

Poetry.

"FOUND DEAD IN THE STREET."

The labor is over and done;
The sun has gone down in the west;
The birds are sleeping every one,
And the world has gone to its rest;
Sleepers on beds of down,
Neath cover of silk and gold,
Soft, as on roses now blown
Sleep the great monarch of old!
Sleepers on mother's breast,
Sleeper's happy and warm,
Cosy as birds in their nest,
With never a thought of harm!
Sleepers in garrets high,
Neath coverlets ragged and old;
And one little sleeper all under the sky,
Out in the night and cold!
Alone in the wide, wide world,
Christless, motherless he;
Beggings or stealing to live, and whirled
Like waif on an angry sea.

The daisy looks up from the grass,
Fresh from the fingers of Night,
To welcome the birds as they pass,
And drink in fresh rivers of light.
Sleepers on mother's breast,
Waken to summer and mirth;
But one little sleeper has gone to his rest,
Never to waken on earth—
Dead—found dead in the street,
All forsaken and lorn;
Damp from head to the feet,
With the dew of the sweet May-morn!
Dead—for the want of a crust!
Dead—in the cold night-air!
Dead—and under the dust,
Without ever a word of prayer;
In the heart of the wealthiest city,
In this most Christian land,
Without ever a word of pity,
Or the touch of a kindly hand!

"THE DYING SAILOR," OR "READ IT AGAIN."

"Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path."—PSALM CXX. 105.

The following story shows that, though there are some who think they may live without this light, yet even such when they have to pass through the dark valley of the shadow of death, often feel deeply their need of this lamp for their feet.

A vessel, with a mixed crew of black and white men, was bound for a distant port. When in the torrid zone a fever broke out; many were seized by it, and amongst others a thoughtful, godless Englishman. He grew worse daily; and seeing there was no hope for his recovery, he became very anxious about the state of his soul.

One morning an officer went into the hospital to visit the sick, and struck by the agonised expression of this man's countenance, he asked if he could do anything for him. The man cried out, "O, sir, have you a Bible?" The officer had not one; but the poor dying man pleaded, "Pass the word, sir, and if any one has a Bible, tell them to bring it, and read it to me; I am dying; I must have a Bible to tell me how to be saved."

The officer made inquiries among the sailors; but each replied, "I have not got one." At last the news of the need of a Bible reached a young cabin boy; he had one, perhaps the gift of a loving mother, or gained at a Sunday school. He took the book, and went to the side of the poor man. The inquiries that had been made had excited much interest, and many of the sailors had gathered around the dying bed. Deep silence fell on as the little fellow entered; and, sitting down by the bedside, he opened his book. Led by the Holy Spirit, he read John iii. 16, "God so loved the world that He gave His only-begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life." He was going on, when the dying man raised his head, and looking most importunately, said, with startling eagerness, "Boy, boy, read that again." It was read again, and each time, as he finished the verse, came the earnest cry, "Again, again!" The sufferer's countenance grew more composed, and at last, clasping his hands together, he said, "I do believe, and soon after fell back and died.

The officer had been standing by, and he said it was a solemn sight to look round the hospital and see the men, white and black, gazing with eager faces, and the tears running down from many an eye that had not wept for years. In this case the scene was made a blessing to his soul; he never sailed again without a Bible, and he could not rest until he was himself able to rejoice in the truth, which brought peace to that poor man in his dying hour.

Dear young friends, there is no encouragement in this tale to postpone the study of God's word to your death-bed. Though this man was, we hope, saved at the eleventh hour, we cannot wish you to endure such dying anguish as he did. Prizes now that word of God, which will be so precious to you at last; so read it, and ask God to bless the reading, that you may be able to say, "I know in whom I have believed, and am persuaded that He is able to keep that which I have committed unto Him against that day." If you attain this happy state of mind, you will doubtless use every means you can bring others, to "like precious faith."

Let reason vainly boast her power
To teach her children how to die;
The sinner in his dying hour
Needs more than reason can supply;
A view in Christ the sinner's friend
Alone can cheer him in the end.

RUM AND ITS VENDOR.

A few years ago, a miserable victim of strong drink, after squandering all he possessed at a neighboring rum-store, died, leaving four small children to be provided for by his abused and almost heart-broken widow. After struggling on for some time in poverty and want, she was advised to apply for work to the wife of the wealthy rum-seller who had been the ruin of her husband. In compliance with this advice, she waited upon this person, who, with the appearance of kindness, offered to supply her with sewing. She then gave her a couple of shirts to make, at twenty-five cents each, promising that, if they were made to her satisfaction, she would supply her with a number more. Upon bringing them home, she was told that they gave full satisfaction, but the lady said she was not in the habit of paying for work till it amounted to five dollars, and she would supply her with work to that amount.

The poor woman toiled night and day to make up eighteen more shirts to earn this amount, in the meanwhile being driven by want actually to beg and to boil potato parings to keep her poor children alive. At length the shirts were all finished. The poor woman set out to carry them home, thinking all the way of the five dollars, and the food it would buy for her famishing children; and it never seemed to her that five dollars was as much money as would. Upon delivering them they were pronounced well done, and the poor woman was asked for her bill.

The rum-seller's wife then called for her husband,

Chairman of the London Board.—SAMUEL BAKER, Esq., Chairman in Liverpool.—CHARLES TURNER, Esq., Chairman in London.—The Royal Insurance Company is one of the largest Offices in the kingdom.

At the Annual Meeting held in August 1859, the following highly satisfactory results were shown:—

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

The most gratifying proof of the expansion of the business is exhibited in the one following fact—that the increase alone of the last three years exceeds the entire business of some of the existing and of many of the recently defunct insurance companies of this kingdom.

While the Premiums for the year 1858 were £120,000, the Premiums for the year 1859 were £120,000, and the Premiums for the year 1860 were £120,000.

Showing an actual increase of £120,000, or upwards of 40 per cent. in three years.

The recent returns of duty made by Government for this latter year (1860) again show the "Royal" as more than maintaining the ratio of increase as in former years.

Only one among the London insurance offices exhibits an advance to the extent of one-half the increase of the Company, while all others respectively fall far short of the 50 per cent. advance.

LIFE DEPARTMENT.

The amount of new Life Premiums received this year is by far the largest ever received by any insurance office in the kingdom, and must far exceed the average of amount received by the most successful offices in the kingdom. The number of policies issued in the year 1860 was 52, the sum assured £257,253 6s. 8d., and the premium £12,504 10s. 4d.

These figures show a very rapid increase of business during the last ten years. Thus:—

Year. No. of Policies. Sum Assured. New Premiums.

1848. 98. £45,764 17s. 11d. £1,280 9s. 1d.

1850. 190. £52,550 11s. 4d. £2,027 4s. 1d.

1852. 422. £121,004 10s. 6d. 5,225 6s. 0d.

1854. 408. £121,545 13s. 4d. 4,094 16s. 0d.

1856. 708. £27,560 18s. 8d. 5,550 3s. 11d.

1858. 822. £57,752 6s. 3d. 12,354 9s. 11d.

The remarkable increase in the business of the last four years, is mainly consequent upon the large bonus declared in 1856, which amounted to no less than 22 per cent. per annum on the sums assured and averaged 50 per cent. upon the premiums paid.
