NO PEACE WITH ROME. ENGLAND, thou must not, shalt not, how to Rome. Arouse thee from thy lethargy. Awake, For truth and duty call. Awake, arise, For thou, alse, art called again to fight For what thy martyred fathers died to win-Pure faith and simple worship. Rome, with stealth Already mines thy outworks; her platoons, Hourse with the battle-cry " Equality," (Supremacy they mean), gain heart and hope, Trusting to find thy garrison asleep, And, knowing too, what traitors lark within, All ready to betray thee. Sleep no more; The Bible hath propelled thee where thou art, And thou art traiter to thyself and it, If thou dost longer parley with the for. Tell Roms we hate her, and will not submit, (God belping us), to Cardinal or Pope. Her pagan rites, her semi-pagan creed, Her lewd confessionals, her mumming prayers, Her lying relies and sham miracles, Her childish penances, her doubtful saints, Her silly bolis, her weak anathemas:-Tell her we loathe and we despise them too, And, having once cast off the Papal chain, Will never wear it more. Shall it be said, My favoured country, that she finds a home-This enemy to God and man-in thee, In thee, blest England, while the nations round, Fast struggling from beneath her funeral pall, Are weary of the harlot? No! Units, combine, Merge every lesser difference awhile, And, barring out the common enemy, Rally with ardour to the battle-cry,-"Christ and the Bible, and No Peace with Rome. -- Christian Times.

A TOUCHING INCIDENT; OR, PRAY WITH YOUR CHILDREN.

The pastor of a young mother who had recently joined his church was talking with her about her ma ternal responsibilities, and urged the duty of constant and believing prayer for the early conversion of he: children. She assured him that it was her daily practice to carry her little ones in supplication to the throne of grace, yet complained of a want of faith and of definitaness in asking for them the special inflo ence of the Holy Spirit.

"Do you pray for each child separately, and by name?" inquired the pastor.

"No, that has never been my habit," was the re-

"I think it is of much importance, Mrs. Huston, especially as a help to our faith, and to the clearnesand intensity of our desires on their behalf. Yopray with them, I trust, as well as for them?"

"Sometimes I do, but not often. They seem a lit tle restless, and inclined to whisper together while my eyes are closed; and so I have felt little less embarrassment and more freedom in supplication to be alone at such seasons."

"Let me persuade you, dear Mrs. Huston, to try a different plan. Take your little son and daughter each separately to the place of prayer, and kneeling with them before the Lord, tell Him the name, the daily history, the special want of each, and see it your heart is not opened to plead for them as you have never done before."

Tears were in the eyes of the young mother as sho said with trembling lips, "I'll try."

As evening eams she had not forgotten her promise, but as she saw that Sarah, her daughter, was unusually poerish, she thought best to take her little son first to her chamber. Willie was a bright and pleasant boy of five years; and when his mother whispered her wish to pray with him, he gladly put his hand in hers and knelt by her side. As he heard fourteen was apprenticed to a soap-boiler. INTEMPERANCE AMONG LADIES.

We regret to learn from medical sources that intemperance amongst the respectable female classes of our land is, to an alarming extent, on the increase. A physician gives an instructive lesson on this aubject in "Bible Jewels," recently issued by the Rev. Dr. Newton: -- "There was a well-known physician, in a large city in America, who had allowed himself to get into the habit of drinking too much. Now, of all men in the world, next to ministers, doctors should be most careful to keep sober. One day this doctor had been drinking pretty freely. When he went home at noon, he found on his slate a request for him to come and see Mrs. B----, one of his patients, a rich and fashionable lady. He took his dinner, drank some more liquor, and then went to see the lady. She was in bed. He sat down by the bedside, took out his watch, and putting the finger of his right hand on the lady's wrist, he began to count her pulse. One-two-three; then he got confused, and began again. One-two-three-four; confused, and began again; one-two-three-fourfive; but he could not go on. So he put up his watch and said to himself, in a whisper, which he did not intend the lady should hear, 'Drunk, I declare !' Then he told the lady to keep in bed, and take some hot lemonade, to throw her in a perspiration, and he would see her again in the morning. In the evening he received a few lines from the lady, written as fol-

The doctor was too drunk to see what was the matter with his patient; and the patient was too drunk to see that the doctor was in the same state."

A BOY REPROVED BY A BIRD.

