THE PILOT'S DAUGHTER. BY MRS. L. S. GOODWIN.

All day the storm had followed our track, With dark, deceitful colors displayed ; At sunset he ran up his flag of black, And the souls that saw were sore dismayed. We crept to our berths ; but few, I ween, Had hope of refuge in sleep that night; We pictured us many a direful scene Of shipwreck, and wished for the morrow's light.

I heard the groans of our laboring bark, I felt the shudder from top to keel, As she blindly rushed through the empty dark With onset, plunge, and totter, and reel. At last with a dread I could not check, With clammy forehead and throbbing brain, I groped my way to the lonely deck, Iu the face of the cruel, raging main.

One mighty wave, like a pirate chief, Cried, "Follow me all !" and leaped our wale; Yet onward pressing, I sought relief Where our bronzed, brave pilot fought the gale. Was it an angel there by his side, With mein untroubled and lip that smiled ? Ay, such are to angels near allied, She called him father, he called her child.

I gazed, and saw the sweet presence there, The spirit's trust that no doubt could whelm, Brighten the eye 'neath his brow of care, Strengthen the arm that swayed the helm. Amazed, I cried, with a trickling tear : "Faint with the woe of terror am I,-Say, O maiden, where is thy fear? Thy check is blooming, thine eyes are dry."

These the words of reply she spake, Words a full heart has treasured well : "When storms arise, and the mad waves break, And my berth is drear as a felon's cell, Hither 1 haste, and fear no more, I sit by my father, and watch his hand, And watching, hear not the tempest's rear, Heed not the leagues we are from land."

To my pillow I bore the mild rebuke, And thought of the pilot on life's rough sea, To whom if our steady faith doth look, Even in us His delight shall be. Then the surges seemed fleecy lambs at play, When in daisied meadows they bleat and leap; Forgetting my midnight watch, I lay, Like a cradled infant rocked asleep. At morn I woke as one that has dreamed ;

A LITTLE BOY'S FALSEHOOD.

"A man," says the Rev. J. Todd, "who is now a minister of the Gospel, gave me the following account ; I tell it to you in order to show you what repentance is":-- seemed trying to make me happy ; and he never seemed I was six years old he came home one day very sick. My mother, too, was sick, and thus nobody but my days he was worse, very sick, and all the physicians in the region were called in to see him. The next Sabbath morning early he was evidently much worse. As I went into his room he stretched out his hand to me, and said, 'My little boy, I am very sick. I wish you to take that paper on the stand and run to Mr. C.'s and get me the medicine written on that.' I took the paper and went to the apothecary's shop, as I had often done before ; it was about half a mile off but when I got there I found it shut, and as Mr. C lived a quarter of a mile further off, I concluded not to go to find him. I then set out for home. On my way back I contrived what to say, I knew how wicked it was to tell a lie; but one sin always leads to another. On going in to my father i saw that he was in great pain ; and though pale and weak, I could see great drops of sweat standing on his forehead, forced out by the pain. Oh! then I was sorry I had not gone and found the apothecary. At length he said to me, ' My son has got the medicine, I hope, for I am in great pain.' I hung my head and muttered, for my conscience smote me. 'No. siz; Mr. Carter | Our whole Stock of FLOWERS, which is says he has got none.' 'Has got none! Is this possible?' He then cast a keen eye upon me, and seeing my head hang, and probably suspecting my falsehood, said, in the mildest, kindest tone, ' My litle boy will see his father suffer great pain for the scant of that medicine !' I went ont of the room, was alone, and cried. I was soon called back. My brothers had come, and were standing-all the child rep were standing round his bed, and he was committing my poor mother to their care, and giving them his last advice. I was the youngest, and when he laid his hand on my head and told me that in a few hours I should have no father, that he would in a day or two be buried, that I must now make God my faher, love Him, obey Him, and always do right and speak the truth because the eye of God was always upon me, it seemed as if I should sink ; and when he laid his hand upon my head again, and prayed for the blessing of God, the Redeemer, to rest upon me, 'soon to be a fatherless orphan,' I durst not look at him, I felt so guilty. Sobbing, I rushed from the bedside, and thought I wished I could die. They soon told me he could not speak. Oh! how much would I have given to go in and tell him I had told a lie, and ask him once more to lay his hand on my head, and forgive me! I crept in once more, and heard the minister pray for 'the dying man.' Oh, how my heart ached; I snatched my hat, ran to the apothecary's house, and got the medicine then. I assistant was not slow to perceive his advantage. I ran home with all my might, and went up to my father's bedside to confess my sin, crying out, 'Oh, here, father,' but I was hushed : and I then saw that he was pale, and that all in the room were weeping. to this rule women forms the sole feathered excep- My dear father was dead ! Tying on her bonnet and taking from a drawer several articles of dress for which she was owing, she hurried to the store, and with a burning cheek told the merchant that she could not meet the payment. A weight was taken from her mind when these were disposed of, and with a light step she reached the place of business of her husband's employer. The venerable principal met her at the door.

That evening Mr. Marsh could not enjoy his paper -the gaslight strangely affected his eyes. Morning found them acutely painful, and on the following day the presence of light was intolerable. A physician was called and remedies applied, but the inflamma-. tion steadily progressed. Meanwhile the rent became due, and one after another, like venging spirits, came these little bills, till not a dollar was left in the purse. "Ah! good morning, Mrs. Marsh, I hope to hear that your husband is better."

On one occasion, Rev. Mr. Perkins, of the same deand a member of the "Sons of Tempe ance," dined with the Bishop, who, pouring out a glass of wine, desired the reverend gentleman to drink with him, whereupon he replied, "Can't do it, Bishop, "Wine is a mocker."

THE ROYAL INSURANCE COMPANY, 92 Lombard-street, London, and Royal Insurance buildngs, Liverpool

Chairman of the London Board, -- SAMUEL BAKER, Esq. Chairman in Liverpool .-- CHARLES TURNER, Esq. The Royal Insurance Company is one of the largest

Offices in the kingdom, At the Annual Meeting held in August 1859, the following aighly satisfactory results were shown : FIRE DEPARTMENT.

The most gratifying proof of the expansion of the business is exhibited in the one following fact-that the increase alone of the last three years exceeds the entire business of some of the existing and of many of the recently defunct "You'll pass the decanter to that gentleman next fire insurance companies of this kingdom.

The Premiums for the year 1855 being ..... £130,060 While the Premiums for the year 1558 are .... 196,148 Showing an actual increase of ...... 66,088 or upwards of 50 per cent. in three years.

The recent returns of duty made by Government for this latter year (1858) again show the "Royal" as more than maintaining the ratio of its increase as stated in former years. Only one among the London insurance offices exhibits an advance to the extent of one-half the increase of the Company, while all the others respectively fall far short of the moiety of its advance.
