NOTHING TO DO.

"Nothing to do!" in this world of ours,
Where weeds spring up with the fairest flowers,
Where smiles have only a fitful play,
Where hearts are breaking every day!

"Nothing to do!" thou Christian soul!
Wrapping thee round in thy selfish stole!
Off with the garments of sloth and sin!
Christ, thy Lord, hath a kindom to win.

"Nothing to do!" there are prayers to lay
On the altar of incense day by day;
There are foes to meet, within and without,
There is error to conquer, strong and stout.

"Nothing to do!" there are minds to teach
The simplest forms of Christian speech.
There are hearts to lure with loving wile
From the grimmest haunts of sin's defile.

"Nothing to do!" there are lambs to feed,
The precious hope of the Church's need.
Strength is to be borne to the weak and faint,
Vigils to keep with the doubting saint.

"Nothing to do!" there are heights to attain,
Where Christ is transfigured yet again,
Where earth will fade in the vision sweet,
And the soul press on with winged feet.

"Nothing to do!" and thy Saviour said,
'Follow thou me in the path I tread.'
Lord, lend thy help thy journey through,
Lest faint we cry, "So much to do!"

(From the New-York Observer.)

THE FISHERMAN'S DAUGHTER.

Bessie Snowdon's home was by the seaside. From earlist infancy she had been lulled to sleep by the solemn music of the waves; and on many a wild and gloomy night had been awakened by the screams of the sea-gull, as it winged its rapid flight over the dark waters as if in haste to seek a shelter from the coming storm. By the time Bessie had attained her fourteenth year she had become familiar with all the sights and sounds of the sea, and had learned to love it in its wildest aspects.

Bessie's father was a fisherman. For many years he had followed that bold and often times perilous calling, and from him she had inherited her fearless disposition and a courage and resolution far beyond her years. Though she had lost her mother when just entering upon her twelfth year, she retained a vivid recollection of her gentle and endearing qualities; and the lessons of Christian fortitude and holy trust and resignation under suffering and trial which she had inculcated, both by precept and example, had never faded from Bessie's mind. Day by day she strove to obey her mother's dying injunction—to follow her Saviour in her daily life, and to be a comfort to her father in his sorrow and loneliness. By every means in her power she sought to make his home pleasant and attractive; and when at length in answer to her prayer, and won by the loveliness of her daily Christian life, he was led to seek the only true solace from all earthly trials, the earnest desire of Bessie's heart was fulfilled.

One cloudy morning, in the latter part of October, James Snowdon left home on a short fishing excursion. After an affectionate adieu, Bessie climbed to the summit of a huge cliff that overlooked the sea and followed the little boat with her eyes, until it dwindled to a mere speck and finally disappeared in the distance. She then returned to her simple household duties, and her cheerful songs made the rude cottage vocal with their untaught melody.

Many times during the day did her thoughts revert to the absent dear one, and a silent aspiration arose to heaven in his behalf. When the day was drawing to a close, and she had completed her simple preparations for the evening meal, she again repaired to her favorite station on the cliff, that she might catch the earliest glimpse of the fisherman's boat in the offing.

Dark, heavy clouds were scudding before the wind, which ere long blew in furious gusts, while the huge waves dashed and foamed against the base of the cliff with a terrific sound that would have been appalling to nerves less strong or a heart less dauntless than hers—the brave fisherman's daughter. It seemed as though each successive blast would hurl her from the perilous height and precipitate her into the abyss below. Vainly did Bessie strain her eager eyes toward the sea. The waters stretched before her in one wide, unbroken waste, while the waves rolled in toward the shore in long, heavy surges, that lashed the beach in thundering chorus. When the increasing darkness made surrounding objects no longer visible, she sadly wended her way to her solitary home, and having eaten her frugal meal, knelt by the humble bed-side and implored the protection of her heavenly Father for herself and her beloved parent. Then, with a child-like trust and confidence, having committed all her interests to the care of Him who holds the winds in the hollow of His hand, she sought her pillow and was soon wrapt in peaceful slumbers. Long before the dawn the storm had spent its fury, and as the winds died away the moon looked out from great rifts in the dark clouds, in calm and serene beauty.

