PORTRAIT OF A MINISTER.

Bishop Ken's portrait of a minister is much more full and complete than that of Cowper, which has been so much admired, and is perhaps superior even to the noble touches of George Herbet. It is as follows:

Give me a priest who, at judicious age,
And duly called, in Priesthoood shall engage,
With dispositions natural and acquired,
With strong propensions for the function fired;
Whom God by opportunity invites
To consecrate himself to sacred rites;
Who still keeps Jesus in his heart and head,
And strives in steps of our Arch-priest to tread,
Who can himself and all the world deny,
Lives pilgrim here, but denizen on high;
Whose business is, like Jesus' to save souls,
And with all ghostly miseries condoles.

Give me the priest these graces shall possess,
Of an ambassador the just address;
A father's tenderness, a shepherd's care,
A leader's courage, which the cross can bear;
A ruler's awe, a watchman's wakeful eye,
A pilot's skill, the helm in storms to ply;
A fisher's patience, and a laborer's toil,
A guide's dexterity to disembroil;
A prophet's inspiration from above,
A teacher's knowledge, and a Saviour's love.

Give me the priest, a light upon a hill,
Whose rays his whole circumference can fill;
In God's own Word and sacred learning versed,
Deep in the study of the heart immersed;
Who in sick souls can the disease descry,
And wisely fit restoratives apply;
To beatific pastures leads his sheep,
Watchful from hellish wolves his fold to keep;
Who seeks not a convenience, but a cure,
Would rather souls, than his own gain insure,
Instructive in his visits and converse,
Strives everywhere salvation to disperse;
Of a mild, humble, and obliging heart,
Who with his all, will to the needy part;
Distrustful of himself, in God confides,
Daily himself, among his flock divides.
Of virtue uniform, and cheerful air,
Fixed meditation, and incessant prayer,
Affections mortified, well guided zeal,
Of saving truth the relish wont to feel;
Whose province, heaven, all his endeavors shares,
Who mixes with no secular affairs,
Oft on his pastoral accounts reflects;
By holiness, not riches, gains respects;
Who is all that he would have others be,
From wilful sin, though not from frailty, free.

Miscellaneous.

JOHNNY, THE BULGARIAN BOY.

A STORY SHOWING WHAT A CHILD CAN DO.

If you will take the Map of Europe, and after finding the Black Sea, will you run your finger in a north-easterly direction from Constantinople in Turkey, you will find a little distance off a place called Adrianople. Then if you will look a little further, you will find a province called Bulgaria, which contains a population of nearly two millions of people. These people, until a few years ago, knew nothing of the Bible as we have it, and were led to believe that Protestants were very wicked, dangerous persons, and were sure, when they die, to be lost. Now in this country missionaries have been laboring for several years, trying to get the people to listen to the truths of the Bible and to give up their false beliefs and worship. These missionaries worked long in vain; the people would not go near them. But after awhile, seeing that the missionaries were kind to them, that they never told lies nor used bad language, that they lived out what they preached, some of the people forgot their prejudices, and began to listen to what was said to them, and to read the Bible and other good books; and so in time quite a little congregation was gathered. Then the missionaries opened a school, and taught the children who came to them, telling them of the Saviour, and also of the errors of their religion, and trying to induce them to become followers of the true God.

These missionaries, besides preaching and teaching the children, often sent out men with books, who stopped in the villages and talked to the people, and either sold or gave the books away. These men often met hot opposition; sometimes they were abused, the priests set up the ignorant people to insult and drive them away. But still they kept straight on in their work, never giving up in despair.

Away up in one corner of Bulgaria, sixty or more miles from Adrianople, there is a village of several hundred people, at which one day one of these agents of the missionaries arrived in his wanderings. For hours he tried to reach and talk with the people he met; but they all avoided him; they were afraid of his religion; they believed him to be a 'heretic,' whom it would be a crime to touch. So after a vain attempt to accomplish his errand, the colporteur went his way, sad at heart. But, all unknown to him, he had dropped a seed in that village which God meant should grow into life and vigor.

