Though the men who ought to smile,

Mock and taunt thee for a while. Do thy little, never fear While thy Saviour standeth near; Let the world its javelins throw, On thy way undaunted go.

Do thy little; God has made Million leaves for forest shade ; Smallest stars their glory bring-God employeth everything.

Do thy little; and when thou Feelest on thy pallid brow, Ere has fled the vital breath, Cold and damp the sweat of death-

Then the little thou hast done-Little battles thou hast won, Little masteries achieved, Little wants with care relieved, Little words in love expressed, Little wrongs at once confessed, Little favors kindly done, Little toils thou didst not shun, Little graces meekly worn, Little slights with patience borne-These shall crown the pillowed head, Holy light upon thee shed;

LILY'S PRAYER

My dear children, I am now about to tell you a short story, and perhaps you will like it all the better And, besides, I can't understand it." when you hear that it is true.

but I will call her Lily. And indeed Lily is no bad name to give her; for now she is clothed in robes all study surveying, and I am going to study it, whether pure and spotless, like the snowy petals which that it will ever be of any use to me or not. And, as fo sweet flower bears, and her heart, once sinful, is now washed clean and white, cleaner and whiter than any earthly lily could be.

"The next day, I questioned her upon the sulject, Child's World. when she told me of your request. And she never, from this time, torgot to offer up that prayer, in the PATIENCE is a great virtue, but it it is of a very reand manner. She began to strive against her evil mended, though few like the process of its ripening. passions, to conquer her wilful inclinations, and to be we knew that we must lose her. She knew it also, and, though sorry to leave us, rejoiced that she was going home."

She grew worse and worse, until at length the day came when she must die; and as she felt that her breath was failing, and her sight beginning to grow dim, she asked to speak with her young brothers. Soon they were standing beside her; and, looking earnestly at them, she cried, 'Dear brothers, I am going to die; but first I want to make you promise me that you will often, when I am gone, use this little prayer, 'O God, for Christ's sake, give me thy Holy Spirit !'

"The boys promised, and she continued, 'When I began to use that prayer myself, my heart was cold and hard. I did not love my Saviour; I did not care to think of heaven; but I have gone on praying it every day, and oh, see how it has been answered. I do love Jesus now. I long to go up where He is. God has given me his doly Spirit, and I am not afraid to die, for death will only lead me to Him."

You may fancy how thankful the kind gentleman felt, when he heard how abundantly God had blessed what he had done. And now, dear child, whoever you may be, reading this true story, let me ask you to take that little prayer for your own, and often, often breathe it in your heart .- Children's Friend.

TWO WAYS AND TWO ENDS.

Two boys, whom I shall call James and Charles, occupied the same desk at school and recited in the same class. First, they studied book-keeping. Onday James said to Charles: "Charley, now what's the use of this book-keeping? What good will thi everlasting 'debit' and 'credit' system do me? don't see any use in it. Come let us play ti-tat-to. "Neither do I see any use in it," answered Charles. "It's dry business, I own, these debits and credit and long columns of figures; but my father wishe me to study bookeeping, and if there was not some use in it I know he would not wish me to pursue it.

So 'wet' or 'dry,' I am gaing to study book-keeping. Another day their lesson was in navigation, an James getting tired of study, began to mark out game on the slate, and said: "Come, Charley, what' the use of this navigation? I know I shan't ever b a sailor; and all this about the chart and compas and chronometer-what good will it do me? I know I can't ever understand it, and if I could I can't se what use I shall ever have for it. I'd rather play to tat-to."

"I know it's dry study," Charles replied, " and don't see any use it will ever be to me, for I mean t be a landsmen and not a sailor. But my father tol me to study it, and you may be sure I'll mind him for he would not tell me to study it if it were of no use. I wont play ti-tat-to till I get my lesson."

After that they were studying surveying, and James began again to mark on his slate, saying: "Oh dear, I am tired of these links and chains and squares and triangles. What use will this ever be to me?

"I know," replied Charles, " it is a hard study, I cannot tell you the real name of this little girl, and I don't see what use it will ever be to me. Bu my father knows more than I do, and he set me t understanding it, I never saw any study I could no understand if I put my mind to it. I should b ashamed to be conquered by links and chains, or any I did not know the little girl myself, but a gentle- thing else I find in surveying. You don't catch me playing ti-tat-to till my lesson is learned."

Thus sat these two boys side by side. The onstudied and the other played. The one always have his lesson well-learned; the other missed-or, if h. ing them to give what help they can, towards getting | could do it, he would deceive his teacher by looking Bibles for those poor people, and teachers to explain in his book at recitation. ngs, Liverpool. Chairman of the London Board .- SAMUEL BAKER, Esq. Chairman in Liverpool .- Charles Turner, Esq. The Royal Insurance Company is one of the largest Offices in the kingdom. At the Annual Meeting held in August 1859, the following ighly satisfactory results were shown :--FIRE DEPARTMENT.

The most gratifying proof of the expansion of the business is exhibited in the one following fact—that the increase alone of the last three years exceeds the entire business of some of the existing and of many of the recently defunct fire insurance companies of this kingdom. The Premiums for the year 1855 being.....£130,060 While the Premiums for the year 1558 are 196,148

Showing an actual increase of. r upwards of 50 per cent. in three years. The recent returns of duty made by Government for this atter year (1858) again show the "Royal" as more than maintaining the ratio of its increase as stated in former years. Only one among the London insurance offices exhibits an advance to the extent of one-half the increase of the Company, while all the others respectively fall far short of the moiety of its advance.

LIFE DEPARTMENT. The amount of new Life Premiums received this year is by far the largest received in any similar period since the mmencement of the business, and must far exceed the average of amount received by the most successful offices in the kingdom. The number of policies issued in the year was 832, the sum assured £387,752 6s. 8d., and the premium £12,854 3s. 4d. These figures show a very rapid extension of business during the last ten years. Thus :-Years. No. of Policies. Sums Assured. New Premiums #48,764 17 0 . **
