THE WINTER IS COMING.

Winter is coming and and crear-See ye the poor around? O, when the wrathful storms career, And snows o'erspread the ground; Will ye not take them by the hand, Or to the hovel go.

And around the dying embers stand, And wipe the tears that flow?

Winter is coming-hear ye not The mother's earnest cry? For dark and dreary is her lot-Nor real friend is nigh. For wood and bread she asketh now, Ot shall she ask in vain? See sorrow stamped upon her brow, And mark the orphan train.

Winter is coming-every drawer Should be unlocked to-day; Whom do you keep that clothing for? Why not give it away? Come, pull it out-a cloak, a vest, Whatever you can give,

Wrapped snugly round the orphan's breast, Will make the dying live.

The closet watch-a pair of shoes, Half worn-and here's a cap, Which you perhaps may never use-A hat with scarce a nap-A pair of pants-a rusty coat-O, give them to the poor; What is not worth to you a groat, Will health and warmth secure.

What's in your garret? Have the moths For months been busy there? Ay, they have quite destroyed the clothes You've saved with prudent care. Come pull them out, perhaps we may Find something that will make A poor man rich, if given to-day, Winter is coming-give, O give Whatever ye can spare; A mite will make the wretched live, And smooth the brow of care. When Plenty smiles around your door, And comfort dwells within, If you forget the worthy poor, 'Twill be a grievous sin.

And bless the hearts that ache.

wholesale establishment of my uncle, whose interest in me extended only to my future in this world, and, in training me to early business habits, considered that I should thus be amply provided for.

In this school I was an apt scholar. I was active and thoughtless of fatigue, enjoyed the full tide of mercantile business, and revelled in the excitement which my life afforded. I was punctual to a moment, I was diligent in business, thorough in my allotted task, cheerful as the day, and popular with my fellow-clerks.

My uncle was fully satisfied, and my friends prophesied a successful future.

My gay manner and social disposition won me many friends; and from these I chose five, with whom I formed a close intimacy, and to whose influence I gradually yielded, walking apace in the broad road. I was fond of any excitement, and having no father own to prevent, I grew soon to love that which was evil, and knew no fear.

I had a key made to our house, where my mother lived, and thus spent my nights abroad, amid scenes of dissipation and vice. We frequented the theatre every night; and after saloon, where, with wine and cards, we revelled until almost morning, when we would creep back to our homes, and snatch a few hours of sleep before the next day's work commenced. I was a gambler, and a skilful one. I seldom lost.

My companions swore I was a fine fellow, and I was expected, in return, to treat them on all occasions, and not unfrequent y to bribe them to silence. Our families were highly respectable. We visited in the best society. Thus a suspicion of my actual course of life would have prevented my welcome among these friends; and to avoid such possibility of suspicion, I spared no pains. I think I was successful. Not even my mother

It was in the winter of 1880, that God, in His mercy, saw fit to pluck me as a brand from the burning. One Thursday night of this memorable winter I had remained. as was my habit, to close the countingroom after the others had gone, and was just locking the desk when a knock at the door announced a little ragged urchin, who gave me a note addressed to myself, and hastened away.

I was astonished at receiving a note at all, and still more that it bore the delicate bandwriting of a lady. I opened it, and read-

"I have watched your whole course; I know your present habits; foresee your future. I would save you! Meet me to-night at nine o'clock, at -Square.

back from my companions and walked no more with them; and although for five months my distress was great, I at last found peace in believing. Of those six young men I am the only one remaining. The others were allowed to continue in their sins, and all died young-summoned in the midst of their wickedness to the judgment.

CONSCIENCE.

There is a story of a certain prince who had a wonderful ring which pricked his finger whenever he was doing anything wrong. It was given him to help him always to keep upright and good; and he was told that so long as he were it, he would prosper. At first he set great store by this ring; but in time he began to be vexed at being so often checked by its pricking, and so often stopped from doing what he wished. One day he had set his heart upon something that he was yet well aware was wrong, and he was about to do it in spite of the warning of the ring; but it pricked him so sharply that he drew it off his finger in a passion and threw it away, and from that moment he fell into bad ways and misfortunes, and came at last to a very sad end.

Now this is only a pleasant little story; but it is meet to help us to understand a great truth. We have all of us something like the prince's wonderful ring, which checks us when we do wrong, and makes us uneasy. Any one of us knows quite well that, if we say a thing that is not true, or do a thing we know we ought not to do, and that we are afraid of being found out to have done, we feel something within us that makes us uneasy, and seems to whisper to us that we are guilty. This is conscience. Conscience is like the wonderful ring.

A boy once stole a half-sovereign; nobody saw him or suspected him; but he felt so unhappy, so uneasy, and ashamed of himself, that at last of his own accord he told what he had done, and brought the money back to the owner, begging to be forgiven; and after this he was much relieved, and once more comfortable in his mind. It was conscience that would not let this boy be at peace. His conscience was troubled till he had done all he could to repair his fault, Happy are those who have a conscience at ease; and happy are those, too, who, like this boy, listen to conscience when it tells them they have done wrong, and, like him, confess their fault, and repair it as well as they can.