Among those whom he had addressed was a little boy only twelve years of age. What the agent said lodged in his mind; he thought of it often; he could not get rid of it. So months afterwards this little boy started all alone, leaving his home and father and sisters, and walked all the way over the mountain roads, in cold weather, to Adrianople. There he presented himself at the missionary rooms, and told them he wanted to be their scholar, that he might learn of Jesus. The missionaries, when they heard his story, were greatly surprised; but they saw God's hand in it, and so they gave the little boy a room in their building, and hired him to carry water and do other errands, that he might earn enough to get his food while in their school. In a little while he became an apt good scholar, and not satisfied with learning how to read the Bible in one language began to study it in another language. All this time he was instructed by the missionaries in religious things, and in time came to understand something of the truth which they preached. His ways, too, were kind and gentle, and all learned to love him.

But meanwhile his old father, after worrying a long time about his boy, had heard where he was; and the knowledge that he was with the missionaries distressed him greatly. He thought it was a terrible thing to have him among 'heretics,' as these missionaries are called; his priest told him his boy's soul would be lost for ever, that he could never get to heaven, where God is, unless he should be got away immediately. So with a heart full of trouble, fearing for his boy, the old father took his staff, and weak with age, started off for Adrianople, in order that he might get 'Johnny'—we will call him that—and take him home again. In time the weary father reached his journey's end and found his boy at the mission-rooms. And O how glad Johnny was to see his dear father's face, and to feel his arms around his neck once more. His heart was so full of joy that he could hardly contain himself. But in his joy he did not forget that his old father must be very tired; so in a little while he ran out and brought some food, which, when he returned, dancing along the street, he spread neatly on a little table, and invited his father to sit down with him and refresh himself. But before they commenced their frugal meal Johnny reverently asked God to bless the food to their use—the old man of course, looking on with wonder and surprise.

After awhile the meal was over, and then the two talked together as father and son would naturally do, after a long separation. In reply to his father's questions, Johnny gave a history of all that had happened since he had left home; told how kind the missionaries had been; how he had learned to read in two languages, and how happy he was in the love of Jesus. But it cost Johnny a struggle before he could speak to his father on this latter point. He knew how the ignorant old man felt about the missionaries—that he thought them to be dangerous bad men, and the Bible a book not proper to be read; and it was a hard thing for such a little boy to undertake to remove his father's prejudice and make him understand the truth. But God gave Johnny courage and put the right words in his mouth, and so the poor father heard, for the first time, from one he was not afraid to trust, the story of the Cross and Christ's great love for sinful men.

The next day was Sunday, and, as usual, there was preaching in the chapel. Johnny begged his father to go with him and hear the missionaries; but he thought his priest would never forgive him if he should go to hear a 'heretic' preach, and for a long time he resisted Johnny's pleadings. But at last, seeing how disappointed the little boy was, he consented to go and sit at the door, where he could hear but not be seen. Johnny took his place in the little congregation, and the services began. At first the father remained perfectly still in his seat outside of the door, but as the services went on, won by the sweet singing and the strange words read from the Bible, and by the prayers offered by the minister, he gradually edged his way into the chapel, and there remained, listening with interest to the sermon about the love of God and the wickedness of the human heart, until the service was over. Then he stole out as if ashamed, and with Johnny hurried away to his room.

From that day it was easy for Johnny to talk with his father, telling him of the errors of the religion of the priests, explaining the truth of the Bible, and pleading with him to give his heart to the Saviour. To all the father listened kindly, scarcely ever making any reply, very often seeming amazed at the freedom with which his boy conversed. The missionaries, learning from Johnny who the old man was, treated him with great kindness, and though he had come to take Johnny away, he seemed in no hurry at all to leave; seemed quite happy indeed to stay in the company which he at first had so greatly feared. May be God was speaking to his heart, and softening it with His love, that he might be brought to him.

