(From the New York Observer.) LORD, I WILL FOLLOW THEE. LUKE ix. 57.

Lord. I would follow Thee through all the way Thy footsteps marked on earth; from that glad

When Bethlehem's star paled at the opening day, Even to the end; when agonized, upborne. From cross of Cavalry went forth that prayer, That God the Father would forgive and spare.

Come now, my sin-pressed soul !- see, cool and clear Jordan's baptismal waters bathe my feet: Listen! the Father's benison I hear, His Son beloved, Master, Friend, I greet.

The Spirit dove will brood within my breast, A heavenly comforter and welcome guest.

Be this my lot, so peaceful and so still; Far from the world and busy marts of trade; Plucking the corn, or by Siloam's rill; My noonday hours within the garden shade.

How pleasant thus to follow when He leads Among the lilies, or the flowery meads. On the high mountains, when the dazzling sight

Of riches, honor, fame, is tempting shown: Lord, hold me fast, and guide my steps aright, Or, dashing downward, I must be o'erthrown; Touch my blind eyes, that I the road may see, And, saved from carkness, turn for light to Thee.

If in the valley I so more may hide, Let thy trausfigured glories round me shine: In tabernacles now I would abide, Where holy angels show Thy right divine; No fear or sin in such a favored place, Fed by Thy bounty, sheltered in Thy grace.

Not such thy rest, disciple heavenward bound ; The Father's work the Master must pursue. See, how the multitude now throng around, --Many are called, the chosen are but few; No scrip, or staff, within the pilgrim hand, But toilsome journeys in a thirsty land.

Oh, weary way !- 'mongst lepers, blind, and lame, The vile and sick; must such my following be? Through pain and hunger, poverty and shame, On the cold mountain and the raging sea. All belpers fail-my soul is filled with grief;

Feebly I sow, and doubt the harvest sheaf.

While halting thus, a thorny path I tread: The Master turns ;-one look from that sad face Assures my heart, revives the fainting head And, pressing onward now with quickened pace, The city's near, where Salem's children sing, And waving palms salute the Saviour King.

Miscellaneons.

A TALE FOR WIVES.

Ah! blessings on her husband evermore, if my husband was but like yours, Janet."

"He is like mine in many of his ways," said Janet, with a smile, "and, if you will allow me to speak plainly, he would be still more like him if you took more pains to make him comfortable."

"What do you mean?" cried Madge, "our house is clean as your's; I mend my husband's clothes, and cook his dinner as carefully as any woman in the parish, and yet he never stays at home of an evening, whilst you two sit here by your cheerful fire night after night as happy as can be."

"As happy as can be on earth," said her friend, gravely, "yes-and shall I tell you the secret of it,

"I wish you would," said Madge, with a deep sigh, "it's misery to live as I do now."

"Well, then," said Janet, speaking slowly and dis tinctly, "I let my husband see that I love him still, and that I learn every day to love him more. Love is the chain that binds him to his home. The world may call it folly, but the world is not my lawgiver." stand.

"And do you really think," exclaimed Madge, in surprise, "that husbands care for that sort of thing?" " For love, do you mean?" asked Janet.

"Yes, they don't feel at all as we do, Janet, and it don't take many years of married life to make them think of a wife as a sort of maid-of-all work." " A libel, Madge," said Mrs. Matson, laughing, " I won't allow you to sit in William's chair and talk so."

Hours passed before John Harley returned home. He was a man of good abilities, and well-to-do in the world, and having married Madge because he truly Offices in the kingdom. loved her, he had expected to have a happy home. highly satisfactory results were shown :--But partly because he was reserved and sensivain, they had grown very cold toward each other; comfortable place than his own fireside.

That night the rain fell in torrents, the winds howled, and it was not until the midnight hour had or upwards of 50 per cent. in three years. "used" to the tone and look with which his wife drew near to welcome him; nor to find warm clothes by a crackling fire, and slippers on the hearth; change had come to Madge, he was very sure. She neat linen collar round the neck, and had a cap, trimmed with white ribbons, on her head.

"You're smart, Madge," he exclaimed, at last, when he had stared at her for some little time in silence. "Who has been here worth dressing for tonight?"

"No one until you came," said Madge, half laugh-

"I? nonsense, you didn't dress for me?" cried

"You won't believe it, perhaps, but I did, I have been talking with Mrs. Matson this evening, and she has given me some very good advice. So now, John, what would you like for your supper?"

and content himself with any thing he could find, thought Madge's offer too excellent to be refused, and very soon a large bowl of chocolate was steaming on the table. Then his wife sat down, for a wonder, by his side, and talked a little, and listened, and looked pleased, when at last, as if he couldn't help it, he said, "Dear old Madge!"

That was enough; her elbow somehow found its | N French Kid Gloves, of superior quality and best make, way then to the arm of his great chair, and she sat at lowest possible prices. quietly looking at the fire. After awhile John spoke

"Madge, dear, do you remember the old days when we used to sit side by side in your mother's kitchen ?"

"I was a younger man then, Madge, and, as they told me, handsome; now I am growing older, plainer, duller. Then you-you loved me; do you love me

She looked up in his face, and her eyes answered him. It was like going back to the old days to feel his arm around her as her head lay on his shoulder, and to hear once again the kind words meant for her

She never once asked if this would make him "vain;" she knew as if by instinct, that it was making him a wiser, a more thoughtful, more earnesthearted man. And when, after a happy silence, he took down the big Bible, and read a chapter, as he "Now this is what I call comfort," said Madge had been wont to read to her mother informer times,

A small quantity should also be used in the foot pan. It forms a cooling and cleansing wash for the head, by dissolving a teasphonful of the Crystal in a quarter of a pint of water; and for cleansing the Mouth, Teeth, and tiums, it is quite a luxury, by adding a teaspoonful to a tumbler of water. It renders linen beautifully white, and unlike other preparations, at the same time preserves the fabric. It contains nothing injurious to life. A child cating it by mistake, will not be injured. I you have not used this Cleansing Crystal, lose no time in obtaining it. Nothing has ever been introduced into this country which has effected such a wonderful change upon Washing Days. It saves your time-saves your clothes -- saves your money; and it does not injure the most delicate hands. Pickstone's Cleansing Crystal makes washing a pleasure, reduces the cost of fuel, the wear and tear of labor, and improves every article washed. For Linens, and heavy washes, it cannot be surpassed; for Laces, and the fabrics, it is unequalled. It does not injure the color of Prints, but strengthens and improves them-by its use they retain their original brilliancy. Flan-nels become white and soft like new. White things are much improved, and keep their color, even if put by for ng the gums, reducing all inflammation-will allay all months. Thousands of Families made happy!
