CLIMBING THE MOUNT.

"Lead me to the Rock that is higher than I."-Psalms li. 2. Along the path the suffering Saviour trod," The lonely mount of sacrifice and pain, Our weary feet with fiery sandals shod, Striving afar those heights sublime to gein; Lead us to Thee.

With fainting heart we climb the slippery steep, Our garments soiled with travel and with tears, A ceaseless struggle with our foes we keep, A lengthening strife with sorrows and with fears; Lead us to Thee.

The darkness gathers and the storm draws nigh, The trembling earth beneath us reels and groans; The strong Rock rears afar its head so high; A cry of anguish bursts in quivering tones; Lead us to Thee.

Still pressing on 'mid darkness, strife, and storm, And stumbling oft and struggling upward still; We watch through tears the Princely Leader's form, Where golden glories gleam from Calvary's hill; Lead us to Thee.

Once slowly toiling up the hill He rose Beneath the Cross, the badge of shame and guilt; Now, crowned with love, He triumphs o'er his foes, And mercy blossoms where His blood was spilt; Lead us to Thee.

Thus following Thee, our wounded feet must tread The thorny path with toilsome steps and slow; We bear the Cross, we bow the weary head, 'Neath crowns of pain our throbbing temples glow Lead us to Thee.

Still lead us on, still rising o'er our foes The mount of sacrifice with Thee we gain ; The brightening Cross a weight of glory grows, And Love shall triumph over loss and pain; Lead us to Thee. M. W. HACKELTON.

WILLIAM HAVERLY.

enquired for a geography.

" Plenty of them," said the salesman. "How much do they cost?"

"One dollar, my lad."

"I didn't know they were so much." He turned about Jesus, don't you?" to go out, and even opened the door, but closed it "That question awakened thoughts and feelings again and came back. "I have only got sixty-two such as I never had known before. I could not cents," said he, "you couldn't let me have a geo- sleep that night; the dear child's wondering words, graphy, and wait a little while for the rest of the 'You know about Jesus, don't you?' haunted me the answer; and how he seemed to shrink within his and a sense of my ignorance and guilt weighed too ragged clothes, when the man not very kindly told heavily upon my soul to be shaken off. I was dis-

I followed and overtook him.

" And what now ?" I asked kindly. "Try another place, sir."

"Shall I go too, and see how you succeed?" I

"Oh, yes, if you like," said he in surprise. Four different stores I entered with him, though none of them knew that we came together, and each time he was refused.

"Will you try again?" I asked him as we left

"Yes sir, I shall try them all, or I shouldn't know whether I could get one or not." We entered the fifth store, and the little fellow walked up manfully, and told the gentleman just what he wanted, and how much money he had. "You want the book very much?" asked the pro-

"Yes, sir; very much."

"Why do gou want it so very, very much?" "To study, sir; I can't go to school, but I study when I can, at home, all the boys have got one, and they will get ahead of me. Besides, my father was a sailor, and I want to know about the places where he used to go."

"Does he not go to those places now? "He is dead," said the boy softly. Then he added, after awhile, "I am going to be a sailor too." "Are you though," said the gentleman, raising his eyebrows curiously. "Yes, sir; if I live." "Well my lad, I'll tell you what I will do; I will give you a new geography, and you may give me the remainder of the money when you can, or I will let you have one that is not new for fifty cents." "Are the leaves all in it, and just like the others, only not new ?"

"Yes, sir, just like the new ones." "It will do just as well, then, and I'll have twelve cents left toward buying some other book. I am glad they did not let me have any at the other places." The bookseller looked up inquiringly, and I told him what I had seen of the little fellow. He was much pleased, and when he brought the book along, I saw a nice new pencil, and some clean, white paper

"A present, my lad, for your perseverance. Always have courage like that, and you will make your mark."

"Thank you, sir. You are very good." "What is your name."

"William Haverly, sir."

"Do you want any more books?" I now asked More than ever I can get," he replied, taking in at a glance the books that filled the shelves. I gave him a bank-note. "It will buy some for you," said I.

Tears of joy came into his eyes. "Can I buy what I want with it?" "Yes, my lad, anything."

"Then I'll buy one for mother," said be. "I thank you very much, and some day I hope I can pay you back."

He wanted my name, and I gave to him. Then I left him standing by the counter, so happy that I almost envied him; and many long years passed before I saw him again.

Last year I went to Europe on one of the finest vessels that ever ploughed the waters of the Atlantic. We had beautiful weather until very near the end of our voyage, then came a most terrific storm that would have sunk our noble ship with all on board had it not been for the captain. Every spar was laid low, the rudder was almost useless, and a great leak had shown itself, threatening to fill the ship. The crew were all strong, willing men, and the mates were practical seamen of the first class; but after pumping for one whole night, and still the water was gaining on them, they gave up in despair, and prepared to take the boats, though they might have known no small boat could ride in such a sea. The captain, who had been below, with his charts, now ordered every man back to his post.