But at last he could stay no longer; so with words of love, the father and son parted, the one going to his distant village home, and the other, whom nothing could seduce from the missionaries, remained in the place he had learned to prize so much.

In due time the old father reached his home alone. 'Where is Johnny?' exclaimed the villagers as they met him in the street. Why didn't you bring him home?'

'He is with the missionaries,' the old man replied; 'and he is in no danger. He has learned already to read; he is a kind good boy, much better than he used to be at home; the people all love him, and I concluded that if such is the effect of the new religion, it can't be a very bad thing after all. So I left him.'

So the old man answered all who inquired about his boy. The priest came to him and told him Johnny would surely be lost; but the father answered that he had seen how the Christians acted, had seen how kind and faithful they were, had heard them read from the Bible and listened to them preaching, and if that was their religion he was not afraid but would ever hurt his boy; and so the priest, in a great rage, had to leave him, finding his threats altogether thrown away.

But, children, I must not make my story too long. The rest can be told in a few words. Johnny remained with the missionaries, and after awhile became a member of the Church. When he grew to be seventeen or eighteen, he was sent out into the country to sell and give away Bibles and other good books, and to talk to the people of God and Heaven. One of the first places he visited was his old home. Every one crowded to see him; all knew his history, and they were curious to see him and know what he had to say. From him many took the books willingly; they gathered about him in the street corners, and listened while he read from the Bible, and many learned to read for themselves out of the precious book. On some hearts God's Holy Spirit moved; they saw how sinful they were, and they turned to Christ for help and pardon. Johnny had sown the seed with prayer and hope, and almost before he knew it, the fruit appeared. And his own joy was greatest because of those who turned to God his own father and sisters were among the first.

When I last heard of Johnny he was still serving the missionaries, travelling up and down the country as the old Apostles did hundreds of years ago, when, as Jesus told them to do, they carried the news of salvation far and wide. Loving the Saviour, pitying his countrymen dying in sin, anxious to do something for their salvation, he works faithfully and earnestly; and God is so blessing him in his work, that all who know him feel that had not another soul been converted by all the missionary effort in that country, Johnny's rescue alone would more than pay for all the labor and all the money the missionaries have expended.

My dear little readers, are you doing anything for Jesus? Here was a poor ignorant boy who left everything to become a Christian and serve God. You know far better than he did what it is your duty to do. You know that the Saviour is waiting day and night for you to give your heart to Him. You know He longs to wash all the sins from your soul and write your name in the Book of Life. Will you let Him wait in vain? Do you want to lie down in the grave feeling that your name is not in that Book? Shall the poor heathen boy Johnny go in at the gates of the Beautiful City while you are left without?

The door of heaven, children, stands wide open, and Christ bids you come in. Will you not this hour tell Him all your sins, ask Him to make you like Himself, and so go at last to meet Johnny in the 'Land of Pure Delight?'

WEATHER FORECASTS.—In a letter to the Times, Messrs Negretti and Zambra give the following short rules as guides to the weather:—A Rising Barometer.—A "rapid" rise indicates unsettled weather. A "gradual" rise indicates settled weather. A "rise" with dry air and cold increasing in summer indicates wind from northward; and if rain has fallen better weather is to be expected. A "rise" with moist air and a low temperature indicates wind and rain from northward. A "rise" with southerly wind indicates fine weather. A Steady Barometer.—With dry air and a seasonable temperature, indicates a continuance of very fine weather. A Falling Barometer.—A "rapid" fall indicates stormy weather. A "rapid" fall with westerly wind indicates stormy weather from northward. A "fall" with a northerly wind indicates storm, with rain and hail in summer and snow in winter. A "fall" with increased moisture in the air and the heat increasing indicates wind and rain from southward. A "fall" with dry air and cold increasing in winter indicates snow. A "fall" after very calm and warm weather indicates rain with squally weather.

