THE GOLDEN CITY. BY MRS. MARY C. GURLEY.

In the light of a golden city, Far up the ethereal height, Fair angels and seraphs are walking In their raiment of spotless white. By its jasper portal, in dreamings, Of late I have frequently stood, Transfixed with breathless amazement, In view of the glory of God.

On earth I had known of that glory, Creation's first smile it awoke, And, while morning stars hymn'd glad praises, Light and beauty in chaos bespoke. Since then it has flooded all nations With a crimson and life-giving tide, And millions their garments are cleansing In the blood of the Saviour who died.

I thought on that crucified Saviour While nearing the heavenly gate, Till it seemed as though only to see Him Through eternity's ages I'd wait. I thought on His priceless redemption, On His power ever faithful to save, Of His rising 'mid shouts of archangels, Leading captive both Death and the Grave! Many faces were sweetly familiar

That passed in my wondering sight, Some on which tears of anguish had fallen, Then sad, now ineffably bright. And they knew me in Heaven, those dear ones, And many a comforting word Has come to me here in my loneliness Which from them all enraptured I heard.

Baby eyes we had closed in the slumber That none on earth ever may break, There beamed with a gladness exceeding What a mother's love ever could wake. Ob, darlings! you are not in the darkness Of the grave ever silent and cold ; In that gloom you were left for a moment, Then were borne to the shining fold

There in palaces broad and resplendent, Ever shielded from looks of disdain, Those whom earth denied even a shelter Were at rest from privation and pain. Crowning all God's infinite mercies,

After they had risen from the tea-table, and the tea-things had been cleared away, Mr. Arden brought out his three apples and laid them upon a plate. They were indeed tempting to look upon. They were nearly equal in size, but one was less beautiful in shape than the others, and had become "specked," or slightly decayed, on one side of the stem. This defect though small was quite apparent.

"They are very beautiful," said the mother, taking the plate in her hand, and examining the fruit. " I think father has neglected me." "Oh ! you shall have half of mine," said Mary quickly.

"And papa shall have half of mine," said Martha. "And to whom, then, shall I give half of mine ?"

asked Jane. "Oh I know-I will divide the half of mine between papa and mamma."

By which means we shall get the largest share," said Mr. Arden. "So mother, we shall not only fare as well but better than the rest."

"And that will be all fair; for you ought to have the largest portion always," said Mary, while her eyes expressed the warm affection that was in her heart for her kind benefactors, who had been to her all that her own father and mother could possibly have been.

"Now, Jane," said Mr. Arden, handing towards her the plate which held the fruit, "take your apple, dear."

Jane, without pausing a moment, took an apple from the plate.

"Here, Martha," and Mr. Arden presented the plate to his youngest daughter, who took, with a smiling lip and sparkling eye, the large golden apple her kind father had brought her.

"They have left the specked apple for you, Mary,' said Mr. Arden in a slightly disappointed tone. "But never mind, dear, the ripest and richest fruit is soonest to decay. I have no doubt that the superior flavor of your apple will more then make up for its slight defect.

The two sisters, who perceived in a minute, from their father's remarks, and the tone in which he spoke, that they had acted selfishly in choosing the best apples for themselves, and that he had noticed it, immediately offered to change with Mary ; but she said with a pleasant smile.-

"Oh, no, no! I am perfectly satisfied; I should have taken this one, if I had been offered the first choice."

As she said this she took a knife from the table, Mrs. Arden.

This truth ever precious must be. That while sent to the rich and the mighty, To the poorest salvation is free.

Blest city-" Jerusalem golden" As I gazed up thy radiant street, Praying but for a glimpse of the glory That encircled the Master's seat, On my ear fell a still small whisper, And I felt the tones must be The same that once in the olden time Stilled the waves of Galilee !

Disciple, return to the vineyard; Zealous laborers there are but few; On thy vine rich fruit should be clust'ring, Thy toil for my glory renew. The cross must be borne in my service Ere claims to the kingdom are won ; Go! bear to the nations my standard, Proclaim what redemption hath done.

Seek flocks that no shepherds are leading, To my lambs give a tenderer care, O'er mountains, in deserts yet barren, The way for my coming prepare; I'll be to thee light amid darkness, A covert in storms and in heat, And by the pure waters of healing Thy every petition will meet.

Oh, blessed, all merciful Saviour ! Here again I am bearing the cross, Not ling'ring even near Eden, Since Thou deem'st all ling'ring a loss. I have seen Thy Zion celestial, Thy prophets and martyrs of old, And yearn, 'mid earth's deepening shadows, With fullness that view to unfold.

As Moses Thy glory reflected When from Horeb and Sinai he came, As Apostles who viewed Thy ascension Went forth in the power of Thy name, Even so would I seek, dear Jesus, To illumine for others the road That Thou hast made perfect through suffring And that ends at the Throne of our God. THE SPECKED APPLE.

Mr. Arden had two daughters, Jane and Martha, one twelve years old, and the other thirteen, at the time of the incident we are about to relate.

A little girl named Mary, about the age of Martha, also made one of the family of Mr. Arden. She was the orphan child of a friend, and had been received by Mr. Arden, when quite young, and treated with all the kindness that marked his conduct towards his own children.

Mr. Arden was a man who understood very well that all the unhappiness in the world has its origin in selfishness; and that the true way to find happiness was to seek the good of others. He often explained this to his children, and taught them that in

While she yet spoke, she pressed the knife into the apple, but something hard, towards the center, prevented the blade from going through. A slight pressure broke the apple in halves, and revealed brightly gleaming in the center, a very elegant little brooch !

"Why, papa !" exclaimed Jane, who understood in an instant what this meant.

