We do not wonder that St. Paul exclaimed: " For me to live is Christ, and to die is gain." Paul had no fear of death, and why? Because he had as his foundation the Lord Jesus Christ. The Psalmist expresses a like feeling of security, when he said, "Though I pass through the valley of the shadow. of death, I will fear no evil; for thou art with me; found in this church. thy rod and thy staff they comfort me." We are led then to this conclusion, that death should have terror only for those who are out of Christ. So far as the dissolution of the body is concerned, it will amount to but little; and so far as the saint is concerned, he feels that he is moving on to his sternal home of rest, to be forever with the Lord. But to and added to the church. the sinner, death is truly awful; to him, there is.

We behold the child of God, calmiy and quietly arranging his earthly business, taking his leave of his: friends, admonishing them to prove faithful in the cause and service of the Redsemer, anxiously waiting the moment when, freed from the weary exact of pain and sorrow, the spirit will wing its flight to regions of eternal blics-to the mansions prepared. While, on the contrary, the sinner feels he has fived without hope, without piety, and without God; hence holy throng above, joy would not enter that soul, heaven could be no beaven to it, and hell would become a refuge. Who then, with feelings of delight,
