Poetry.

I AM CHRIST'S AND CHRIST IS MINE. Long did I toil, and knew no earthly rest; Far did I rove, and found no certain home ; At last I sought them in His sheltering breast Who opes His arms, and bids the weary come. With Him I found a home, a rest divine; And I since then am His, and He is mine.

Yes, He is mine I and naught of earthly things, Not all the charms of pleasure, wealth or power, The fame of heroes, or the poup of kings, Could tempt me to forego His love an hour; Go, worthless world, I cry, with all that's thine ! Go! I my Saviour's am, and He is mine.

The good I have is from His stores supplied ; The ill is only what He deems the best; He for my friend, I'm rich with naught beside, And poor without Him, though of all possest. Changes may come; I take, or I resign ; Content while I am His, while He is mine.

Whate'er may change, in Him no change is seen ; A glorious sun, that wanes not nor declines ; Above the clouds and storms He walks screne, And sweetly on His people's darkness shines; All may depart ; I fret not nor repine, While I my Saviour's am, while He is mine.

He stays me falling, lifts me up when down, Reclaims me wandering, guards from every foe, Plants on my worthless brow the victor's crown, Which, in return, before His feet I throw, Grieved that I cannot better grace His shrine Who deigns to own mc His, as He is mine.

While here, alas! I know but half His love, But half discern Him, and but half adore ; But when I meet Him in the realms above, 1 hope to love Him better, praise Him more. And feel, and tell, amid the choir divine, How fully I am His, and He is mine.

THE FIRST AND LAST LITTLE TIFF: A STORY FOR YOUNG MARRIED PROPLE.

By Nelsee Brook,

A stranger in passing by Mr. and Mrs. Warnford' house would be like to remark that it looked the very abode of peace and comfort ; and, indeed, it was that. Loud dissensions and angry words were never hear within its walls. Peace and harmony prevailed there Husband, wife, and children studied to make ankeep the home happy. They obeyed the injunction ...... Be of one mind ; live in peace ;" and they realize the promise attached to those injunctions-" and th God of peace shall be with you." But I must tell you that once upon a time ther seemed to be a sad probability that the tide of domes tic happiness would not flow smoothly. The husband and wife had a "little tiff." Their bright sky | ther ! was overclouded; a little breach was made; but I au happy to say it soon healed up. You must know a about it :-- When Mr. and Mrs. Warnford were mar | dear." ried, among other good resolutions which they mad was this one-never to have any "little tiffs." Now, that is a very good resolution for a husband and wif to make, but sometimes it happens that they find i easier to make than to carry out. Cowper says that one. What should she do for dinner ? She had only cold meat in the house, and she could not give him that; they had had cold meat the day before. That morning at breakfast she planned to make a nice hash, and one of Harry's favorite puddings. But now the pudding was out of the question ; she might try to make the hash.

She turned to the fire and after a deal of trouble. with wood and small pieces of coal, she succeeded in making it burn brightly. But all the while the time was passing, O ! so quickly. Just to think that she, such a thoughtful, well-managing housewife, should be hurry-scurrying about between twelve and one o'clock to be preparing a dinner. She bitterly condemned her carelessness in sitting so absently at her work. It was for Harry she worried, all for Harry. She could have gone without dinner herself, but it was dreadful to think that he should come home on such a raw miserable day, expecting to find everything comfortable as usual, and then to see the place in an upset on account of dinner not being prepared. By half-past twelve the hash began to simmer. Edith went into the cellar to get some potatoes. It was such an unusual thing for her to be in a bustle, that the more she hurried the more she seemed to hinder herself. Just as the potatoes were ready to go on the fire, Harry's well-known knock came to the door. Edith immediately replied to it, but her step along the little hall was not so light as usual.

After his customary kiss, Harry said, " Is dinner | 11No. 23 Cortlandt street, N. Y., and No. 1 Strand, London. quite ready, Edith? I am sorry that I must run away again immediately."

As he accompanied her into the sitting-room he noticed that the cloth was not laid. " Harry," said Edith, "I was sitting at work and forgot all about an early dinner. I am sorry the dinner is not ready, but it won't be long."

" How long do you think, Edith ?" said Harry, in NETS. a slightly annoyed tone.

Edith felt dreadfully worried, and that variation in Harry's tone worried her still more. A rebellious feeling arose in her heart.

" It will be quite ready in a quarter-of-an-hour," " Then it will be one o'clock," said Harry, looking at his watch. "I fear I cannot stay to dinner to day. I shall be late for the train."

" Couldn't you go by the next one ?" said Edith. "I must go by the one I was directed to go by, he replied shortly. "If you remember, Edith, I told you that I should be home before one, and asked you to have an early dinner ready ; it is not often that I ask a favour of the kind."

Words of apology were at the tip of Edith's tongue, but she would not give them utterance. She felt terribly upset; and she thought it very unkind of Harry to speak in the way he did. Knowing that she had been absorbed in her work, and had forgotten the RADWAY'S READY RELIEF will quickly care the patime ; and knowing how sorry she was, and how she had been striving since twelve o'clock to get dinner ready, he might have made a little allowance. But stop; did he know all this? To be sure he did not. Should she tell him ? Her proudlittle spirit said, No. She forced back the tears that were springing to her eyes, and turned, with a caim face, to lay the cloth. Harry glanced at her; and he thought how indifferent she looked. How little able are we to judge one ano-

But we need not believe Cowper entirely, because, as he was not a Benedict, he cannot be taken as an au thority is such matters. Nevertheless, it cannot b denied that forbearance, patience, and self-denia must be exercised in a family in order to ensure peace. Whenever Mr. and Mrs. Warnford alluded to th affair which I am about to relate, it was always as, ** first and just little tiff."

