THE HARD WAY. AN ADDRESS TO CHILDREN.

BY THE REV. RICHARD NEWTON, D.D.

"The way of transgressors is hard."-Prov. xiii. 15. How many different ways there are in the world for people to walk in! Some of them are rough ways, and others are smooth. Some are crooked ways, and others are straight. Some are broad, and others are narrow. Some are steep, and others are level. Some are pleasant, and others are unpleasant. Some are easy ways to walk in, while others are hard.

Our text tells us about the hard way. Solomon says, "The way of transgressors is hard." What does the word transgressor mean? It means, literally, one who walks over.

Suppose your school should go out into the country, some fine summer day, to have a pic-nic in the woods. It is a beautiful, shady place to which you go, with a nice, smooth, velvet lawn spread out under the branches of the trees. But there is one part of the woods where the ground is low and marshy. At a little distance from this spot there have been some stakes driven into the ground, with a cord stretched along from one to another. When you all the woods and amuse yourselves, your superintendent speaks a few words to the scholars. He tells you and she is annoying." that he hopes you will have a nice time, and enjoy yourselves very much. But there is one special thing he has to say. These are his words-"You see those stakes, and the line stretched across them. No scholar here must cross that line. Under no circumstances whatever must any of you go over that line. This is the law for the day. You all hear it. You all understand it. You all promise to mind it. Then you are dismissed to play."

Everything goes on pleasantly for a while. But by-and-by several of the boys are playing down by the stakes. Presently one of them sees a tree with nice apples on it, a little distance beyond the forbidden line. "Look at those ripe apples," says he; "come on, boys, let's go and get some."

"No," says one of the the other boys, "don't you see there's the line which the superintendent said we musn't go over."

"I should like to know what harm it's going to do, watched him narrowly. I saw him steal back into just to go over a few steps to get some nice apples. the dining-room after it was deserted, and take ano-Besides, the superintendent won't know anything about it." And so, over he goes.

Now, what is that boy when he goes over that line? He is a transgressor. He walks over the line which he was told not to walk over. So Gou's laws are the boy's head was not strong; he had taken too much, lines which he has set up to shew us where we must not go: when we break those laws we walk over God's lines. That makes us sinners, or transgressors; for the apostle says, "Sin is the transgression of the law;" that means, it is walking over the line that God has set up for us. And in our text, Solomon says, that "The way of transgressors (or of not pause on "perhaps." I was cold, barsh, cruel those who walk over these lines) is hard."

There are three things about the transgressor's way which make it hard. The first of these is the GUIDE he has to follow.

When we walk in the way of sin or transgression, our guide is Satan. You know the Bible tells us of all those who do not love and serve God, that Satan "worketh or ruleth in their hearts," (Eph. n. 2), and that they are "led captive by him at his will." (2 Tim. n. 26.) They are in his power. He is their guide or leader. So long as they are in the transgressor's way, they can't get away from him, but are obliged to follow him as their guide. And to have such a guide must make that way a hard way. Let me try to show you how.

Suppose we were in Switzerland, and wanted to go to the top of Mont Blanc. That is a very dangerous mountain to go up. Nobody can get up without a guide. The way is very hard to find. In some pla- chair. I seized it. It was a farewell letter from ces you have to walk over mountains of ice. At times the only path is just like a shelf of ice, not they received this. Leaving my mother in my care, broader than your two hands, while at the side is a my father followed him; but he was delayed on the dreadful gulf, or chasm, hundreds of feet deep. Only way, and ere he arrived in that city John had sailed think of a wall of ice higher toan the top of a church as a common sailor in a vessel bound for India. Once steeple, and about a foot wide; an then think of he wrote to my mother, only once. After a wild cawalking along the top of that wail, with no railing on reer of drunkenness, he fell from the masthead and one side, and nothing to hold on to on the other. If you stumble or slip, down you plunge and are dashed to pieces. Why, it makes the head grow cizzy, and the blood run cold just to think about it. This shows you why the travellers up the mountain need a guide. And it isn't any guide you would be willing to take. You want to be sure that your guide is intelligent, or that he knows the way well himself. You want to be sure that he is honest and faithful, so that he won't lead you into any unnecessary danger. And you want to be sure that he is strong and powerful, so that if you get faint on the way, and need assistance, he can help you. Sometimes in going over those dangerous passes, the guide ties a rope around the body of the traveller, and then fastens it to his own body, so that if the traveller should slip, he can | ing and kubber Hose. stop him from falling; and many a one has been saved in this way. And suppose, now, that in the valley of Chamouni, at the foot of Mont Blanc, from which travellers of this famous Plaster, being in simple truth what is here start to go up the mountain, there was a very wicked man acting as guide. He is so wicked that he unneous and perfect ease is obtained; from its extraordinary dertakes to guide travellers up the mountain on purpose to destroy them. None who follow his guidance Enlarged Great Toe Joints, Warts, or execrescences of any ever get safe down again. He either leads them to some slippery path, where they are sure to fall; or other Solvent or Plaster, as by its marvellous chemical virtue it at once removes all pain, and causes the Corn to become dead and detached from the surrounding flesh, thus performing a painless and radical cure." For sale by ROBINSON BROS., when they reach the middle of one of those high, narrow, icy paths, along the edge of a dreadful precipice, he gives them a push, and down they go to instant

