Poetry.

THERE ARE NO TEARS IN HEAVEN.

I met a child ; his feet were bare, His weak frame shivered with the cold, His youthful brow was knit by care, His flushing eye his sorrow told. Said I, " Poor boy, why weepest thou ?" "My parents both are dead," he said, "I have not where to lay my head; O, I am lone and friendless now !" Not friendless, child; a Friend on high For you his precious blood has given ; Cheer up, and bid each tear be dry; "There are no tears in heaven."

I saw a man in life's gay noon, Stand weeping o'er his young bride's bier; "And must we part," he cried, "so soon ?" As down his cheek there rolled a tear. "Heart-stricken one," said I, "weep not !" "Weep not !" in accents wild he cried, "But yesterday my loved one died, And shall she be so soon forgot ?" Forgotten ! no ; still let her love Sustain thy heart, with anguish riven; Strive thou to meet thy bride above, And dry your tears in heaven.

I saw a gentle mother weep, As to her throbbing heart she pressed An infant, seemingly asleep On its kind mother's sheltering breast. "Fair one," said I, "pray weep no more ;" Sobbed she, " The idol of my hope I am now called to render up; My babe has reached death's gloomy shore." Young mother, yield no more to grief, Nor be by passion's tempest driven ; But find in these sweet words relief-"There are no tears in heaven."

Poor traveller o'er life's troubled wave, Cast down by grief, o'erwhelmed by care, There is an arm above can save; Then yield not thou to fell despair. Look upward, mourners, look above; What though the thunders echo loud, The sunshine's bright behind the cloud ; Then trust in thy Redeemer's love. Where'er thy lot in life be cast, Whate'er of toil and woe be given, Be firm ; remember, to the last, ten, even amid the splendor of heaven, and through the ages of eternity.' Dr. Tyng ascribes his conversion to a similar fact. In common life many conversions have been the resuit of the conviction awakened by the fact that friends or families living in the same house have been overheard engaging regularly in devotional exercises, showing that they loved prayer.

FRAGMENTS.

An old Arab proverb says : " It is the second blow which begins the quarrel.'

Much of most men's fame is undesirable, being founded on their unhappiness.

It is only for innocence that solitude can have charms.

Whether God chose you to labor or suffer, you have no reason to complain; especially if he is leading you to glory.

A great man neglects little things not on account his greatness, but of his littleness. Nothing is too little for the regard of Omniscience.

Never lay a stumbling-block in the way of a man who is trying to advance himself in the world honestly and uprightly, for he is likely to walk over it and laugh at you afterwards.

There is reason to suspect the genuineness of that religion which is too modest to bear the gaze, and too delicate to bear the touch of the world .- Jenkin Thomas.

Regret not a golden age that is behind. There is one before, and it beckons you. Its rewards are not for the idle, but for the brave hearts disciplined to toil.

If half the pains were taken by some people to perform the labors allotted to them, that are taken by them to avoid it, we should hear much less said about the troubles of life, and see much more actually completed.

A hidden light soon becomes dim, and if it be entirely covered up, will expire for want of air. So it is with hidden religion. It must go out. There can not be a Christian whose light in some respects does not shine.

Memory is Adam sitting outside the gates of Paradise, weeping over pleasures gone forever. Hope is Adam, in the strength of God's promises. Work for some good, be it over so slowly; Cherish some flowers, be it ever so lowly ; Labor, true labor, is noble and holy ! The poor pittance of seventy years is not worth being a villian for. A "STBANGE" PREACHER.

His name was Strange. Many will think his congentleman, well off in worldly goods, desiring to starve it." make him and his family comfortable in their declining years, generously presented him a title-deed for three hundred and twenty acres of land. Strange accepted the donation with thankfulness, and went on his way, preaching and singing as he went. But after a few months he returned and requested his generous friend to take the title deed. Surprised at the request the gentleman inquired,

- " Is there any flaw in it ?"
- "Not the slightest."
- " Is not the land good ?"
- " First rate."
- " Isn't it healthy ?"
- " Perfectly."

"Why, then, do you wish me to take it back? It will be a comfortable home for you when you grow old, and something for your wife and children, if you should be taken away ?"

"Why, I'll tell you. Ever since I've had it, I've lost my enjoyment for singing. I can't sing my favorite hymn with a good conscience any longer." " What is that ?"

" This :--

" No foot of land do I possess, No cottage in this wilderness,

A poor, wayfaring man.

" I dwell awhile in tents below, Or gladly wander to and fro, Till I my Canaan gain. " Yonder's my home and portion fair,

My treasure and my heart are there, And my abiding home.

"There !" said Strange, "I'd rather sing that hymn than own America. I'll trust the Lord to take care of my wife and children."

