But this kind of argument did not affect Ernest account of his son :much, for he could not help thinking that he was "On one occasion when he had offended me, I compelled to keep his bargain. He was the poorest one of the group, for his mother was a plain widow, and she made her living by washing. The promise that he had made deeply affected him, and he left the university for a week, so that he might go home and tell his mother the pledge that he made to the old musician. After he had told her, she replied:

"Keep it, my son; keep it, if it cost you your life." "That is what I will try to do, mother, and I hope I shall have your prayers.'

Ernest returned to the university and told his friends that they must seriously think of buying the old man a house and garden. He went to a neighboring village one day and found that he could get a neat little house and garden for two thousand guilders. That was a large sum for those poor students to think of paying, but through the influence of Ernest the other three gradually became convinced that it was their duty to keep their promise. The four resolved that in one year from the time the pledge was made, the old man should have his house and garden, if it was in their power to get it for him.

They must leave the university-a sad proceeding for them. They came to the conclusion to go through the country, and give little concerts; for really this appeared to them to be the only way possible, to get any money. Even by pursuing this course there appeared to be a poor prospect to get a large sum. Still they resolved to do their best. They closed their books, put their instruments in little bags, and set out on foot to give concerts in the villages through which they might pass. Ernest, be- child who is heir to a kingdom, is poor. Having Jefore leaving, exacted a promise of the man, who owned the house and lot that he had looked at that he would not sell it under six months to any body, that time he might have it, though the money need not be paid under a year. Week after week passed by, and the students slowly proceeded on their way. Their expenses were not heavy, but their income was 10th Vic., Chap. 83. certainly very small too. Nine months and a half passed by, and still they had but little above seven hundred guilders. It was a great question with them a nobleman living in a large castle a few miles distant was seeking musicians to attend the wedding of his daughter, who was to be married in three or four days. Fortunately enough for the students, the no- SECRETARY .- MR. THOMAS MAIN. bleman employed them for the occasion. The marriage ceremonies took place, and by and by it was time for the music to begin. The students had trained themselves very carefully for that evening, and their selections were certainly of a very high order. During the course of the festivities it was noticed that the nobleman became very sad. His face wore a melancholy appearance, and those who stood nearest to him saw him weeping. What could have caused him to be melancholy at such a time as that? One of the pieces that those musicians had played was his mother's favorite melody. She had often sung it to him many years ago, and he had not heard it since, until the students played it. It was enough to make him sorrowful, and it drew these students to his heart in such a way that he could not express his feelings. They had recalled to his memory a piece of music which he had never been able to find in any music store, and which it was now worth a fortune for him to hear. I must now make my story short. The nobleman kept the four students in his castle two weeks, became acquainted with them fully, and learned their object in leaving the university to give concerts. He supplied them with three thousand guilders, and told them he would pay their expenses at the university for four years, and that they might have the privilege of making drafts on him at any time.

Their fortune was better than they had reason to expect. Ernest had already written to the owner of the house and garden that he might expect them to take it, so that it was now engaged.

The students returned to the university, and reached there just a few weeks before the end of the year when the house must be ready for the owner. On the evening of the day when the old man promised to appear, he stood below the window in the bright winter moonlight, playing on his old violin, He was true to his word, and expected the promise to be kept. The young men went down to invite him up and told him all that they had done. They showed him the deed for his place, and gave it to him. On the following day he formally took possesgroceries for house-keeping.

JAMES WILLIAMS. East side Simonds' Street, Portland CAUTION! CAUTIONI THE Proprietor of PICKSTONE'S WASHING ANI CLEANSING CRYSTAL, deems it his duty to caution the public against spurious imitations of his highly celebrated Washing Crystal, which is the most harmless compound extant. It is free from Lime, Vitriol, and all other deadly mixtures so common to be found amongst washing compounds. Try Pickstone's Washing Crystal, f you want ease, comfort, and economy in washing, which tion is deemed as essential as any other professional educawashes every thing, and has rapid sale. It will be found invaluable for the following domestic urposes, viz.: - It washes all fine things, such as Muslin ace, Crotchet Work, Baby Linen, &c,; cleaning Sponges combs, and Brushes; removing stains from the hands, and grease from Carpets, Cloth, Flannel, &c. It makes Hard Water Soft, and may be used with good effect in Baths, as it immediately removes all condensed perspiration from the skin. A small quantity should also be used in the foot pan. It forms a cooling and cleansing wash for the head, by dissolving a teasphonful of the Crystal in a quarter of a pint of water; and for cleansing the Mouth, Teeth, and Gums, it is quite a luxury, by adding a teaspoonful to a umbler of water. It renders linen beautifully white, and unlike other preparations, at the same time preserves the abric. It contains nothing injurious to life. A child eat-ng it by mistake, will not be injured. If you have not used this Cleansing Crystal, lose no time in obtaining it. Nothing has ever been introduced into this country which has effected such a wonderful change upon Washing Days. It saves your time-saves your clothes-saves your money; and it does not injure the most delicate hands. Pickstone's Cleansing Crystal makes washing a pleasure, reduces the cost of fuel, the wear and tear of labor, and improves every article washed. or Linens, and heavy washes, it cannot be surpassed; or Laces, and fine fabrics, it is unequalled. It does not njure the color of Prints, but strengthens and improves hem-by its use they retain their original brilliancy. Flannels become white and soft like new. White things are much improved, and keep their color, even if put by for months. Thousands of Families made happy! No misery on a Washing Day, with Pickstone's Cleansing Crystal.