Now, if you had to travel along such a mountainpath, with such a guide to lead you, I want to know if you would not think that that was a hard way to travel? Certainly you would. Well, Satan is just lets: Ladies' and Children's White and Drab Kibbed Hosiery; Ladies' Bailriggon Hose (Clocked); Men's Ribbed Meriuo Half Hose; Chenille and Zephyr Hair Nets; Hair Rolls; Lace Falls; French Corsets; Men's White Dress such a guide. His only object in guiding people is to lead them to destruction. Our journey through We must have a guide. There are only two guides to choose between--Jesus is one; Satan is the other.

dom's ways; and "her ways are ways of pleasantness, and all her paths are peace." If we take Satan for our guide he will lead us " in the way of transgressors;" and we shall find that that is a hard way. See, there is Judas Iscariot. He was one of the twelve apostles chosen by our Saviour, to be with him while he was on earth. But, though he was with Jesus, he did not take him for his guide. He allowed Satan to guide him. Judas was made treasurer of the company or society of the apostles. He kept the bag in which the money was put. Satan tempted him to steal some of that money. This was leading him into a slippery p th. He didn't get as much money as he wanted. Then Satan put into his mind the horrible thought of betraying his Master, and selling him to his enemies for thirty pieces of silver, or about £3-the price in those days of a common slave. Thus Satan led Judas to one of those narrow paths along the edge of an awful precipice. As soon as he had betrayed his Master, he tempted him to go and hang himself. When he did this, Satan pushed him off from that dangerous path, and plunged him into everlasting destruction. And this is what he tries to do to all transgressors who follow his guidance. "The way of transgressors is hard." It is hard, in the first place, because of the guide which those who walk in it must follow. (To be Continued,)

LOST FOR WANT OF LOVE.

One lovely summer aftornoon, Mrs. Eversleigh sauntered out to the lawn in front of the house, and stood enjoying the pleasant sights and sounds which in general gather round a country house, especially when situated, as Eversleigh Hall is, on an eminence, in the midst of a finely wooded park, Mrs. Eversleigh stood with her back to an open glass door, which led into a large pleasant room, occupied as a school-room by her two daughters, Katherine and Mabel. An angry voice from the school-room roused her unpleasantly from her musing.

As she turned round, Katherine said, "Mabel, you are the most tiresome, rude girl I ever knew or heard alone of the last three years exceeds the entire business of some of the existing and of many of the recently defunct of. I'll be obliged to go to my room again for quiet." "Will you?" said Mabel, saucily, and then she added in a graver tone, "but forgive me, Kate, and don't go away; I'll be as quiet as a mouse."

"I know you won't. Besides I've no right to endure your impertinent teasing, so I don't see why I maintaining the ratio of its increase as stated in former years. Only one among the London insurance offices exhibits an should forgive you." A reproachful "Katherine!" from her mother came in to her ear then, making her turn with a reddening cheek. Mabel was standing beside her, and Mrs. Eversleigh, going up to them, asked the cause of the dispute. Katherine answered, Mabel told me it was eleven o'clock when it was average of amount received by the most successful offices twelve, and so caused this letter to be late." "Inget out there, before you scatter to ramble through tentionally?" "On-well, no. But then she teased 212,854 3s. 4d. These figures show a very rapid extension me, and disturbed me so, afterwards. Really, mamsaid, "As the letter is too late for to-day's post, Kath-while I tell you a sad event of my girlhood." They obeyed readily, and Mrs. Eversleigh, sitting beside them and shielding her eyes with her hand, said, "It down stairs, though immediately sorry for what I had said. I did not see John again that night. Next morning, when I rose, I saw, as if pushed under my room door, a scrap of written paper. I picked it up and read, "I won't disgrace the family any more.

When I get nothing but unkind words from my dearest sister, I surely am past hope." It was John's handwriting; and I hurried to his room to plead forgiveness. He was gone-fled. Half distracted, I ran to my father's room. I found him supporting my

We have hundreds of letters proving this fact. We have the evidence to prove that in cases where men, by exposure to malarious swamps, bottom lands, rice fields, etc., used Radway's Ready Relief, invariably escaped sickness; those who did not, were seiz d with Dysentery, Swamp Fevers, those only who, when thus seized, used the Ready Relief, entirely recovered . IIS UNIVERSAL USE. It cures the worst diseases incidental to all climates. WHY NOT? If Radway's Ready Relief possesses such remarkable disinfecting, neutralising, strengthening, aperient, suodoforms of disease as they exist, in the most sickly chmates of the world, and where the poisonous malaria is so thick that you may almost "cut it with a knite," why not cure. with the great ease it does, all sorts of fevers of the milder type, in our own climate? Diarihea. Dysentery, Fever and Ague, Billious Fever, Influenza, &c., are but the milder and weaker forms of the more terrible diseases. It i cures the worst forms as they exist in the most sickly climates, it will readily cure the less as they prevail amongs
