EXPERIENCE.

Come all you mourning pilgrims, Who feel your need of Christ; Surrounded by temptations, And by the world despised ; Attend to what I tell you, My exercise I'll show, And then you may inform me If so it's been with you.

Long time I lived in darkness, Nor saw my dismal state ; And when I was enlightened, I thought it was too late ; A lost and helpless sinner Myself I plainly saw, Exposed to God's displeasure, Condemned by the law.

I thought the brute creation Was better off than me; Such trials and temptations, Perhaps they never see: For I'm the chief of sinners, I freely own, like Paul, And if I am a Christian, I am the least of all.

But when I see young converts, How swift they travel on ; How shining their experience They witness like the sun-How bold they speak for Jesus, How dearly love his name ; Though these I do delight in, They put my soul to shame.

And now I have related What trials I have seen-Perhaps my brethren know, too, What sore temptations mean-I've told you all my conflicts, Believe me, for 'tis true ; And now you may inform me If so it's been with you.

Miscellaucous.

A GLASS OF WINE COST A KING HIS THRONE.

It will be recollected that Louis XVIIP resided at Mittau, a town of European Russia, where a secret negotiation for his return to France was opened by Lebrun, the consul, by means of a Russian lady of distinction.

This seemed to harden the little boy who stole the marble, for soon after he took the opportunity, when his mother was not at home, and took some cake from her cupboard. This also, was not discovered, which only seemed to harden him in his crime. Some time after this, he stole some money from his father, and spent it foolishly amongst his careless and wicked companions; but his father did not miss it either, so the little boy became more and more emboldened, and thought he could go on in this way whenever an opportunity presented itself, but, like all others who persist in sin, his sin found him out. He was sent as au errand boy to a milliner's shop, and, being a smart little fellow, became a favorite with his employer, and was frequently behind the counter ; but again evil thoughts came into his mind, and he robbed the good lady who had employed him, first, by taking small sums again and again without detection, but at last it was found out, and he was taken to prison, and sent far away to a strange land, and never saw his father and mother again. Who can describe the grief of those fond parents, when they found that their boy had been guilty of such a sinful and dishonorable thing as stealing ? But his father's grief and his mother's tears could not prevent the punishment of the boy-the law must take its course. Perhaps if he had not cheated his playmate of the marble, he would never have robbed his employer, and come to so bad an end. "Thou shalt not steal."

"PRAY, FATHER."

A little Indian girl, seven years old, was wasting away with consumption. She had heard the missionaries preach, had been a constant attendant upon the Sabbath-school, and for some months had given good evidence that she was a lamb of the Saviour's flock. Her father, a proud, hard man, had once professed to be a Christian, but for some time had been a backslider whose case was regarded as almost hopeless. The little girl had been failing rapidly for several days. One afternoon, when she seemed brighter, she begged that her father might be called. He came-Then looking up to him with her bright but sunken eyes, she said, " I want to be carried out of doors, father; I want to go to the brook once more. May I go ?" He could not refuse, and without saying a word, wrapped her up, folded her in his arms, and carried her out through the yard, across the green meadow, down to the little brook that wound its quiet way over sand and pebbles among the alders that skirted the meadow. He sat down in the shade, where the little girl could see the water and the bright play of the light and shade between the alders. She watched them a moment, and then turning her wasted face, she said earnestly, " Pray, father." "Oh, I can't, my darling," said he, hastily.

CITY OF GLASGOW LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY OF GLASGOW Incorporated by Act of Parliament. GOVERNOR-The Right Hono able the Earl of Glasgow. Subscribed Capital..... £600,000 Accumulated Fund 480,000 103,000 Annual Revenue.....

VARIOUS MODES OF ASSURING. Half Premium System, without debt or interest. Endowment Assurances. Partnership Assurances. Short Term Assurances.

THE "City of Glasgow Life Assurance Company" was established in 1838, by special Act of Parliament. It has now been conducted with much success for 25 years, which is attributable not only to the perfect security which it affords for the due fulfilment of every contract, but likewise to the Company's extensive and induential connexions

The Premiums are equitably graduated. The Profits are distributed with a due regard to the claims of all classes of Policy-holders. The last declaration of Bonus was made 20th January, 864, which is the close of the Company's financial year, when a Bonus at the rate of one and a half per cent. on the sums assured was declared for the past year. In place of the surplus being annually divided, the profits will in fu-ture be ascertained and allocated quinquennially. Policies participate from the date o their issue, but the Bonuses do not vest until they have been five years in existence. Rates of Assurance and all other information may be learned from the Agent, WILLIAM MACKAY, be learned from the Agent, Custom House Building. july 18 .- wpv ly

THE ROYAL INSURANCE COMPANY, 92 Lombard-street, London, and Royal Insurance ngs, Liverpool.

Chairman of the London Board .- SAMUEL BAKER, Esq. Chairman in Liver pool .- CHARLES TURNER, Esq. The Royal Insurance Company is one of the largest

Offices in the kingdom. At the Annual Meeting held in August 1859, the following highly satisfactory results were shown :--

FIRE DEPARTMENT. The most gratifying proof of the expansion of the business is exhibited in the one following fact-that the increase alone of the last three years exceeds the entire business of some of the existing and of many of the recently defunct fire insurance companies of this kingdom.

The Premiums for the year 1855 being......£130,060 While the Premiums for the year 1558 are.... 196,148 Showing an actual increase of. 66,088 r upwards of 50 per cent. in three years.

The recent returns of duty made by Government for this latter year (1053) again show the "Royal" as more than maintaining the ratio of its increase as stated in former years. Only one among the London insurance offices exhibits an advance to the extent of one-half the increase of the Company, while all the others respectively fall far short of the moiety of its advance

LIFE DEPARTMENT.

I'he amount of new Life Premiums received this year is by far the largest received in any similar period since the mmencement of the business, and must far exceed the average of amount received by the most successful offices in the kingdom. The number of policies issued in the year was 832, the sum assured £387,752 6s. 8d., and the premium £12,354 3s. 4d. These figures show a very rapid extension of business during the last ten years. THE RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCER.

This lady introduced to the consul the messenger of the king, to whom a safe return, in case of the failure of the project, was previously guaranteed. Louis offered France a constitution which reconciled all political and territorial interests. The offer was accepted, and his Majesty was to travel incognito from Mittau to reach the frontiers of France, to repair to the Tuileries, where the Director, promoted to the rank of Constable of France, was to meet him at the head of the troops, and proclaim the return of the King of France. A courier, ready to mount his horse, was waiting only for the despatches of Louis XVIII., when a circumstance delayed its departure. The Emperor of Russia, considering the state of confusion in which France was plunged, issued a ukase, forbidquences.

The Toronto Globe says :--all Europe; that he had a letter for the commandant himself to sleep again. His attendants ventured to address him, saying that it was a courier from France who was anxious to proceed, and that he had brought he might do so. "But," rejoined the commandant, who was by this time half asleep again, " there is an self, he could not go on ; to-morrow ! to-morrow !" Next morning the courier was admitted, and delivered to his excellency the letter of the Russian Ambassaof the commandant reminded him of what he had said concerning the ukase. " Father," said she, laying her little thin hand upon his arm, " Father, I'm going to heaven soon, and want to tell Jesus Christ, when I see him, that my father prays."

The strong man's head was bowed, and there went up from that brookside such a prayer of repentance, and confession, and supplication for forgiveness, as must have thrilled with joy the courts of heaven. He unclosed his eyes-the little one was dead ! Her freed spirit had fled on the wings of joy and faith to tell the Saviour, " My Father prays."
