CHILDREN GONE. Sometimes, when the day grows dusky, And the stars begin to come, When the children from their playing Come singing and laughing home, I think, with a sudden sorrow, As they press through the open door, Of the faces of the children That we shall never see here more. Children in snow white caskets, Laid away to their rest,

Their still hands lying folded Over the pulseless breast! Children who came and tarried As only it were for a night, And passed at the break of the morning, On a journey far out of sight;

On a long and lonely journey, Where we could not help or hold, For we saw but the closing eyelids, The fading of locks of gold, And knew that now was but silence, Where once had been prattle and song, And only a chill and a shadow Where was sunshine the whole day long.

Away from our care and caressess, "God knows where they are," we say, And we know that we tarry behind them Only a little way;

For we, too, haste in our journey, And we know it will not be long Till we come to the city eternal, The rest and rapture of song.

Yet oft, when the sun is setting

In unspeakable splendor of light, Or the day grow dim and dusky, And the shadows stretch into night, When the children, tired with their playing, Come in through the open door, I think of the dear, dear children

Who will never come any more. -Little Corporal.

Each young bride brought her outfit with her-for neither was poor in such things-and from the hour they took possession, these houses, then just alike, began to look very different. Vines soon shaded the front porch of one, and flowers graced the dooryard; new trees were planted before it, and down the steep lane leading to the road; orchards of apples, pears, and cherries were set out in therear; and a fine vegetable garden on one side. The introduction of those two young girls into the Major's family divided his descendants into two distinct classes of people. The old gentleman died, leaving a farm and ten thousand dollars each to his sons. Thrift and industry had made one of them rich before this, while an unfortunate choice of a wife and the burden of her host of relatives had disheartened the other, and forced him into the humiliating place of a beggar and borrower in the family. Two families of children were to be cared for. One mother worked hard and kept good help; the other did nothing, and had no one to do anything for her! The children of one family began to be ashamed of their cousins at schools; and not being angels, they probably taunted them with their soiled garments and unkempt locks. This caused alienation between the mothers; and one father soon grew weary of helping the other, who taunted him with "despising him for his misfortunes," whatever they were, which nobody had ever seen or heard of but himself. The children of the careless mother came up very like herself, inheriting her infirmities, and were called at school, by way of ridicule, the "Dormisc." After a while it was not uncommon to hear the two forms distinguished as the "Dorr place," and the "Dormouse place."

The barn-doors were off their hinges, and the large gate leading into the lane had long been propped up with great stones, which had to be rolled away every time it was opened or shut-for the father, having a comfortless, untidy home, and a thriftless family, after a long and brave struggle, gave up trying to keep matters straight. for the forethought and care of the old Major in leaving woodland to be cut from, but not alienated, they would have come to want before their parents died. Ayer's Cathartic Pills, For all the purposes of a Laxative

Perhaps no one mediine is so universally required by everybody as any before so universal ly adopted into use, in every country and amo all classes, as this mild efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more re-tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends and all know that what it does once it does always -that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity. They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the tomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the oody, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease. Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listless-ness. For Bysentery or Diarrhoea, but one mild ose is generally required.

For Etheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear. For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge. For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach. An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from