Bessie sprang from her couch with the first grey light in the morning, and with anxious, yet hopeful heart hurried down to the beach. Her practised eye quickly discovered, far in the distance, a tiny speck upon the waters. With throbbing heart she watched it approaching nearer and nearer, until at length she joyfully recognized the outline of her father's boat, and his strong athletic form plying the oars with vigorous strokes. He rapidly neared the shore, and soon sprang upon the beach clasping his daughter in his arms, while tears of joy and thankfulness gushed from Bessie's dark eye and moistened the fisherman's rugged cheek.

Brightly the morning sun shone upon that little cottage by the sea-side. There, bending by the lowly hearth, the fisherman and his daughter lifted up their hearts in gratitude to the great All-Father who had watched over them amid storm and peril—mercifully sparing them to each other thus far, and crowning their lives with His blessings. Such was the lesson of simple, confiding trust in God which we should all learn and which we shall have occasion to practise, it may be, often in our lives. Have we learned it?

WHY LICENSE IT?

In Gov. Andrew's four hours' argument in behalf of licensing rumselling, the ex-governor says that:

"Crime and tippling are so linked together that, if we could banish tippling, the judges have a thousand times declared that crime, unable to live alone, would follow too."

Then why license it?

Again he says that

"Drunkenness lies in near relations with poverty and other miseries, and is very often their proximate cause."

Then why license it?

Again he says that

"Prohibition exists only in name."

Then why attempt to repeal the law?—Advocate.

SELF-RELIANCE.

A STORY FOR BOYS.

In one of our Western cities, lives a little boy by the name of Harry Lufrel. His father and mother were poor but honest people. They used to say, if they couldn't give Harry much else, they would give him a good education.

He used to go to school regularly, and used all his opportunities. When he was about eight years old the rebellion broke out, and as Harry's father was a "staunch Union man," he volunteered his services. Before leaving, he told Harry to keep at school, and learn all he could, to be kind to his mother, and true to his country and his God.

After his father had gone, things went on the same as usual for a while, then news came that his father was killed in some great battle, Antietam I think it was; and his mother did not survive long after that.

Now little Harry was left quite alone, as he did not know that he had a relation in the world. The neighbours took charge of what little property Mrs. Lufrel left; it was sold at auction, and one of the neighbors boarded Harry till the proceeds were gone. After that they told him he must look out for himself, that he could run errands, pile wood, and do a great many such things by which he could earn his living.

Poor Harry tried it for a while, but he came to the conclusion that "it didn't pay." His clothes had become quite ragged, and he was often hungry. One day he sat by the wayside, upon a log, thinking of his hard lot, and what he had better do. All at once he jumped up, and said, "I'll do it! at any rate I will try." So he walked direct to the store of an eminent merchant whom he had often heard his father speak of as being very kind and benevolent.

As he went into the store, he asked one of the clerks if Mr. B. was in? "Yes, in the counting-room," pointing toward the door. Harry went in, and stood with his hat in his hand; in a moment Mr. B. saw him, and said, "Well, my boy, what did you wish for?" Then Harry said, "Please, Mr. B., will you loan me fifty cents, and I will give you my note at ten per cent. interest." Mr. B. looked at Harry in astonishment, but seeing he was quite an intelligent looking boy, he said, "Well, my lad, what do you intend to do with it?" and Harry answered, "Invest it in trade, sir, and try to earn my living."

Mr. B. handed him fifty cents, and told him he would make him a present of it, but Harry said, "No sir; I would rather give my note." "Very well," said Mr. B., "then we will do it in regular business style." When Harry left the store he invested the fifty cents in oranges and newspapers; before night he had doubled his money.

