Sit very near, and let me dry This tear that trickles down thy cheek, And this that trembles in thine eye; For it is time that we should speak; The choking stoper of the bour Is past, when weeping was relief; Now yield thee to a gentler power-The tender memory of grief.

In mingled cords of grief and love.

Let's talk of her-our little one Who walks above the milky way, Arrayed in glory like the sun That lightens the eternal day; The little gift that we did make To God, by whom the boon was given-He wished it, deeming she would take Our hearts away with her to heaven,

O, sweet bud flowering dewy bright To crown our love's rejoicing atem! O, great eyes wondering in their light, With long, dark lashes fringing them ! And over these the forehead broad, And then her full and parted lips, And rounded chin meet for a god, And pink shells on her finger-tips!

O, beautiful her life! and we Were just too full of happiness; As dewy flowers hang droopingly, O'erburdened with the weight of bliss, And, fearful lest the treasure spill Close up their petals to the light, So we forgot all, good or ill, To clasp to us that dear delight.

Remember how we noted all Her little looks and winning ways, And how she let her eyelids fall As I was wont in wooing days, And held her little finger up In eurious mimicry of mine; But when the smile was on her lip. Lo! all the beaming face was thine.

O, say not she was only seen, Like song-bird lighting on the tree, A moment, while the leaves were green, Filling the boughs with melody, And then, when hope arose serens, She left us sadder than before; And better she had never been, Then leave us stricken to deplore.

And was it nothing then to feel A mother's love, and do her part, While soft hands e'er the bosom steal, And soft cheeks press against the heart? Nay, let us keel together love, And bow the head, and kiss the rod ; We gave an heir to heaven above, A child to praise the Christ of God.

He would have infant trebies ringing The glories of the great I AM He would have childish voices singing The ballelujahs of the Lamb; And shall we faint in grief's desire, Because this grace to us is given, To have a babe amid the choir

White robed around the throne of heaven? We had a joy unto us given, Transcending any earthly pleasance; We had a messenger from heaven; Let us be better for her presence; Our mother earth where she is laid,

Is dearer to my heart for her; We have such kindred with the dead, The very grave is lightsomer - Good Words,

Poor Mrs. Grey was so tired of perpetually repeating directions, and of the effort of causing them to be seasonably and properly carried out, that she often did the work herself, when she felt hardly able to crawl, rather than trg to get the girls to do it. Suddenly the devoted mother was missing from her post in the kitchen. She was to be waiter and drudge no more. She died; but had she been cared for and cherished as she should have been, she might have been the companion and comforter of her husband and her children for many happy years. When they saw the tired feet at rest, the worn hands folded, the dim eyes closed at last, self-reproach took hold upon them, and they wept. They felt that they might have kept her. They remembered all their lazy, careless ways, and how worn out with care and toil they had allowed their mother to become. Every groun they had heard her atter came back to them, and they were filled with remorae for all they had failed to do. The weeks and months only showed them more and more plainly what they had lost, and how guilty they had been. But it was too late to make atonement. All they could do was to lay the lesson to heart and try to improve by it. This they all did, and they cherished the memory of their dead mother as they never had cherished her. If any girls who are walking in the ways of the Grey girls, will but take a warning by their punishment, they may perhaps escape a similar one. Those are few agonies more hard to bear than to look on a dead face, most near and dear, and feel that our treatment has hastened the parting hour. God save us all from that !- Springfield Republican.

A MERCHANT'S STORY.

A member of a large mercantile firm recently gave me a bit of his early experience. Said he:

'I was seventeen years old when I left the country store where I had 'tended' for three years, and came to Boston in search of a place. Anxious o course, to appear to the best advantage, I spent an unusual amount of time and solicitude upon my toi let, and when it was completed I surveyed my reflection in the glass with no little satisfaction, glanc ing lastly and most approvingly upon a seal ring which embellished my little finger, and my cane, very pretty affair, which I had purchased with direcreference to this occasion. My first day's experience was not encouraging. I traversed street after street, up one side and down the other, without success. fancied towards the last, that the clerks all knew my business the moment I opened the door, and that they winked ill-naturedly at my discomfiture as I passed out. But nature endowed me with a good de gree of persistency, and the next day I started again. Towards noon I entered a store where an elderly gentleman stood talking with a fady by the door. waited until the visitor had left, and then stated my errand. 'No, sir,' was the answer given in a peculiarly crisp and decided manner. Possibly I looked the discouragement I was beginning to feel, for his added, in a kindlier tone: 'Are you good at taking :

'I don't know,' I answered, while my face flushed

'What I wish to say is this,' said he, smiling a my embarrasement: 'If I were in want of a clerk, I would not engage a young man who came seeking employment with a flashy ring upon his finger, and swinging a fancy cana."

For a moment mortified vanity struggled agains common sense, but sense got the victory, and I replied, with rather a shaky soice, I am afraid, "I'm very much obliged to you,' and then beat a hast; retreat. As soon as I got out of sight I slipped th ring into my pocket, and walking rapidly to the Worcester depot, I left the case in charge of the baggage-master 'until called for.' It is there now, for aught I know. At any rate I never called for it. That afternoon I obtained a situation with the firm of which I am now a partner,

THE REST GATHERING. -Time is the most precious of all things. It is more valuable than gold or silver. When Elizabeth, the celebrated Queen of England, was on her death-bed, she exclaimed, " My kingdom for an hour of time!" But all the wealth and honours of her kingdom could not purchase for her the time she wanted. Queen Elizabeth had not wasted her time. Few persons had ever been more diligent in improving than she had been. She used to rise early, and spend every moment she could spare in reading and studying. She understood Greek and Latin perfectly. She could speak and write in five 'Georgia, come and make some yeast,' said Mrs. different languages. But what the dying Queen Grey to her daughter. CAUTION! CAUTION! GAUTION THE Proprietor of PICESTONE'S WASHING AND Received per steamers Hibernian, Nova Scotian, Jura, CLEANSING CRYSTAL, deems it his duty to can. America, Africa, Caledonia, &c., ion the public against spurious imitations of his highly celebrated Washing Grystal, which is the most parmiess compound extant. It is free from Idms, Vitriol, and all other deadly mixtures so common to be found amongst washing compounds. Try Pickstone's Washing Crystal, if you want case, comfort, and economy in washing, which wastes every thing, and has rapid sale.
It will be found invaluable for the following domestic proces, viz : - it washes all fine things, such as Musiin, Lace, Crotchet Work, Haby Linen, &c,; cleaning Sponges Combs, and Brushes; removing stains from the hands, and greuse from Carpets, Cloth, Flannel, &c. It makes Hard Water Boft, and may be used with good effect in Baths, as it immediately removes all condensed perspiration from the skin. A small quantity should also be used in the foot pan. It forms a cooling and cleaning wash for the head, by dissolving a teasphonful of the Crystal in a quarter of a pint of water; and for cleaning the Mouth, Techn, and Guns, it is quite a toxury, by adding a teasphonful to a tumbler of water. It renders linen beautifully white, and inlike other preparations, at the same time preserves the fabric. It contains nothing injurious to life. A shild esting it by mistake, will not be injured. If you have not used this tileansing Crystal, lose no time in obtaining it. Nothing has ever been introduced mio this country which has effected such a wonderful change upon Washing Days. It saves your time saves your clothes—saves your money, and it does not injure the most delicate hands. Pickstone's Cleaning Arystal makes washing a pleasure, reduces the cost of fuel, the wear and tear of labor, and improves every article washed.
