COME HOME, FATHER.

Father, dear father, come home with me now ! The clock in the steeple strikes one ; As soon as your day's work was done. Our fire has gone out-our house is all dark-And mother's been watching since tea, With poor brother Benny, so sick, in her arms, And no one to help her but me. Come home ! come home ! come home ! Please, father, dear father, come home !

Father, dear father, come home with me now ! The clock in the steeple strikes two; The night has grown colder-and Benny is worse But he has been calling for you. Indeed he is worse-Ma says he will die, Perhaps before morning shall dawn! And this is the message she sent me to bring-Come quickly, or he will be gone !

Father, dear father, come home with me new ! The clock in the steeple strikes three; The house is so lonely-the hours are so long For poor weeping mother and me !-Yes, we are alone-poor Benny is dead ! And gone with the angels of light; And these were the very last words that he said : "I want to kiss papa 'good night !" Come home! come home! come home! Please, father, dear father, come home!

Hear the sweet voice of the child, Which the night-winds repeat as they roam; O! who could resist this most plaintive of prayers, Please, father, dear father, come home! H. C. Work.

beckoned me to sit beside her. Her look, so full of to all eternity. tender sorrow, is present to me now. I would not sit, but continued to stand sullenly beside her. 'Alfred, my dear son,' said she, ' have you lost all love for your mother?' I did not reply. 'I fear you ver know it. I believed myself to be her murderer. I fell on the bed beside her. I could not weep. My heart burned in my bosom, and my brain seemed to be on fire. My sister threw her arms around me and wept in silence. Suddenly we saw a slight motion of my mother's hand ; her eyes unclosed. She had recovered consciousness, but not speech. She looked / dec 7. You said you were coming right home from the shop at me and moved her lips; but I could not understand her words. 'Mother, mother, I shrieked, 'say only that you forgive me.' She could not say it with her lips, but her hand pressed mine. She smiled upon me, and lifting her thin white hands, clasped mine between them, and cast her eyes upwards. She moved her lips in prayer; and thus she died, " I remained on my knees by that dear form till my gentle sister removed me. She comforted me, for she knew my heart was loaded with sorrow, heavier than grief for the loss af a mother ; it was a load of sorrow for sin. The joy of youth had left me forever. My son, the suffering such memories awaken must continue as long as life."

My father ceased speaking, and buried his face in his hands. He saw the impression this parrative made on me, and I have never forgotten it. Boys who spurn a mother's control, who are ashamed to own you are wrong, who think it manly to resist her authority or yield to her influence, beware! Lay not up for yourselves bitter memories in future years. Dear children, let this awful tale of sin and remorse sink deep into your hearts, and whenever you find rebellious thoughts against parental authority arise, call this sad case to mind, and yield instantly.

While there may be but few cases that result like this in sudden death, no doubt thousands of parents die every year with hearts broken over disobedient children. Many a father's and mother's chamber is bedewed with tears over such, that the world knows nothing of. Remember, the time is coming when you will have to account for every act of disobedience. If you ever feel inclined to disobey your parents, read again the narrative of this ungrateful son, and think of it till you feel all rebellious passions subdued within you.

Never stop to question any command of your parents, unless they command you to break God's law, and but few parents are so wicked as to do that. If you will resolve now to obey all the commands, of parents and magistrates, and keep the laws of the land as well as the laws of God, you will through the "My mother, being feeble in health, sat down and grace of God, live happy and die happy, and be happy have,' she continued, 'and may God help you to see your own heart, and me to do my duty.' She then talked to me of my misdeeds-of the ruinous consequences of the course I was pursuing. By tears, entreaties, and prayers, she tried to make an impression on me. She placed before me the lives and examples of good men, and sought to stimulate my ambition. I was moved, but too proud to show it, and remained standing in dogged silence beside her. I thought, What will my companions say if, after all my boastting, I yield at last to be led by a woman?

It forms a cooling and cleansing wash for the head, by dissolving a teaspnonful of the Crystal in a quarter of a pint of water; and for cleansing the Mouth, Teeth, and Gums, it is quite a luxury, by adding a teaspoonful to a tumbler of water. It renders linen beautifully white, and unlike other preparations, at the same time preserves the fabric. It contains nothing injurious to life. A child eat-ing it by mistake, will not be injured.

"What agony was visible on my mother's face, when she saw that all she said and suffered failed to move me! She rose to go home, and I followed at a distance. She spoke no more till we reached our own door. 'It is school-time now,' said she. 'Go, my son; and once more let me beseech you to think upon what I have said.' 'I shan't go to school,' said I. She looked astonished at my boldness, but replied firmly, 'Certainly you will go, Alfred ; I command you.' 'I will not,' said I, with a tone of defiance. "One of two things you must do, Alfred : either go to school this morning, or I will lock you in your room, and keep you there until you are ready to promise obedience in future.' 'I dare you to do it,' said I. 'You can't get me up stairs.' 'Alfred, choose now,' said my mother as she laid her hand on my arm. She trembled violently, and was deadly pale. '1 you touch me, I will kick you,' said I, in a terrible rage. God knows I knew what I said. 'Will you go, Alfred ?' ' No,' I replied, but quailed before her eyes. 'Then follow me,' she said, as she grasped my arm firmly. I raised my foot-Oh, my son, hear me -and kicked my sainted mother ! How my head reels as the torrent of memory rushes over me.] kicked my mother, a feeble woman. She staggered back a few steps, and leaned against the wall. She did not look at me. I saw her heart beat against her breast. 'Oh, heavenly Father,' she cried, 'forgive him, for he knows not what he has done.'

