THE WINTER IS COMING. Winter is coming-cold and drear-See ye the poor around?

O, when the wrathful storms career, And snows o'erspread the ground; Will ye not take them by the hand, Or to the hovel go. And around the dying embers stand,

And wipe the tears that flow?

Winter is coming-hear ye not The mother's earnest cry? For dark and dreary is her lot-Nor real friend is nigh. For wood and bread she asketh now, Of shall she ask in vain? See sorrow stamped upon her brow, And mark the orphan train.

Winter is coming-every drawer

Should be unlocked to-day; Whom do you keep that clothing for? Why not give it away? Come, pull it out-a cloak, a vest, Whatever you can give, Wrapped snugly round the orphan's breast, Will make the dying live.

The closet watch-a pair of shoes, Half worn-and here's a cap, Which you perhaps may never use-A hat with scarce a nap-A pair of pants -- a rusty coat --O, give them to the poor; What is not worth to you a groat, Will health and warmth secure.

What's in your garret? Have the moths For months been busy there? Ay, they have quite destroyed the clothes You've saved with prudent care. Come pull them out, perhaps we may Find something that will make A poor man rich, if given to-day, And bless the hearts that ache.

Winter is coming-give, O give Whatever ye can spare; A mite will make the wretched live. And smooth the brow of care. When Plenty smiles around your door, And comfort dwells within, If you forget the worthy poor, 'Twill be a grievous sin.

CONFESSIONS OF A CLERK.

Much has been said and written of the trials and temptations to which young men in our large cities are exposed, and the ruin which overtakes multitudes of those who, carefully trained and prayerfully edu- sad end. cated, are led away by the gay and thoughtless companions of their city life, and, forgetting the early restraints of home, are lost to all that is good.

Still, although the warnings and examples which are presented to young men thus situated have done much to assist them to escape the destruction which principle alone will enable them utterly to avoid, the struggles with sin and temptation should strengthen one faint heart, or encourage one repentant soul to turn from the error of his way, let me not hesitate:

wholesale establishment of my uncle, whose interest in me extended only to my future in this world, and, in training me to early business habits, considered that I should thus be amply provided for. In this school I was an apt scholar. I was active and thoughtless of fatigue, enjoyed the full tide of mercantile business, and revelled in the excitement which my life afforded. I was punctual to a moment, I was diligent in business, thorough in my allotted task, cheerful as the day, and popular with my fellow-clerks. My uncle was fully satisfied, and my friends prophesied a successful future. My gay manner and social disposition won me many friends; and from these I chose five, with whom I formed a close intimacy, and to whose influence I gradually yielded, walking apace in the broad road. I was fond of any excitement, and having no father to watch my actions, or restraining principle of my own to prevent, I grew soon to love that which was evil, and knew no fear.

I had a key made to our house, where my mother lived, and thus spent my nights abroad, amid scenes of dissipation and vice.

One Thursday night of this memorable winter I had remained. as was my habit, to close the countingroom after the others had gone, and was just locking the desk when a knock at the door announced a little ragged urchin, who gave me a note addressed to my- up. lative or intimate friend in the whole city who bore the name. Was it assumed to mislead me, and should I find this 'Mary' no other than my uncle? I became alarmed in my perplexity, and taking one of the office chairs, drew up to the fire, and took counsel with myself.

For two hours it was a sharp conflict. I knew not how it would end. At length I drew two tickets from my pocket. They were season tickets to the theatres, which I constantly attended with my com- Sorrow comes soon enough without despondency ; panions. I looked at them, long pondering. With God's help I have been able to keep that vow, though I dared not meet, and never knew, that 'Mary' who save me from ruin.

From that night my course was changed. I turned back from my companions and walked no more with them; and although for five months my distress was great, I at last found peace in believing.

Of those six young men I am the only one remaining. The others were allowed to continue in their sins, and all died young-summoned in the midst of their wickedness to the judgment.

CONSCIENCE.

There is a story of a certain prince who had a wonderful ring which pricked his finger whenever he was doing anything wrong. It was given him to help him always to keep upright and good; and he was told that so long as he wore it, he would prosper. At first he set great store by this ring; but in time he began to be vexed at being so often checked by its pricking, and so often stopped from doing what he wished. One day he had set his heart upon something that he was yet well aware was wrong, and he was about to do it in spite of the warning of the ring; but it pricked him so sharply that he drew it off his finger in a passion and threw it away, and from that moment he fell into bad ways and misfortunes, and came at last to a very sad end.

Now this is only a pleasant little story; but it is meet to help us to understand a great truth. We have all of us something like the prince's wonderful ring, which checks us when we do wrong, and makes us uneasy. Any one of us knows quite well that, if we say a thing that is not true, or do a thing we know we ought not to do, and that we are afraid of being found out to have done, we feel something within us that makes us uneasy, and seems to whisper to us that we are guilty. This is conscience. Conscience is like the wonderful ring.