They began life together in a very humble way, Harry Warnford was a clerk in a large warehouse it Liverpool. His salary was not very high, but hi prospects were good. Both he and his wife had . dread of getting into difficulties, so they commence solved to do without a servant for a time, and sh and Harry formed all sorts of economical plans,

There nover was such a clever little wife as Edith. she knew how to manage household affairs beautifully. ments of every description, even to a waistcoat " fifor any gentleman to wear," as she laughingly told Harry. He was amused at the idea of the thing, and But the demon, pride, likewise whispered to him, jocularly asked her what tailor she had been appren- "No; don't humble yourself." And he passed away ticed to? She only replied, " Ah, well, I know you from his home, feeling almost as miserable as it was are sceptical on the point, but you shall have a proor possible for him to feel. of my ability some day."

It was about three months after their marriage. Harry's birtiday was drawing near, and Edith resolved to present him with a nice, new waistcoat of her own making. Of course he was to know nothing about it until it was quite finished. Edith got an approved pattern, and set to work at her pleasant task. Harry had forgotten that his birthday was near, and Edith did not allude to it once. " No," said she to herself, " if he should not think of it at all, the surprise will be so gratifying to him. When he comes home to tes on Thursday evening I shall say, "Many happy returns of the day,' and then give him the waistcoat. Wou't he be astonished ?" And Edith | anxious that he should accompany her away to a knew that he would give an extra kiss for her kind. beautiful land. ness and thoughtfulness.

"There's a dear" was not said in his usual kind tone. It was said impatiently, and-as Edith thought -only to disguise his angry feelings.

She took up the dinner. The hash was not at all nice; it lacked seasoning; and the potatoes were about half done. Harry mumbled a grace; and after helping Edith in a jerky, uncourteous manner, proceeded with his own dinner. The potatoes he would not touch ; he took a little of the hash with some bread ; and then said a short, "Excuse me," to Edith -who kept her head bent down over her plate-and herself; and listened to her husband tramping hurriedly about upstairs.

Presently he came down. He was in the hall putting on his closk. She wondered whether he would come and kiss her and say good-bye, as was his wont. She waited in trembling suspense for the room door to open. He was now taking his umbrella from the stand. He opened the front door ; that was the first time he had done so after dinner since their marriage ; housekeeping very warily and judiciously. Edith re she had always accompanied him to the door and opened it for him. She listened ; he was really going ; the door slammed ; he was gone ! Edith started from her seat intending to call him ; but the proud spi-Although she could shine like a lady in the parlor, rit said, " No-don't humble yourself ;" and she sat down and burst into a passionate flood of tears. #### REMARKABLE PRESENTIMENT.

During the funeral services of a little boy aboutsix years of age, who died in our village a few days since, the minister related the following somewhat remarkable presentiment of the little boy :

Several weeks before his death, while his cheeks were yet ruddy, and his eyes bright with the lustre of health, he came down from his sleeping room in the morning, and told his mother he had seen the most beautiful lady he ever saw, and that she was very

A dose taken at bedtime will insure caim and pleasant sleep. This Remedy is truly a Family Medicine. It can be used with the positive assorance of doing good in all cases where pain or uncasiness exists.

It is the cheapest medicine in the world. One fifty cent bottle contains more medicine, as well as being a superior mrdicine, than one dollar's worth of the ordinary painkillers, limments, &c., of the day. One fifty-cent bottle of Radway's Ready Relief will do more good, and can be used for more purposes, than ten dollars expended for any other medicine in use.

grease from Carpets, Cloth, Flannel, &c. It makes Hard Water Soft, and may be used with good effect in Baths, as it immediately removes all condensed perspiration from the skin. A small quantity should also be used in the foot pan. It forms a cooling and cleansing wash for the head, by dissolving a teasphonful of the Crystal in a quarter of a pint of water ; and for cleansing the Mouth, Teeth, and Gums, it is quite a luxury, by adding a teaspoonful to a fabric. It contains nothing injurious to life. A child cating it by mistake, will not be injured.

If you have not used this Cleansing Crystal, lose no time in obtaining it. Nothing has ever been introduced into this country which has effected such a wonderful change upon Washing Days. It saves your time saves your clothes saves your money; and it does not injure the most delicate hands .- Pickstone's Cleansing Crystal makes washing a pleasure, reduces the cost of fuel, the wear and tear of labor, and improves every article washed. For Linens, and heavy washes, it cannot be surpassed ; for Laces, and fine fabrics, it is unequalled. It does not injure the color of Prints, but strengthens and improves them -- by its use they retain their original brilliancy. Flannels become white and soft like new. White things are much improved, and keep their color, even if put by for months. Thousands of Families made happy! No misory on a Washing Day, with PICKSTONE's Cleansing Crystal. In about three weeks the same vision was repeated, only with more clearnesss and beauty. The mother endeavored to persuade her little boy that he had been dreaming, but he dould not believe this, asserting that he really saw the beautiful lady, and that time, and renewed her earnest entreaty for the company of the little boy. He used the same childlike argument this time, asserting that his mother could not spare him.

In about three days from this last interview, the little boy was taken sick, and very soon died. He that unite us to the spirit world, and touchingly beautiful are the ministrations of pure spirits to the vision of little children, --- Lockport Journal.
