"BE STILL MY SOUL."

Poetry.

Be still, my soul ! the Lord is on thy side; Bear patiently the cross of grief and pain ; Leave to thy God to order and provide-In every change He faithfol will remain. Be still, my soul! thy best, thy heavenly Friend, Through thorny ways leads to a joyful end.

Be still, my soul ! thy God doth undertake To guide the future, as He has the past : Thy hope, thy confidence let nothing shake, All now mysterious shall be bright at last. Be still, my soul! the waves and winds still know His voice who ruleth them while He dwelt below.

Be still, my soul! when dearest friends depart. And all is darkened in the vale of tears, Then shalt thou better know His love, His heart, Who comes to soothe thy sorrows and thy fears.

Be still, my soul! thy Jesus can repay From His own fullness, all He takes away.

Be still, my soul! the hour is hastening on When we shall be forever with the Lord-When disappointment, grief, and fear are gone, Sorrow forgot, love's purest joys restored. Be still, my soul! when change and tears are past, All safe and blessed we shall meet at last.

Be still, my soul! begin the song of praise On earth, believing, to thy Lord on high; Acknowledge Him in all thy works and ways--So shall He view thee with a well-pleased eye. Be still, my soul ! the Sun of life divine Through passing clouds shall but more brightly shine.

COLLEGE CAPS.

It had been settled that all the boys who belonged to the school, which was called Delf College, should wear caps alike. The boys of course called these caps by a variety of names, "trenchers," "mortarboards," and so on, and they laughed at one another as soon as they were all put on, as boys will do, but they were very proud of their caps all the same for that.

The master of the school addressed them on the subject.

"Boys," he said, "I want yon to feel that wearing these caps imposes a responsibility on all of you. People seeing you now will know that you belong to Delf College, and of course they will form their opinion of the school from what they see of you. We shall either be honored or disgraced, according as you are good or unworthy. If a boy wearing one of our caps is heard using improper words, or boasting, or saying what is untrue, not only the boy himself but the school will suffer in the estimation of the hearer. If a boy known to belong to us is seen doing mean or dishonest things, if he oppress or bully girls, or boys who are younger and weaker than himself, if he spend his money foolishly and get into debt, then not only himself but the school will be disgraced. Now I want you to remember that the honor of the school is in your keeping, and I hope you will resolve that it will gain and not lose through your connection with it. Let all who wear our caps strive to be upright, honorable, truthful, generous, kindly, and obedient, so that they may be a credit to the school and the judge." to the town, and lay the foundation of a good and useful life when they are grown up to manhood." The boys all listened attentively to these words, words as addressed personally to him, and most earnestly resolved to remember and act upon them. His name was Daniel Roberts. I do not know whether he was less merry than other boys, but he was much more thoughtful than some. For although he liked a good game as well as anybody, I never knew him forget to be kind to others, or do an un- + "Do you believe this?" asked the judge, while a kind thing, even when he was most excited.

that I was keeping it wrongfully, I should bring disgrace on the college."

This is what he said to himself, and then a better thought came into his mind, " Even if no one saw me, God did, and I must not sin against Him." The next day he went out, and in several shop windows he saw tickets-"Lost, a purse." He found out the name and address of the owner, and returned it at once, feeling very thankful that he had been helped to do this right. He borrowed the money to pay for his boots, which he paid back as soon as the other boy paid him.

If wearing college caps would always make boys honest and conscientious, we should like to see every boy wearing one. But there is a better and surer way. It is to ask God to make them strong to resist evil and to do good.

THE YOUNG WITNESS.

A little girl, nine years of age, was a witness against a prisoner, who was on a trial for a crime committed in her father's house.

"Now Emily," said the counsel for the prisoner, upon her being put in the witness box, "I desire to know if you understand the nature of an oatb." "I don't know what you mean," was the simple answer. "There, your Honor," said the counsel, addressing the court, "is there anything further necessary to shew the force of my objection? This witness should be rejected. She does not know the nature of an oath."

"Let us see," said the judge. "Come here, my little girl."

Assured by the kind tone and manner of the judge, the child stepped towards him and looked up confidingly in his face, with a calm, clear eye, and in a manner so artless and frank that it went straight to bis heart.

"Did you ever take an oath ?" inquired the judge. The little girl stepped back with a look of horror, and the red blood mantled in a blush all over her face and neck as she answered-

" No, sir."

She thought he meant to inquire if she had ever blasphemed.

"I do not mean that," said the judge, who saw his mistake. "I mean, were you ever a witness before ?" "No, sir; I was never in a court before," was the answer He handed her a Bible, open. "Do you know that book ?"

She look at it and answered, "Yes, sir; it is the Bible,"

" Do you ever read it ?" he asked. "Yes, sir, every evening."

"Can you tell me what the Bible is ?" inquired the As the Subscriber intends devoting his whole

"It is the word of the great God," she answered. "Well, place your hand upon this Bible, and listen to what I say;" and he repeated slowly and solemnly the oath usually given to witnesses.

"Now," said the judge, " you have sworn as a witness. Will you tell me what will befall you if you do not tell the truth ?"

"I shall be shut up in prison," answered the child. "Anything else," asked the judge.

"I shall never go to heaven," she replied.

"How do you know this ?" asked the judge again. The child took the Bible, and turning rapidly to the chapter containing the commandments, pointed to this one-" Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor."