A boy once stole a half-sovereign; nobody saw him or suspected him; but he felt so unhappy, so uneasy, and ashamed of himself, that at last of his own accord he told what he had done, and brought the money back to the owner, begging to be forgiven; and after this he was much relieved, and once more comfortable in his mind. It was conscience that would not let this boy be at peace. His conscience was troubled till he had done all he could to repair his fault. Happy are those who have a conscience at ease; and happy are those, too, who, like this boy, listen to their conscience when it tells them they have done wrong, and, like him, confess their fault, and repair it as well as they can.

It is quite possible to neglect attending to what conscience keeps whispering to us till we silence it and lose its help altogether, and then, when we have lost this good warning guide, we must grow, as the prince did, worse and worse, and come at last to some

When people go on doing what they know is wrong. without caring, they come to such a state at last as hardly to know what is wrong and what is right; their heart becomes hardened. Pharoah's heart was hardened; and he went to his own destruction.

Even now in our own time there are cases like Pharoah's. We hear of dreadful deeds sometimes. evil remains; and if the brief account of my early Perhaps some wretched man has committed marder, and is going to be hanged. If only he had begun by keeping off from lesser sins at first, or if he had but listened to the whispering voice in his own heart At my father's death I was placed in the large when he first did wrong, and repented and tried to make amends, he would not have been led in the end to commit that last dreadful sin. Perhaps if the boy who, in an evil moment, stole the half-sovereign, had | will be sold very cheap to close not told his sin and repented of it, he might have have done something of the same sort again; and it is always found very easy to go from bad to worse, to slip down lower and lower, when once a person has got so far as to do any one bad deed without feeling

If any one of us has done something wrong that we know quite well to be wrong, and do not like to think about, and wish with all our heart we had never done, there is a cure for our uneasiness in confessing the fault, whatever it is, honestly and boldly, where it is possible to do so. We shall be surprised what relief will come to us, when we have told it, and said we were wrong. And, until we have done this in some way, we have no right to look for the favour of God, who has seen the sin that may have been hid from the eye of man. To acknowledge our fault will | FIRST BOOK LESSONS. be the first beginning to make amends; it will restore us to peace, and will help us never to do the like again; and it will give us the right to "come boldly We frequented the theatre every night; and after to the throne of grace," and ask God to strengthen us leaving them at a late hour, made our way to some to fight the battle of life bravely against sin, the world, and the devil, as Christ's soldier should fight it .- Our Children's Magazine.

> JAMES WILLIAMS. East side Simonds' Street, Portland CAUTION! CAUTION THE Proprietor of PICKSTONE'S WASHING AND CLEANSING CRYSTAL, deems at his duty to caution the public against spurious imitations of his highly celebrated Washing Crystal, which is the most harmless compound extant. It is free from Lime, Vitriol, and all other deadly mixtures so common to be found amongst washing compounds. Try Pickstone's Washing Crystal, if you want ease, comfort, and economy in washing, which washes every thing, and has rapid sale. It will be found invaluable for the following domestic ourposes, viz :- It washes all fine things, such as Muslin Lace, Crotchet Work, Baby Linen, &c,; cleaning Sponges, Combs, and Brushes; removing stains from the hands, and grease from Carpets, Cloth, Flannel, &c. It makes Hard Water Soft, and may be used with good effect in Baths, as it immediately removes all condensed perspiration from the skin. A small quantity should also be used in the foot It forms a cooling and cleansing wash for the head by dissolving a teasphonful of the Crystal in a quarter of a pint of water ; and for cleansing the Month, Teeth, and Gams, it is quite a luxury, by adding a teaspoonful to a tumbler of water. It renders linen beautifully white, and unlike other preparations, at the same time preserves the abric. It contains nothing injurious to life. A child eating it by mistake, will not be injured. If you have not used this Cleansing Crystal, lose no time in obtaining it. Nothing has ever been introduced into this country which has effected such a wonderful change upon Washing Days. It saves your time-saves your clothes-saves your money; and it does not injure the most delicate hands. Pickstone's Cleansing Crystal makes washing a pleasure, reduces the cost of fuel, the wear and tear of labor, and improves every article washed. For Linens, and heavy washes, it cannot be surpassed; for Laces, and fine fabries, it is unequalled. It does not injure the color of Prints, but strengthens and improves them--by its use they retain their original brilliancy. Flannels become white and soft like new. White things are much improved, and keep their color, even if put by for months. Thousands of Families made happy! No misery on a Washing Day, with Pickstone's Cleansing Crystal.
