I laid my burden at Thy feet, My head upon thy tender breast, Thy name of love I did repeat, And Thou didst understand the rest; All that I needed, all and more, Thy presence did to me restore.

I wept the sorrow of my heart, And Thou mine eyes didst gently dry, I sighed through fear that we must part, But thou didst whisper, "Ever nigh;" It was enough, I asked no more, Thy voice did all my life restore.

And now that life to Thee I'll give With calmer trust and brighter joy, In Thee, and for Thee, I will live, To do Thy will my sole employ; Thus most secure to part no more, With that sweet joy thou didst restore.

ARTHUR MONROE AND THE INDIANS. BY EMMA RAYMOND.

"A Persian, humble servant of the sun, Who, though devont, yet bigotry had none, Hearing a lawyer, grave in his address, With adjurations every word impress, Supposed the man a bishop, or at least-God's name so much upon his lips -a priest; Bowed at the close with all his graceful airs, And begged an interest in his frequent prayers."
Cowper.

"You worship the same Great Spirit that we do. You believe in a future state which is all happiness them of the beautiful hunting grounds to which they shall go when they die, and they believe what their fathers have said. But this one thing White Deer has noticed when among his white brothers. Many of them call the Great Spirit to witness what they say and do, and mention His name in a careless and think of Him without awe."

lishman to whom the Indian was addressing himself, as he answerd, "But all white men do not speak of God, or the Great Spirit, as you call Him, in this manner. Many of my countrymen love and honour Him. With them His name is above every name, and in past times some have even suffered cruel deaths rather than blaspheme that name. Still, I admit that it is often done, and by great numbers of my

How was it that the White Deer heard Lieutenant Munroe say little, as he thought he saw a chance of life before many things this morning contrary to his present him White Deer cast a stern look upon the young soldier as he said the last words, and Lieutenant Munroe felt confused and conscience stricken underneath the fized gaze of this son of the forest, as he remembered his frequent expressions of "Good God!" "Mon the soul." Dieu!" and others similar, -all phrases which he had been so accustomed to in polite society, that they now fell from his lips with scarcely any meaning attached to them. He knew, now that the Indian recalled them to his mind, that they were wrong, and doubly wrong in one who knew that the name of the Most High was "holy," "glorious," and not to be "taken in vain." Arthur Munroe had received a christian training in his youth. He was English by birth though descended from a Scottish family, and, on arriving at a suitable age, had chosen the army as his profession. Probably his predilection for arms arose from the fact that there had been soldiers in his family as far back as the conquest, and the tales of | Said were floating in his mind. "Fear not them the former De Mounroes had excited his valour, and kindled somewhat of a martial spirit in him. Before the shores of Lake Winnipeg. Here, in the absence swim as he laced death, " But this God will be our of all active duties, he spent much of his time in boating, fishing, and hunting. He had formed the acquaintance of an old Cree Indian, who had learned to as the men seemed to linger for his order. "Shoot speak English, and who had become almost English Let the dog of a Christian die too." in his habits. Lieutenant Munroe, on leaving the that day. thing wrong about it. It was more from a want of thought than anything else. I know it is wrong, and very wicked. I admit it."

"Red men, Lieutenant Munroe, would be afraid to speak of the Great Spirit in such terms. They would fear He would strike them dead. White Deer would not condemn his white brothers, or speak unkindly of them, but he does not think that they honor that Great Spirit, which is their God and ours, as much as their red brothers do."

"We do, White Deer, we do," hurriedly interposed young Munroe, feeling ashamed the while that his conduct had conveyed such an impression of his countrymen's religious profession. "Many and many a white man has, as I said just now, paid for his religion with his life. I know some at home in England who would sooner walk into the fire than dishonor or blaspheme God's name."

white children really serve and fear him?" "Yes, White Deer, very many-more indeed than you can imagine;" and as Lieutenant Munroe spoke, his eyes fell on the lake before him, glistening with sunset hues, and he thought of that "great multitude, which no man can number," which shall by-and-bye stand round the great white throne, and sing praises unto our God and his name forever. He remembered, too, that only those who hallow His name on earth can expect to sing endless praises to that name in heaven, or join that glorious company.

It was not the first time that a white man was led to think through the questions and suggestions of a benighted son of heathenism, one who "saw men as trees walking."

We must change the scene. It was the summer of 1857, and the fearful tidings of the Indian mutiny were wringing the hearts of the entire nation. People grew pale with horror, and trembled as they read one account after another of the fearful sufferings, inflicted on all who bore the English name. Those who had relatives in India trembled for their lives, and, if they knew the power of the Heavenly Keeper, committed them into His guardian care. Lieutenant Munroe was in India with his regiment. He had returned home for a short time, and on the outbreak of the mutiny had proceeded to the East. He was not, and joy. So do red men. Their fathers have told however, the thoughtless, godless youth of former times. One train of thought after another, and the "still small voice" of the Spirit had led bim into "the way of peace." When he left his home for Indian service he felt that he was not afraid to meet the sabres of the bloodthirsty Sepoys, if need be.

