while on this subject he would remark that his hon. friend the Board of Works had turned from his previous colleagues in the niche of time, and if that gentleman wished to keep his credit for shrewdness he'd jump again pretty soon. One ground of complaint which he had against the Government was their sending home a useless, frivolous delegation to England, whereby the only Crown offices became an absentee, and by his absence had jeopardized $66 .-000 of the public money. (Here some difference arose between Messrs. McLellan and Fraser with reference to dismissals, Mr. McL. contending that the present was a question far beyond the level of ed up new points: -except in relation to the Govlocal politics, Tory or Liberal.) Mr. McL. here read ernor's salary question. an extract from what was the "Dorchester Scheme," published in Journal, whereby Dorchester was to become the eye of British America. This scheme of course was far transcending that of Quebec-it was perfect in all its points. (Mr. Smith says-"I know who wrote that-it was got up for the occasion."; The next point to which he was to allude was the Minute of Council; the style of that Minute was entirely new to him, some "hidden hand" must have been at work; but one thing was certain it was not "the style" for the people of this Province. The seven wise men who signed that document wished to show | ple "that fellow Cardwell" that they knew quite as much as he did, that they were wise indeed. These were the men who were to guide safely the ship of state: but it lurched to leeward and starboard, one had been pitched out on one side and one another, and he thought it possible the light at far off Octawa would finally attract him home. JAMAICA. - Late advices from Jamaica state that the examination into the particulars of the late revolt has already included the testimony of over six hundred witnesses, including Governor Eyre himself, and there were yet a thousand to examine. The evidence was beginning to bear more strongly against Governor Eyre in regard to the severe measures taken by him to suppress the outbreak, and it was thought probable that the result of the investigation would at least be fatal to his reputation.