Thus he went on day after day, till at the end of a month he presented himself to Mr. B. saying, "I have come, sir, to pay my note." Mr. B. had almost forgotten the circumstance, but it soon came to his mind, and he said, "Very well, my boy; how have you made out in trade?" Harry told him he made forty dollars that month; then Mr. B. said, "You have done nobly, my little fellow; if ever I can do anything to help you, I shall be most happy to. Harry thanked him, and said if he ever needed help, he would call upon him, but he guessed he could take care of himself.

My dear little readers, I trust none of you will ever be as badly off as poor little Harry was; but don't you think there are many things you could do now to show the same self-reliant spirit that Harry displayed? Think about it, and then do all you can to make yourselves useful members of society.—Christian Register.

A SAILOR'S STORY.

I began to chew at the age of twelve. It made me very sick, but I was determined to "fight it out on that line," and soon got so that I enjoyed my quid. A few years later I commenced smoking. The habit grew upon me till I was smoking a large portion of the time except when asleep. At length I united with the church under the ministry of Rev. Samuel H. Cox, D. D. Very soon the question arose whether it was right for a professor of religion to indulge in such a filthy and disgusting habit as chewing tobacco, and I was not long in deciding that it was not, and abandoned it, though it cost me a severe struggle; for weeks after I would involuntarily feel in the corners of my vest pocket for any little crumbs that might have lodged there, but I at last conquered. I still, however, enjoyed the cigar.

Just at this time I met a friend who was studying for the ministry. I was puffing away at the cigar as usual, when he looked up with a countenance that I shall never forget, and said "Bro. H., it don't look well to see a member of the Church smoking." "You are right," said I, and taking the cigar from my mouth, threw it into the gutter. A third of a century has rolled away, but that was the last cigar I ever smoked. I was emancipated from a slavery worse than Egyptian bondage.

I then commenced saving the money that I had been so long squandering for tobacco, and I will close by telling the boys what I did with it, and I think they will see that it is neither wise or expedient to commence the expensive, demoralizing habit of smoking or chewing tobacco. I deposited my money in that excellent institution, the Seaman's Bank for Savings, and it was astonishing to see how the interest increased the amount.

We had long lived in the city; but the children who had learned something of the enjoyment of country life, from their annual visit to their grandfathers, longed for a home among the green fields. I found a very pleasant place in the country for sale. There were over two acres of land, with shade and fruit trees, a good garden, a fine view of Long Island Sound—near the academy, churches, schools, &c., &c. The cigar money now came into requisition, and I found that it amounted to $6,500, a sufficient sum to purchase the place, and it is mine.

I wish the boys, who read the Life Boat, could see how the children enjoy their home, as they watch the great steamers, and the vessels with their white sails, as they course along the Sound. It was a special wonder when they saw the Great Eastern pass on her way to Europe. Just before or after a storm we hear very distinctly the roar of old ocean. There is wonderful power and majesty in that distant sound. It is then that we think of the perils of the sea, and lift up our hearts to God for his protecting care of the sailors. Nor are the children less interested in the cow and calf, chickens, pigeons, rabbits, &c. They enjoy their plays and sports on the green grass, which gives them health and happiness. Here the warworn soldier boy was welcomed home from the battle field, after years of absence, crowned with victory.

Now, boys, you must take your choice, smoking without a home—or a home without smoking.—Sailor's Magazine.

DON'T BE A LOAFER.—Young man, pay attention. Don't be a loafer; don't keep loafer's company; don't hang about loafing places. Better work than sit around day after day, or stand about corners with your hands in your pockets. Better for your own health—better for your own prospects. Bustle about, if you mean to have anything to bustle about for. Many a poor physician has obtained a real patient by riding after an imaginary one. A quire of blank paper, tied with red tape, carried under a lawyer's arm, may procure him his first case, and make his fortune. Such is the world; to him that hath shall be given. Quit dreaming and complaining; keep busy and mind your chances.