"The gardener just then passed the door, and seeing my mother pale and almost unable to support herself, he stopped. She beckoned him in. 'Take this boy up stairs, and lock him in his own room," said she, and turned from me. Looking back as she was entering her room, she gave me such a look ; it will for ever follow me. It was a look of agony mingled with the intensest love ; it was the last unutterable pang from a heart that was broken. In a moment I found myself a prisoner in my own room. thought for a moment I would fling myself from the window, and dash out my brains; but I was afraid to die. I was not penitent. At times my heart was subdued, but my pride rose in an instant, and bade me not yield. The pale face of my mother haunted me. I threw myself on the bed and fell asleep. I awoke at midnight, stiffened by the damp night air and terrified with frightful dreams. I would have sought my mother at that moment, but my door was fast. With the daylight my terrors were dissipated. it. I thought the day would never end.

"Just at twilight I heard a light footstep approach "Will Merchant and Frank Bennnet have been calered, his elbows stiff, and only a few rags covered his body. More than this, he was a wicked man; blood and crime stained his memory. Friends he had none, and he had nothing to hope for in this world or the

Well, a Bible wound its way around the mountain passes, and strayed to that far-off village, and somebody sat by the roadside reading it to somebody else; and the old cripple, begging that way, halted, and heard the words. He listened, and listened. It was the story of the Saviour's love. He opened his ears ; he opened his mind ; he opened his conscience ; he opened his heart; and he found out that sombody cared for him. There was one who could lift him from his sin and guilt to forgiveness and peace ; and, like the blind Bartimeus, who sat by the roadside when Jesus passed by, he cried mightily, " Jesus, have mercy on me !"

There was nobody in the village that would hearken to the old man's cries, nobody who pitied him. But there was somebody on high who did. The Lord Jesus, who came to save the guilty, heard his cries. He answered them, and sent-what do you suppose? He sent him pardon. Pardon came down into the wicked old man's bosom ; with pardon, love and hope ; and perhaps his was the only soul in all that place that had the peace arising from a sense of sins forgiven. It is wonderful that this robber cripple should have gained this blessing, but God is a King, and dispenses his blessings as He sees fit.

By-and-by one of our missionaries, following the track of his Bible, heard about this man, and he hasened to visit him. He found him on the ground, the picture of poverty, but with such a face! The missionary instantly saw there was heaven in it. Beside him was a Bible, and that explained all. The old man never saw a missionary before. He never heard a sermon, never attended a prayer meeting. He could not even read when he first heard the Bible read by the roadside. He could read now. He had learned by great labor to read.

The missionary came to comfort and instruct the old man; but the old man comforted the missionary and taught him a new lesson in the wonders of God's mercy and grace. And as his case touched the missionary's heart, so it must touch other hearts; for in fact the Bible is such a common book among us, we forget what a wonerful book it is. It is only when we see its light shining in a dark place that we reaize the cheering fact that it contains the light of the world. Everything else is darkness, or only a reflection of this light; and we are often so much occupied with other good books, that we forget the Bible is the fountain-head of truth. The others are only rills that flow from it.

August 11 .- 1y. THE ROYAL INSURANCE COMPANY, 92

Lombard-street, London, and Royal Insurance buildngs, Liverpool. Chairman of the London Board.—SAMUEL BAKER, Esq. Chairman in Liverpool.—CHARLES TURNER, Esq. The Royal Insurance Company is one of the largest Offices in the kingdom

At the Annual Meeting held in August 1859, the following highly satisfactory results were shown :--FIRE DEPARTMENT.

The most gratifying proof of the expansion of the business is exhibited in the one following fact-that the increase alone of the last three years exceeds the entire business of some of the existing and of many of the recently defunct fire insurance companies of this kingdom. The Premiums for the year 1855 being......£180,060 While the Premiums for the year 1558 are 196,148 Showing an actual increase of 66,088 or upwards of 50 per cent. in three years. The recent returns of duty made by Government for this latter year (1858) again show the "Royal" as more than maintaining the ratio of its increase as stated in former years. Only one among the London insurance offices exhibits an advance to the extent of one-half the increase of the Company, while all the others respectively fall far short of the moiety of its advance.

LIFE DEPARTMENT. The amount of new Life Premiums received this year is by far the largest received in any similar period since the commencement of the business, and must far exceed the average of amount received by the most successful offices in the kingdom. The number of policies issued in the year was 832, the sum assured £387,752 6s. 8d., and the premium £12,354 3s. 4d. These figures show a very rapid extension of business during the last ten years.