He continued singing, and preaching, and singing, and the Lord, said the lecturer, did take care of him and his children after him. - Meery's Magazine.

NO ONE PRAYS FOR ME.

A young lawyer who scoffed at religion was made the subject of special prayer and effort by a pious young man. Not long after he was found at the prayer-meeting, but even the pastor hesitated to speak to him, supposing he had come merely for amusement. The young man continued faithful to his friend, and soon rejoiced in seeing him an humble believer in Josus.

The lawyer was riding with another companion of his own not long after. "Out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh ;" so the conversation quite naturally turned to the subject of personal salvation. The new convert spoke freely, and told of the faithfulness of his kind friend K., but for whom (Written on the death of Olavie Bell, who died Sept. 2nd, 1869, aged 3 years and 5 months.]

LINES

> Dear Olavie, we've laid thy body down Beceath the cold damp sod,

But oh, thy spirit it has flown, We trust to be with God.

But a short time thou lived on earth,

Exposed to grief and pain-

But now thou'st left this world below, Ne'er to return again.

With God and angels theu dost dwell,

Within that shining place; A crown of glory's on thy head, A smile is on thy face.

Thou hast exchanged a world of pain For one of joys above;

She loved you dearly while with you, But she loved Jesus best.

If you're prepared to meet with God, When the last trump shall sound, Oh then you'll meet your danghter dear,

And make the heavens resound.

Oh happy, happy is her lot, For none can her beguile; O blessed thought to think that she Did leave you with a smile.

She's on the Saviour's bosom laid, And feels no sorrow there ;

She's by a heavenly parent fed, And needs no more your care.

She has exchanged a barren waste.

For rich and fertile ground, And gone where blessed Jesus is,

Till the last trump shall sound. Aud then when Jesus does appear,

With all the saints along, It's then you'll see you daughter, dear,

Among that happy throng. Soon round the dazzling throne of God

We shall united stand, And greet each other, joyfully,

In heaven the better land. She's happy now, (no pen can tell

The joy that she does feel)-

Is numbered with the things that God. Will not on earth reveal. G. S.

The most gratifying proof of the expansion of the business is exhibited in the one following fact-that the increase alone of the last three years exceeds the entire business of some of the existing and of many of the recently defunct fire insurance companies of this kingdom.

he might have been left to perish.

"I had friends once who prayed for me," said the other thoughtfully, "but I have been so careless they have all given me up. I don't suppose there is one person on earth who prays for me now," "You are mistaken," says the other. "K. prays for you very earnestly."

" Is it possible ?" said the youth, pausing in great astonishment. It was like a lightning flash to his soul, and not long after he too was rejoicing in Jesus. Are we offering such "effectual, fervent prayer" for any soul? Should the Christian ever suffer himself to be without the burden of some immortal spirit upon his heart ? Such prayer does avail much. God's Word declares it, and the experience of ten thousand souls verifies the declaration. Whom will you take this week of all your impenitent acquaintances as a subject of earnest prayer and labor ?-S. S. Times.

INDIRECT INFLUENCE.

A Christian's spirit and example, exhibited when he has nothought of an immediate effect upon the minds of others, is often more powerful than his most direct and earnest effort. John Angell James, of Birmingham, saya, in one of his lectures :--

"If I have a right to consider myself a Christian, if I have attained to any usefulness in the church of Christ, I owe it, in the way of means and instrumentality, to the sight of a companion who slept in the same room with me, bending his knees in prayer on retiring to rest. That scene aroused my slumbering conscience, and sent an arrow to my heart; for though conscience, and sent an arrow to my heart; for though I had been religiously educated, I had neglected pray-er and cast off the fear of God. My conversion to er and cast off the fear of God. My conversion to Sep 11. God followed, and my preparation for the ministry. Nearly a half century has rolled away since then, but that little chamber and that praying youth are still present to my imagination, and will never be forgot-noisy as ever. The mother firmly said, "Sarah, if you do so again 1 will punish you." But not long after Sarah "did so again." When the company were about to separate, the mother stepped into a neighbor's house, intending to return for the child. During her absence, the though of going home recalled to the mind of Sarah the punishment which her mother told her she might expect. The recollection turned her rudeness and thoughtlessness to sorrow. A young lady present observing it, and learning the cause, in order to pacify her, said, "Never mind, I will ask your mother not to whip you." "Oh," said Sarah, " that will do no good, My mother never tells lies."

The writer who communicated the above for the St. Louis Observer adds, "I learned a lesson from that child which I shall never forget. It is worth show them a variety of Goods-contained in over the Store, and in Back-Stores-such a everything in the training of a child to make it feel that its mother never tells lies."