He had not long to do his duty beneath an Indian sen was one of the squares of the city of Delhi. A flush passed over the features of the young Eng. | Among them was Lieutenant Munroe, and a native servant to whom he had become much attached. Of course, the fact that the poor fellow served an Englishman was sufficient to ensure his death. As he was being led out to face the volley of the Sepoy executioners a little Bengalese New Testament fell out from beneath his girdle. One of the Sepoys caught it up, and opened it.

"Ah! you worship the Englishman's God, do you! Dog! Christian dog! you deserve to die."

"Now," interposed the leader of the Sepoys, "we will promise you your life and liberty if you will de-

For a moment Said Palkee seemed to waver, then his face beamed with another kind of expression, and

"You offer me my life if I will deny the glorious name of my God. I cannot do it. I will not do it, so

Before he had quite finished the words a report was heard, and Said Palkee fell dead. One of the Sepoys stuck the point of his bayonet into the little Testament, and tossed it contemptuously away. It was now Lieutenant Munroe's turn.

Did he quail at the prospect before him? No. The words of encouragement which he had quoted to which can kill the body, and after that have no more that they can do. Fear Him rather who is able to he had been long in the army, he was sent out with kill both soul and body." And then came the words, his regiment to one of the frontier Canadian forts, on dreamily enough it is true, for his brain began to God for ever and ever, even unto death."

"What are you waiting for ?" shouted the leader

THE ROYAL INSURANCE COMPANY, 92 Lombard-street, London, and Royal Insurance build ngs, Liverpool. Chairman of the London Board .- SAMUEL BAKER, Esq. Chairman in Liverpool.—Charles Tunner, Esq. The Royal Insurance Company is one of the largest Offices in the kingdom.
At the Annual Meeting held in August 1859, the following highly satisfactory results were shown :---FIRE DEPARTMENT. The most gratifying proof of the expansion of the business is exhibited in the one following fact—that the increase alone of the last three years exceeds the entire business of some of the existing and of many of the recently defunct fire insurance companies of this kingdom.

The Premiums for the year 1855 being.....£130,060

While the Premiums for the year 1558 are.... 196,148 Showing an actual increase of 66,088 or upwards of 50 per cent, in three years. The recent returns of duty made by Government for this latter year (1858) again show the "Royal" as more than maintaining the ratio of its increase as stated in former years. Only one among the London insurance offices exhibits an advance to the extent of one-half the increase of the Company, while all the others respectively fall far short of the moiety of its advance.

LIFE DEPARTMENT. The amount of new Life Premiums received this year is nent of the business, and must far exceed the average of amount received by the most successful offices in the kingdom. The number of policies issued in the year was 822, the sum assured £387,752 6s. 8d., and the premium £12,354 3s. 4d. These figures show a very rapid extension of business during the last ten years. CAUTION! CAUTION! CAUTION!

THE Proprietor of PICKSTONE'S WASHING AND

tion the public against spurious imitations of his highly celebrated Washing Crystal, which is the most harmless compound extant. It is free from Lime, Vitriol, and all other deadly mixtures so common to be found amongst washing compounds. Try Pickstone's Washing Crystal, if you want ease, comfort, and economy in washing, which washes every thing, and has rapid sale.

It will be found invaluable for the following domestic purposes, viz .: -- It washes all fine things, such as Muslin, Lace, Crotchet Work, Baby Linen, &c.; cleaning Sponges, Combs, and Brushes; removing stains from the hands, and grease from Carpets, Cloth, Flannel, &c. It makes Hard Water Soft, and may be used with good effect in Baths, as nediately removes all condensed perspiration from the skin. A small quantity should also be used in the foot pan. It forms a cooling and cleansing wash for the head, by dissolving a teasphonful of the Crystal in a quarter of a pint of water; and for cleansing the Mouth, Teeth, and Gums, it is quite a luxury, by adding a teaspoonful to a tumbler of water. It renders linen beautifully white, and unlike other preparations, at the same time preserves the fabric. It contains nothing injurious to life. A child eating it by mistake, will not be injured. If you have not used this Cleansing Crystal, lose no time in obtaining it. Nothing has ever been introduced into this country which has effected such a wonderful change upon Washing Days. It saves your time—saves your clothes—saves your money; and it does not injure the most delicate hands. Pickstone's Cleansing Crystal makes washing a pleasure, reduces the cost of fuel, the wear and tear of labor, and improves every article washed. For Lanens, and heavy washes, it cannot be surpassed; for Laces, and fine fabrics, it is unequalled. It does not injure the color of Prints, but strengthens and improves them-by its use they retain their original brilliancy. Flan-nels become white and soft like new. White things are much improved, and keep their color, even if put by for months. Thousands of Families made happy! No misery on a Washing Day, with Pickstone's Cleansing Crystal.