A HABIT OF PRAYER A BRIDLE.—Some bad boys tried to persuade a good little boy to play truant.

"No, no, I cannot," said he.

"Why, now, why?" they asked.

"Why?" answered the boy. "Because if I do I shall have to pray it all out to God at my mother's knee to-night."

"Oh! well," they said, "in that case, you had better not go."

Bad boys expect of boys better brought up than themselves, better things than they can practice. But you see what a bridle the habit of prayer puts on a little child.—Child's Delight.

THE ROYAL INSURANCE COMPANY, 92 Lombard-street, London, and Royal Insurance buildings, Liverpool.
Chairman of the London Board.—SAMUEL BAKER, Esq.
Chairman in Liverpool.—CHARLES TURNER, Esq.
The Royal Insurance Company is one of the largest Offices in the kingdom.
At the Annual Meeting held in August 1859, the following highly satisfactory results were shown:—

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

The most gratifying proof of the expansion of the business is exhibited in the one following fact—that the increase alone of the last three years exceeds the entire business of some of the existing and of many of the recently defunct fire insurance companies of this kingdom.

The Premiums for the year 1855 being.....£130,060
While the Premiums for the year 1858 are.... 196,148
Showing an actual increase of..... 66,088 or upwards of 50 per cent. in three years.

The recent returns of duty made by Government for this latter year (1858) again show the "Royal" as more than maintaining the ratio of its increase as stated in former years. Only one among the London insurance offices exhibits an advance to the extent of one-half the increase of the Company, while all the others respectively fall far short of the moiety of its advance.

LIFE DEPARTMENT.

The amount of new Life Premiums received this year is by far the largest received in any similar period since the commencement of the business, and must far exceed the average of amount received by the most successful offices in the kingdom. The number of policies issued in the year was 832, the sum assured £387,752 6s. 8d., and the premium £12,354 3s. 4d. These figures show a very rapid extension of business during the last ten years. Thus:—

Years.	No. of Policies.	Sums Assured.	New Premiums.
1848 ..	98	£48,764 17 0	£1,380 9 1
1850 ..	190	95,650 9 11	2,627 4 7
1852 ..	422	181,504 10 6	5,828 5 10
1854 ..	408	161,848 13 4	4,694 16 0
1856 ..	703	297,560 16 8	8,850 8 11
1858 ..	832	387,752 6 8	12,354 3 4

The remarkable increase in the business of the last four years, is mainly consequent upon the large bonus declared in 1855, which amounted to no less than £2 per cent. per annum on the sums assured and averaged 80 per cent. upon the premiums paid.

PERCY M. DOVE, Manager and Actuary.

SELEE'S HAIR LIFE

RICHLY merits the high praise the people of the Provinces now award it. It has proved superior to all other Hair preparations for restoring Grey Hair to its original colour. It is, also, a splendid Hair Dressing, cleaning the Head so perfectly from Dandruff, Scurf, &c.

It invariably stops the Hair from falling off, and is, decidedly, a Hair Restorer.

The money will be refunded in all cases where a thorough trial of two bottles fails to give entire satisfaction.

Sold by Druggists and other Dealers.

OUR Friends and Customers will please bear in mind that we have this day REMOVED to the STORE, No. 48 Prince William Street, just vacated by Messrs. Manchester, Robertson & Allison, and next adjoining Messrs. Ennis & Gardner.

We would, at this time, beg to tender our sincere thanks for the extended patronage accorded to us during the two years we have been in business, and for the future, an assurance of our best efforts being indefatigably directed to merit its continuance.

Thoroughly impressed with the necessity of accuracy and precision in the preparing and dispensing of MEDICINES, we pledge ourselves that every possible attention shall be paid to the requirements of the Public in these particulars, and the same undeviating regard to purity in the selection of DRUGS and CHEMICALS, which has made the character of this Establishment, shall be faithfully continued. ROBINSON BROTHERS,
June 6. 48 Prince Wm. Street.