When quite young in my boyish days, I had watched some sparrows carrying materials to build their nests, in the usual season, under the eaves of a cottage adjoining our own; and although strict orders had been given, that none of us should climb up to the roof of the house, yet bird's eggs formed a temptation too powerful to be easily resisted, and our own gratification was considered rather than obedience. A favorable opportunity presenting itself, the roof of the bouse was ascended, and not only was the nest robbed, but seized and carried away. It was soon stripped of all that was unnecessary on the outside, that it might appear as neat as possible. Among the externals thus removed, was a piece of paper which had been a leaf of Dr. Watt's hymn book, and which, thrown away, had been picked up by the poor bird for strengthening the nest, or increasing its warmth. A word or two caught my eye, and I unfolded the paper. Boy as I was, I read those verses, with, to say the least, curious feelings.

"Why should I deprive my neighbor Of his goods against his will? Hands were made for honest labor, Not to plunder, nor to steal. Guard my heart, O God of heaven, Lest I covet what's not mine; Lest I take what is not given, Guard my hands and heart from sin.

ilad the little bird been able to read and reason, it could not have selected a text more appropriate for reproof and instruction than this. It shews that when we do wrong God can send reproof even by a bird. I have not forgotten the lesson presented to me by the leaf of paper which had been fixed to the nest of the poor sparrow.

THE WORD IN SEASON.-A baker, who travelled the country disposing of his bread, stopped at a publie house where he was waited on at dinner by a young girl. When opportunity offered, he asked the girl if she loved the Saviour. She answered that she did not. He then in earnestness and simplicity, spoke to her of the way of salvation, and urged her to accept Christ as her Saviour, The words were but few, and he returned home. Again he found himself at the same public house; but now an older woman served at the table. She recognized him, and asked him if he remembered his former visit. He did. "Do you remember the girl that served you?" "I do." "She was my daughter; and oh, how I thank you for the few words you said to her on the subject of religion! They were the means of her conversion; and oh, dear sir," bursting into tears, "they prepared her for a sick and dying ed, to which she was suddenly brought. She often Offices in the kingdom. referred to the interview, and she passed away in triumph. She is now with that Saviour you made known to her." - Sudbury Leaflets.

"PLAYING LIKE A CHRISTIAN."-I heard of two little children, a boy and a girl, who used to play a great deal together. They both became converted, One day the boy came to his mother and said, "Mother, I know that Emma is a Christian."

"What makes you think so, my child?" " Because, mother, she plays like a Christian."

"Plays like a Christian?" said the mother; the expression sounded a little odd. "Yes," replied the child, "if you take everything she's got, she don't get angry. Before, she was selfish; and if she didn't have everything her own way, she would say, "I won't play with you; you are an ugly little boy."

RAIN FROM HEAVEN .- A little girl in Yorkshire, when water was scarce, saved as much rein water as she could, and sold it to the washerwoman for a penny a pailful, and in this way obtained several shillings for the missionary society. When she brought it to the secretary she was not willing to tell her | years, is mainly consequent upon the large bonus declared name. "But I must put it down where the money came from," he said. THE POOR CRIPPLE BOY WHO PARTED WITH ALL HE HAD FOR THE BIBLE. - George Howard lived in South Carolina. He was a cripple and unable to do muc for a living. Two shillings was all he had in the world, and he travelled four miles to the agent of the Bible Society, and offered it for a Bible. The agent gave him a Bible worth three shillings, and took the two shillings. The committee was so pleased with what this poor boy had done, that they told the agent to give him back the money, and make him a present of the Bible. The poor boy's heart was filled with joy; he prized the Bible, and loved to read it every day. One verse he was especially fond of-Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." It was the verse which by God's blessing led him to Jesus. To have learned it was worth all that he had. It directed him to more than all the gold in the world could buy -pardon and peace through Jesus Christ, - N. Y.

THE FIFTH COMMANDMENT. - An old school-master said one day to a clergyman, who came to examine

"I believe the children know the catechism word for word." But do they understand it! that is the question," said the clergyman.

The school-master only bowed respectfully, and the examination began. A little boy had repeated the fifth commandment, " Honor thy father and thy mother," and be was desired to explain it, instead of " Dear Doctor, -I am dreadfully mortified to trying to do so, the little boy, with his face covered with blushes, said almost in a whisper :--"Yesterday I showed some strange gentlemen over the gentlemen saw they were bleeding, and gave me some money to buy me shoes. I gave it to my mother, for she had no shoes either, and I thought I