It was surprising to see all those men bow before the strong will of their captain, and hurry back to The captain then started below to examine the leak. As he passed me, I asked him if there was any hope. He looked at me and then at the other passengers who had crowded up to hear the reply, and then said rebukingly:

"Yes sir; there is hope as long as one inch of this ship remains above water. When I can see none of it, then I shall abandon the vessel, and not before; nor one of my crew, sir. Everything shall be done to save it, and if we fail, it shall not be from inaction. Come, bear a hand, every man of you at the pumps." Thrice during the day did we despair; but the captain's dauntless courage, perseverance, and powerful will, mastered every mind on board that ship, and we went to work again.

"I will land you all safely at the dock in Liverpool," said he, "if you will only be men."

And he did land us safely, but the vessel sunk, moored to the dock. The captain stood on the deck of his sinking ship, receiving the thanks and blessings of the passengers as they passed down the gangplank. I was the last to leave. As I passed he grasped my hand and said:

"Judge P, ----, do you recognize me?" I told him that I was not aware that I ever saw him until I stepped aboard his ship. "You saw me years ago in Cincinnati. Do you remember the boy in search of a geography?" "Very well sir; William Haverly, you!" "I am he," said he. "God bless you!" "And God bless persevering Captain Haverly l"

LITTLE MABEL.

In a prayer meeting in Boston, a middle aged man rose and said: "I have been thoughtless and impenitent till within a short time, and I will tell you how it came to pass that I am now, as I hope, a disciple of Jesus.

"One Sunday evening I was lying on the sofa in my parlor. My wife had gone out and no one was with me but little Mabel, a sweet child about six About thirty years ago, said Judge P---, I years old, who was making a visit to us, and who sat stepped into a bookstore in Cincinatti, in search of by the centre-table amusing herself with pictures. some books that I wanted. THE BLIND POETESS.

Readers familiar with Sabbath school music have noticed the name of Miss Fanny Crosby, as the gifted authoress of some of the sweetest and most beautiful hymns contained in the recent issues of Messrs. Bradbury, Perkins and Phillips. Probably few who sing "The beautiful Polar Star," "The Orphan," "Our Bright Home Above," "Try to Live like Jesus," etc., are aware that the writer is a poor blind girl. Such, however, is the fact; and she is dependent on this Divine gift of poesy and song for her daily bread.

At a Sabbath School Teacher's Institute, recently held in Cleveland, Ohio, Mr. T. E. Perkins, of New York, related some touching facts in regard to her. He said that instead of writing music for her hymns, she usually furnished hymns for music that had been previously composed!

When he wanted words adapted to a piece of music, he would send for Fanny, and, after singing or playing it over to her a few times, he would ask her "O, yes!" she would reply, "I see just how it is:

I know what you want." She would then cover her eyes-usually holding a book before her face-and sit | PROFITS DIVIDED EVERY FIVE YEARS, for fifteen or twenty minutes, sometimes longer, perfectly absorbed in thought. Then lifting her head, she would say, " Now I am ready, Mr. Perkins;" and she would repeat the words of the hymn she TWO MILLIONS Sterling, had composed, while he wrote it down from her lips. If he suggested trying the words with the music in order to test their adaptation, she would say "I ANNUAL INCOME, nearly $800,000 Sterling. know they will fit; for I have been all through with them." And Mr. Perkins remarked that "he never knew her to fail" in metre or versification; nor did she fail to make the emphatic words in the hymn correspond to the emphatic notes in the music. Surely, she must possess delicacy of taste and power of adaptation of no common order. The law of compensation, in her case, has produced astonishing results. Her simple faith and child-like trust in God are also remarkable. — Congregationalist.

SPEAK EVIL OF NO MAN. Nay, speak no ill, a kindly word, Can never leave a sting behind; And oh, to breath each tale we've heard, Is far beneath a noble mind. Full oft a better seed is sown, By choosing thus a kinder plan; For if but little good is known, Still iet us speak the best we can. Give us the heart that fain would hide, Would fain another's faults efface; How can it please e'en human pride,

To prove humanity so base? No, let us reach a nobler mood, A nobler sentiment of man; Be earnest in the search of good, And speak of all the best we can.

Then speak no ill, but lenient be, To others feelings as our own; If you're the first the fault to see. Be not the first to make it known. For life is but a passing day, No lip can tell how brief its span; Then oh, the little time we stay, Let's speak of all the best we can. AT LABRADOR HERRINGS .- Hourly expected ex Juliet-100 brls. Choice Fat Herrings; 130 half-brls. do. do. do.
