

Little Benny, the eldest of Mary's children, wondered how they would get the sick child over; but the men that carried him made nothing of it, and soon bore him over the stream. The little invalid just raised his head and faintly smiled, as he saw the cool clear water streaming away in the sunlight.

The country into which they were come was open and level, so that they could see a long way. And how their hearts beat when, at a turn in the road, they could see a crowd of people standing under the shade of some tall trees. As they drew near the crowd they met a group of people coming away. They were talking very eagerly, and their faces were beaming with joy. Every one of them was looking earnestly into the face of a youth of about eighteen, who was gazing up and about with bewildered delight. as if the morning light had never broken on him before that day. A girl, apparently about his own age, was with one hand holding on to his arm, and with the other feeling over the lad's face, as if to make quite sure that her brother could see. They stopped just a minute as they came upon the sick child; the girl darted away and whispered in the ear of the mother of the sick child, "Make haste, do not let him go." She was too full to say anything else, and went bounding back to her brother.

The crowd made way for the litter as the men hastened forward with the sick child, while Zadok and Mary, knowing their case was less pressing, stayed behind until they should return. Those few moments seemed hours. Presently the crowd opened again, and, amidst the wonder of all, the poor sick child, that looked only a minute or two before as if his last hour was come, walked away in full health; his mother, all the while, raining on him tears of Mary and Zadok could wait no longer. Zadok seized little Benny, clearing his way through the crowd to where the Lord was. Mary, with her youngest, kept as close behind him as she could; but she could not see much for the great men round her; but she felt the Lord was near, and she listened eagerly. She could catch the sound of cold, hard taking the youngest little child on her knee began her voices talking very loudly, and then for a moment all the tongues ceased. What would come next?

Her heart sank within her as she heard an angry voice say, "Keep back that child." But in a minute all was changed, for a voice she could not mistakeso heavenly in its sweetness-hushed those angry been brought in a boat over the water from the very sounds, and said, "Suffer the little children to come mountain which they could see clearly not many unto me, and forbid them not, for of such is the

THE ROYAL INSURANCE COMPANY, 92 Lombard-street, London, and Royal Insurance build-Chairman of the London Board .- SAMUEL BAKER, Esq. Chairman in Liverpool.—CHARLES TURNER, Esq. The Royal Insurance Company is one of the largest

Offices in the kingdom.
At the Annual Meeting held in August 1859, the following nighly satisfactory results were shown FIRE DEPARTMENT.

The most gratifying proof of the expansion of the busi ness is exhibited in the one following fact—that the increase alone of the last three years exceeds the entire business of some of the existing and of many of the recently defunct fire insurance companies of this kingdom.

The Premiums for the year 1855 being. While the Premiums for the year 1558 are.... 196,148 Showing an actual increase of ... upwards of 50 per cent. in three years. The recent returns of duty made by Government for this latter year (1858) again show the "Royal" as more than maintaining the ratio of its increase as stated in former years. Only one among the London insurance offices exhibits an advance to the extent of one-half the increase of the Company, while all the others respectively fall far short of the noiety of its advance. LIFE DEPARTMENT. fhe amount of new Life Premiums received this year is y far the largest received in any similar period since the nencement of the business, and must far exceed the average of amount received by the most successful offices in the kingdom. The number of policies issued in the year was 882, the sum assured £887,752 6s. 8d., and the premium £12,354 3s. 4d. These figures show a very rapid extension of business during the last ten years. Thus :--Years. No. of Policies. Sums Assured. New Premiums. #48,764 17 0 £1,380 9 2,627 4 7 5,828 5 10 422 181,504 10 6 161,848 13 4 4,694 16 0 297,560 16 8 8,850 3 11

The remarkable increase in the business of the last four years is mainly consequent upon the large bonus declared in 1855, which amounted to no less than £2 per cent. per annum on the sums assured, and averaged 80 per cent. upon PERCY M. CAUTION! CAUTION! CAUTION! THE Proprietor of PICKSTONE'S WASHING AND CLEANSING CRYSTAL, deems it his duty to cantion the public against spurious imitations of his highly celebrated Washing Crystal, which is the most harmless compound extant. It is free from Lime, Vitriol, and all other deadly mixtures so common to be found amongst washing compounds. Try Pickstone's Washing Crystal, if you want ease, comfort, and economy in washing, which washes every thing, and has rapid sale.

It will be found invaluable for the following domestic purposes, viz :- It washes all fine things, such as Muslin, Lace, Crotchet Work, Raby Linen, &c,; cleaning Sponges, Combs, and Brushes; removing stains from the hands, and grease from Carpets, Cloth, Flannel, &c. It makes Hard Water Soft, and may be used with good effect in Baths, as pan. It forms a cooling and cleansing wash for the head, by dissolving a teasphonful of the Crystal in a quarter of a pint of water; and for cleansing the Mouth, Teeth, and tumbler of water. It renders linen beautifully white, and unlike other preparations, at the same time preserves the fabric. It contains nothing injurious to life. A child eating it by mistake, will not be injured.

If you have not used this Cleansing Crystal, lose no time in obtaining it. Nothing has ever been introduced into this country which has effected such a wonderful change upon Washing flavorers. change upon Washing Days. It saves your time -saves your clothes—saves your money; and it does not injure the most delicate hands. Pickstone's Cleansing Crystal makes washing a pleasure, reduces the cost of fuel, the wear and tear of labor, and improves every article washed. For Linens, and heavy washes, it cannot be surpassed; for Laces, and line fabrics, it is unequalled. It does not injure the color of Prints, but strengthers and improves injure the color of Prints, but strengthens and improves

ZYLOBALSAMUM. The great unequalled Preparations for Restoring, Invigorating, Beautifying, and Dressing

Rendering it soft, silky, and glossy, and disposing it to remain in any desired position; quickly cleansing the scalp, arresting the fall, and imparting a healthy and natural color to the Hair. It NEVER FAILS to restore GRAY HAIR to

ITS ORIGINAL YOUTHFUL COLOR. IT IS NOT A DYE, But acts directly upon the roots of the Hair, giving them the natural nourishment required, producing the same vitality and lux-Rev. Mr. THACHER, of New York, in a letter, says: "My age is sixty. One year ago my hair was very gray, and falling. I used Mrs. S. A. Allen's World's Hair Restorer according to directions, and now my hair is restored to its natural color, and has ceased to fail. "The Zylobalsamum I have found the best and most agreeable hair-dressing I have ever used." FOR LADIES AND CHILDREN Whose Hair requires frequent dressing, the Zylobalsamum has no equal. No lady's toilet is complete without it.