It is quite possible to neglect attending to what conscience keeps whispering to us till we silence it and lose its help altogether, and then, when we have temptations to which young men in our large cities lost this good warning guide, we must grow, as the are exposed, and the ruin which overtakes multitudes prince did, worse and worse, and come at last to some

When people go on doing what they know is wrong panions of their city life, and, forgetting the early re- without caring, they come to such a state at last as hardly to know what is wrong and what is right; Still, although the warnings and examples which their heart becomes hardened. If only he had begun by keeping off from lesser sins at first, or if he had but listened to the whispering voice in his own heart At my father's death I was placed in the large when he first did wrong, and repented and tried to make amends, he would not have been led in the end to commit that last dreadful sin. Perhaps if the boy UGAR AND MOLASSES.—25 hhds. Porto Rico Sugar; who, in an evil moment, stole the half-sovereign, had not told his sin and repented of it, he might have ended in being hanged; for it is very likely he would Liverwort; Sharp's Balsam Hoarhound and Aniseed; have done something of the same sort again; and it is always found very easy to go from bad to worse, to slip down lower and lower, when once a person has got so far as to do any one bad deed without feeling

If any one of us has done something wrong that we know quite well to be wrong, and do not like to think about, and wish with all our heart we had never done, there is a cure for our uneasiness in confessing the fault, whatever it is, honestly and boldly, where it is possible to do so. We shall be surprised, what relief will come to us, when we have told it, and said we were wrong. And, until we have done this to watch my actions, or restraining principle of my | in some way, we have no right to look for the favour of God, who has seen the sin that may have been hid from the eye of man. WAKE UP! SOLOMON.

"Sol, wake up! It's time to get up," shouted young Harry to his sluggish brother, one fine July morning as he began dressing himself. "What time is it?" yawned Solomon.

"Nearly six," replied his brother, "and mind, Sol,

"It's too early to get up yet," said Solomon; "PII" snooze till quarter to seven." So the lazy fellow turned round and was soon fast asleep again. When he awoke his room looked very any other than the frank, noble-hearted boy he full of sunshine. The house was very quiet, too, and rubbing his eyes, he muttered, "I wonder if it is seven o'clock yet?"

Crawling out of bed, he dressed himself and went This was my life from sixteen to nineteen. It down stairs. There was nobody in the parlor, nobo-

"Where are they all?" he asked. "Gone to the city," replied the maid; "they started two hours ago.

"Why, what time is it?" "Nine c'clock !"

"But why didn't they call me?" "You were called at six o'clock and wouldn't get up. Your father wouldn't have you called again. He said he would teach you a lesson." "It's too bad!" cried Solomon, dropping his head upon the table and bursting into tears.

It was too bad that the lazy boy did not learn the esson of that morning so as to turn over a new leaf in the book of life. I am sorry to say he did not. He loved sleep. He hated work. He was a slave of lazy habits, and is to this day. What sort of a man will Soloman Slowcoach be? Well, if he don't die of idleness before he becomes a man he will be a shiftless, good for nothing fellow. He won't have any knowledge, because he is too lazy to conquer himself. Wake up! Solomon. Wake up, my dear boy! Shake off the chains that are upon you! Be manly, be wide awake, be something! If you don't wake up you will be a lost boy. Wake up, Solomon, wake up! If you don't you will make shipwreck of your

S. F. MILWARD, J. F.

MESSRS. ROGERS & Co.; Gents;-Your Medicine has made another wonderful sure. Thomas Cooper, Esq., of Lachabor Lake (storekeeper), got some for his wife, who had been afflicted with Scrofula for seven years, and nothing she got from the doctors did her any good. Mr. Cooper says her face was in a dreadful state with running sores, but is now well. As he expressed it, "It made a total cure of her."

sions, &c., are offered for sale at market rates JAMES WILLIAMS. East side Simonds' Street, Fortland CAUTION! CAUTION! THE Proprietor of PICKSTONE'S WASHING AND CLEANSING CRYSTAL, deems at his duty to cau tion the public against spurious imitations of his highly celebrated Washing Crystal, which is the most harmless compound extant. It is free from Line, Vitriol, and all other deadly mixtures so common to be found amongst washing compounds. Try Pickstone's Washing Crystal, if you want ease, comfort, and economy in washing, which washes every thing, and has rapid sale.

It will be found invaluable for the following domestic purposes, viz.: - it washes all fine things, such as Muslin Lace, Crotchet Work, Baby Linen, &c,; cleaning Sponges, Combs, and Brushes; removing stains from the hands, and grease from Carpets, Cloth, Flannel, &c. It makes Hard Water Soft, and may be used with good effect in Baths, as it immediately removes all condensed perspiration from the skin. A small quantity should also be used in the foot pan. It forms a cooling and cleansing wash for the head. by dissolving a teasphonful of the Crystal in a quarter of a pint of water; and for cleansing the Mouth, Teeth, and Gams, it is quite a luxury, by adding a teaspoonful to a tumbler of water. It renders linen beautifully white, and unlike other preparations, at the same time preserves the fabric. It contains nothing injurious to life. A child eating it by mistake, will not be injured. If you have not used this Cleansing Crystal, lose no time in obtaining it. Nothing has ever been introduced into this country which has effected such a wonderful change upon Washing Days. It saves your time-saves your clothes-saves your money; and it does not injure the most delicate hands. Pickstone's Cleansing Crystal makes washing a pleasure, reduces the cost of fuel, the wear and tear of labor, and improves every article washed. For Linens, and heavy washes, it cannot be surpassed; for Laces, and tine fabries, it is unequalled. It does not injure the color of Prints, but strengthens and improves hem-by its use they retain their original brilliancy. Flannels become white and soft like new. White things are much improved, and keep their color, even if put by for months. Thousands of Families made happy! No misery on a Washing Day, with Pickstone's Cleansing Crystal.