PHOTOGRAPHIC GUM REGIALINE, FOR MOUNTING PRINTS.
Patented February, 1867.

ONE OF THE BEST PHOTOGRAPHIC IMPROVEMENTS OF THE DAY.—Since the discovery of Photographic paper printing, it has always been a great desideratum to obtain an adhesive harmless substance as a medium for mounting Prints. Gum-Arabic, Dextrine and other Gums have each had their day and have been rejected for various reasons.

After great labour and expense we have succeeded in inventing and perfecting a purely Vegetable Gum of most extraordinary adhesive properties, containing no deleterious ingredients whatever. It is in every respect superior to Gum-Arabic for mounting prints. We beg to state it has the following advantages over every other Gum now in use in Photography:

1st. It does not Sour, Mould, Ferment or Decay by Age. 2d. It dries very quickly and thoroughly. 3rd. Its light color, perfectly white when applied to paper. 4th. It will not injure the most delicate picture or color. 5th. It being sold in a liquid form saves all the trouble of boiling. 6th. Being very thinly applied, makes a saving of fifty per cent. 7th. The mounted print is much more brilliant than with any other Gum.

Many other qualities makes it the ne p'us ultra of adhesive Photographic Gums. One trial will convince all o the extraordinary properties of this Gum.

UNITED PROVINCIAL COMMERCIAL COLLEGE,
Will open, after February 13, 1867, in RITCHIE'S BUILDING.

DESIGNED to Educate Young Men for Business Life. Branches taught in a practical manner by efficient Teachers and Lecturers. Book-keeping by single and Double Entry, and adapted to General Mercantile Business, Manufacturing, Mining, Milling, Forwarding and Commission Business, Foreign Exchange, Steamboating, Railroading and Banking, Business Penmanship, Commercial Arithmetic, Commercial Law, Business Letter Writing and Spelling, &c.

In the Upper Provinces a systematical Business Education is deemed as essential as any other professional education, giving, as it does, the young men an honorable business standing, with a remuneration which he could not otherwise command.

The system is conducted on actual business principles, each student being supplied with cash and merchandise to the amount of one thousand dollars, with which he trades with the Merchants' Emporium College Bank, and also his fellow students. It is surprising how much is mastered in a few months.

The room will be well furnished with desks, book-cases, Merchants' Emporium, Bank, and all other improvements for the well being of the student. Business Forms, Commercial Problems, in short, every difficulty met in Mercantile Life will be fully explained on the Blackboard. Our College has been successful for years in the West, and we can point to our students throughout the country doing well.

Life Scholarships will be issued after the 14th Feb., 1867, at $35 for full course, a discount of 10 per cent. will be allowed till the 1st of March, 1867, in order that we may have a large Class at once.

Terms payable in advance.

Hours from 9 to 12 A. M., from 2 to 4 P. M., and from 7 to 9 in the evening.

For Circular containing full information, call at the College office, or address (enclosed stamp),

MOTHERS! MOTHERS!! MOTHERS!!!

DON'T fail to procure Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething. This valuable preparation is the prescription of one of the best female physicians and nurses in the United States, and has been used for thirty years with never-failing safety and success by millions of mothers and children, from the feeble infant of one week old to the adult.

It not only relieves the child from pain, but invigorates the stomach and bowels, corrects acidity, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. It will almost instantly relieve Griping in the Bowels and Wind Colic. We believe it the best and surest Remedy in the World, in all cases of Dysentery and Diarrhœa in Children, whether it arises from Teething or from any other cause. Full directions of using will accompany each bottle. None genuine unless the fac simile of CURTIS & PERKINS, New York, is on the outside wrapper.

Sold by all Medicine Dealers. Principal Office 48 Dey Street, New York. Price only 25 cents per bottle.
