THE GREENWOOD'S SHRIFT.

BY H. W. HUBLEY. Outstretched beneath the leafy shade Of Windsor Forest's deepest glade...

"O mother!" was the mingled cry; "O mother, mother! do not die, And leave us all alone."

"My blessed babes," she tried to say, "But faint accents died away In a low, sobbing moan."

And then she struggled back with death, And fast and strong she drew her breath, And up she raised her head;

And, peering through the deep wood maze With a long, sharp, unearthly gaze, "Will he not come?" she said.

Just then, the parting sighs between, A little maid's light form was seen, All breathless with her speed;

And following close, a man came on, (A poorly man to look upon), Who led a panting steed.

"Mother!" the little maiden cried, Or ere she reached the woman's side, "I have not idled in the town, But long went wandering up and down, The minister to seek."

"They told me here—they told me there—I think they mocked me every where; And when I found his home, And begged him, on my kenneled knee, To bring his book and come with me, Mother, he would not come."

"I told him how you dying lay, And could not go in peace away, Without the minister; I begged him for dear Christ, his sake; But oh! my heart was fit to break— Mother! he would not stir."

"So, though my tears were blinding me, I ran back fast as fast could be, To come again to you; And here, close by, this square I met, Who asked, so mild, what made me fret, And when I told him this,

"You, said Allan, 'my father gave me twenty cents to spend as I choose, and I'm going to buy some candy and a bouquet.'"

"They began to select kisses and hearts, and mottoes, when Phil suddenly nudged Allan's elbow and whispered: 'Do just look at John Mooney there. How ever in the world did he come?'"

But, when the dying woman's face Turned toward him with a wistful gaze, He stepped to where she lay, And kneeling down, he'd over her, Saying, "I am a minister— My sister, let us pray."

parents were not rich. At first Mrs. Howe, the lady in waiting, had hesitated about giving him a seat at her table, for he was alone, and she had unpleasant experiences with rude boys, who did not please to behave as gentlemanly boys should.
