ONE YEAR AGO.

[The following verses, found among the papers of the late Miss Eliza C. Atherton, have been handed us for insertion in our columns.]

One year ago my heart was free As yonder wood-bird's chainless wings, That perched upon some leafy tree Is free to fly or free to sing;

But softly o'er my weary soul A blissful thought is gently stealing, For Love has cast her chains of gold Around each glad and tender feeling.

One year ago; it cannot be One little year has changed me thus ! My lightsome heart, no longer free, By softest ties is bound to dust; One mirage plays before my eyes-One image fills my waking dreams, And nothing else beneath the sky

One year ago; my heart was then More fully fixed on things above; O Jesus! My Almighty Father! Have I been wandering from Thy love? Recall me by Thy blessed word, And draw me by Thy Spirit back, And help me, O my faithful Friend, Still to pursue the shining track.

With half the seeming beauty gleams.

THE FINAL STRUGGLE.

It often happens with a convicted sinner, that the rebellion of the heart centres itself at last around a single point, and contends against a duty to be done, or a sacrifice to be made. The salvation or loss of the soul is involved in the struggle, not because of the inherent importance of the thing itself, but because it involves the entire surrender of self to God. The Methodist gives an instance where the struggle turned on family prayer:-

"Why can you not perform a duty so simple, so evidently proper in itself, and, as you yourself con-expose myself by breaking down?"

only make the matter worse; and you must now be necessarily wretched till it is done." "Can't I be a Christian and not do it?" he inquired with the deepest emotion. "As the case now stands with you," the pastor replied, "I am free to say that I think you cannot."

"Then I fear I am lost forever," he rejoined. "Nay," said the pastor, "you need not be lost. You can-I know you can pray, and pray in your family."

"Did you ever know a case like mine?" he eagerly enquired.

"I wish I could, sir, but I cannot." "Will you try to do it, even though you fail?" It was easy to see that this last question stirred the depth of the fountain within. The poor man groaned almost aloud, as his strong frame convulsive-ly shook in his seat. "Mr. Y., will you try to do your duty?" again asked the pastor.

There was a moment's quiet pause, and then, as if the fate of worlds depended upon what he was about to say, he calmly replied-

"By the help of God, I will." "Amen!" said the pastor. "Now go and do it." In that family, consisting of several persons, there was not a single praying soul, and it was a matter of no small solicitude in the pastor's mind what would be the result of the evening's interview. With some hopes were mingled many fears. It was, therefore, with no ordinary satisfaction that he listened, two days afterward, to substantially the following account from the lips of Mr. Y. himself:-" After I left your house on the evening of our last And strange tolsay, I retired, after all, without even joy; but I sunk at last into such a sweet and quiet Sailors are often very tender, loving fellows. | slumber as I had not know for weeks, and feared I

At the Annual Meeting held in August 1859, the following nighly satisfactory results were shown :-FIRE DEPARTMENT. The most gratifying proof of the expansion of the business is exhibited in the one following fact-that the increase alone of the last three years exceeds the entire business of some of the existing and of many of the recently defunct fire insurance companies of this kingdom. or upwards of 50 per cent. in three years. The recent returns of duty made by Government for this latter year (1858) again show the "Royal" as more than maintaining the ratio of its increase as stated in former years. Only one among the London insurance offices exhibits an advance to the extent of one-half the increase of the Company, while all the others respectively fall far short of the oiety of its advance.

LIFE DEPARTMENT. The amount of new Life Premiums received this year is by far the largest received in any similar period since the commencement of the business, and must far exceed the average of amount received by the most successful offices | are almost universal in their effects, and a cure can be alin the kingdom. The number of policies issued in the year was 882, the sum assured £387,752 6s. 8d., and the premium £12,354 $s. 4d. These figures show a very rapid extension f business during the last ten years.