THE ROYAL INSURANCE COMPANY, 92 Lombard-street, London, and Royal Insurance buildings, Liverpool.
Chairman of the London Board.—SAMUEL BAKER, Esq.
Chairman in Liverpool.—CHARLES TURNER, Esq.
The Royal Insurance Company is one of the largest Offices in the kingdom.
At the Annual Meeting held in August 1859, the following highly satisfactory results were shown:—
FIRE DEPARTMENT.
The most gratifying proof of the expansion of the business is exhibited in the one following fact—that the increase alone of the last three years exceeds the entire business of some of the existing and of many of the recently defunct fire insurance companies of this kingdom.
The Premiums for the year 1855 being.....£130,060
While the Premiums for the year 1858 are.... 196,148
Showing an actual increase of..... 66,088
or upwards of 50 per cent. in three years.
The recent returns of duty made by Government for this latter year (1858) again show the "Royal" as more than maintaining the ratio of its increase as stated in former years. Only one among the London insurance offices exhibits an advance to the extent of one-half the increase of the Company, while all the others respectively fall far short of the moiety of its advance.
LIFE DEPARTMENT.
The amount of new Life Premiums received this year is by far the largest received in any similar period since the commencement of the business, and must far exceed the average of amount received by the most successful offices in the kingdom. The number of policies issued in the year was 832, the sum assured £287,752 6s. 8d., and the premium £12,354 3s. 4d. These figures show a very rapid extension of business during the last ten years. Thus:—

Years.	No. of Policies.	Sums Assured.	New Premiums.
1848 ..	98	£48,764 17 0	£1,380 9 1
1850 ..	190	95,850 9 11	2,927 4 7
1852 ..	422	181,504 10 6	5,528 5 0
1854 ..	603	181,548 13 4	4,824 16 0
1856 ..	703	227,560 16 8	8,850 3 11
1858 ..	832	287,752 6 8	12,354 3 4

The remarkable increase in the business of the last four years is mainly consequent upon the large bonus declared in 1855, which amounted to no less than £2 per cent. per annum on the sums assured, and averaged 80 per cent. upon the premiums paid.

THE Proprietor of PICKSTONE'S WASHING AND CLEANSING CRYSTAL, deems it his duty to caution the public against spurious imitations of his highly celebrated Washing Crystal, which is the most harmless compound extant. It is free from Lime, Vitriol, and all other deadly mixtures so common to be found amongst washing compounds. Try Pickstone's Washing Crystal, if you want ease, comfort, and economy in washing, which washes every thing, and has rapid sale.
It will be found invaluable for the following domestic purposes:—It washes all fine things, such as Muslin, Lace, Crotchet Work, baby Linen, &c.; cleaning sponges, Combs, and Brushes, removing stains from the hands, and grease from Carpets, Cloth, Flannel, &c. It makes Hard Water Soft, and may be used with good effect in Baths, as it immediately removes all condensed perspiration from the skin. A small quantity should also be used in the foot pan. It forms a cooling and cleansing wash for the head, by dissolving a teaspoonful of the Crystal in a quarter of a pint of water; and for cleansing the Mouth, Teeth, and Gums, it is quite a luxury, by adding a teaspoonful to a tumbler of water. It renders linen beautifully white, and unites other preparations, at the same time preserves the fabric. It contains nothing injurious to the skin. A child eating it by mistake, will not be injured.
If you have not used this Cleansing Crystal, lose no time in obtaining it. Nothing has ever been introduced into this country which has effected such a wonderful change upon Washing Days. It saves your time—saves your clothes—saves your money; and it does not injure the most delicate hands. Pickstone's Cleansing Crystal makes washing a pleasure, reduces the cost of fuel, the wear and tear of labor, and improves every article washed. For Linens, and heavy washes, it cannot be surpassed; for Laces, and fine fabrics, it is unequalled. It does not injure the color of Prints, but strengthens and improves them—by its use they retain their original brilliancy. Flannels become white and soft like new. White things are much improved, and keep their color, even if put by for months. Thousands of Families made happy! No misery on a Washing Day, with Pickstone's Cleansing Crystal.