"Jane we are justly punished for our selfishness in taking the best apples and leaving Mary the worst," said Martha, the tears starting to her eyes, even while she made this confession. "These apples, as father said, have indeed tried our characters. But let me look at your beautiful present, Mary." Martha took the brooch, and, while examining it, perceived that there was an inscription on the inside.

She read it aloud, "To the least selfish." "It is yours by right, Mary," said Jane, frankly owning what was daily seen by all to be true, " for you are the least selfish here." Mary said nothing but her eyes were full of tears. "My children," said Mr. Arden, "this is a little matter, but it has shown you something of yourselves. I am rejoiced to find that Jane and Martha bear their disappointment in such a generous spirit; for it tells me that the lesson has done them good. - Children's Guest.

THE GOLDEN GUINEA.

There was a little boy of seven, or thereabouts, who, his mother hoped, had found the religion of Jesus ; for whereas he had been willful, disobedient and selfish, he had grown lamb-like in his temper and conduct.

"Mother," said the child one day, standing at her side, "it seems to me I love the Lord Jesus, he shines in my heart so; and I love everybody. Mother, I would give him anything; I would give him my rocking-horse."

"Will you give the Lord Jesus your gold guinea, Herman ?" she asked. He looked earnestly into her face for a moment, and his eye fell. He slowly crept behind her chair, then stole to the open window, then down stairs, without saying a word. She knew he thought much of his beautiful gold guinea. Was he ready to part with his little "all" for His sake? It was a hard question.

Two days passed away, and his mother was afraid Herman had forgotten it. That evening he came to her, and said, with a sweet seriousness-

"Mother, I give my guinea to the Lord Jesus; here t is. What shall be done with it ?"

"What should you wish to have done with it?" she asked.

"May it buy bibles to bring the heathen children to Jesus with ?" he said. And, as he slipped it into her hand, a happy smile overspread her face " Mother," said he, "I am glad I have got a gold guinea to give to Jesus ; but I was not ready when you first asked me. I am now."

Herman gave up his all. And was he not happy ? Oh, yes! very happy: for, child as he was, he had found the kingdom of heaven, which is better than a world full of gold .- The Well-Spring.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excelle edy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in their estima-tion, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dan-gerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a provision against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them. Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the dis ease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it.

cured by it. Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses. So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here, or do more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

The number and importance of its cures in the ague dis-tricts, are literally beyond account, and we believe without a parallel in the history of Ague medicine. Our pride is gratified by the acknowledgments we receive of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases, and where other remedies had wholly failed. Unacclimated persons, either resident in, or travelling through miasmatic localities, will be pro-tected by taking the AGUE CURE daily. For Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy activity. For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is

But this he found a very hard lesson for young minds to learn. Especially hard did it seem for Jane and Martha to prefer Mary in anything to themselves. pered girl, and, therefore, they could not help loving says, her. But they loved themselves better.

One day, late in the winter, at a time when fruit was scarce, Mr. Arden, on coming from his office, brought home with him three large mellow pippins. They were intended for Jane, Martha, and Mary. While at tea, Mr. Arden mentioned the fact that he had three large apples in his coat pocket for the girls.

"Oh ! give me mine," said Jane, eagerly. "Give me mine, papa !" said Martha.

But Mary said nothing although she looked pleased. "After tea you shall have them," replied Mr. Arden. "But let me tell you there is something about these three apples that will test, to some extent, your characters."

" How can that be, papa ?" asked Jane.

"We shall see," replied Mr. Arden, smiling, " No doubt they will test our love of apples," said

Martha, who was a merry little girl.

"Not the least doubt of that in the world," said her father. "But take care, Martha, that in receiving your apple, you do not lose your appeite for eating it.

" I shall if it is very sour, or has a poor flavor." "That you will not find to be the case. They are as fine apples as I have seen for a long time." "What a mystery papa makes about these apples." said Jane, "I am really impatient to see them." "You shall both see and taste them, dear, after tea.

But don't forget that there is something about these | too, if they can be got to earn or save the money apples that is going to try your characters."

and romps with it a good deal. This makes the dog ake liberties with him, such as putting his great paws upon his shoulders, pushing him down, and rolling over him. Sometimes Hero wants to play when his young master wishes to study or work. They loved her because she was a gentle, sweet-tem- Then the boy speaks in a tone of command, and " Down, Hero-down, sir !"

Poor Hero obeys, and slinks away with drooping tail into his house.

Now, I know another boy who does not own a big dog like Hero, but he carries a little, ugly, furious cur in his breast, where it frowns, and snarls, and its owner has no control over it at all. What do you think is the name of the cur?

Temper! Now, if this latter boy was wise he would bring his cur under control. He would say, "Down, Temper, down !" whenever it began to growl. He would bring it under discipline till it would obey him as Hero does the other boy. It is true, Temper has been master so long it would cost some trouble at first to subdue it; but if the boy would pray hard, and then be resolute in saying, "Down," he would soon master it. A praying boy can conquer any temper that ever raged in a child's bosom.

THE CHILDREN'S PENNIES .- An honored Sunday school superintendent whom we once knew would never consent that the weekly gifts of the children should be used for school purposes. They were sacred to purely benevolent objects-the freedmen, the poor family visited by sickness, the feeble frontier church, the ship Morning Star, etc. He was right. Teach the children to give, regularly, cheerfully. And teach them that it is not giving, to take money from one pocket and put it into another. If they bring their pennies to buy books or papers for themselves, it is not giving. It is a great point gained, which they bring .- The Advance.

It is free from Lime, Vitriol, and all other deadly mixtures so common to be found amongst washing compounds. 'Try Pickstone's Washing Crystal, if you want ease, comfort, and economy in washing, which washes every thing, and has rapid sale. It will be found invaluable for the following domestic purposes, viz. :--It washes all fine things, such as Muslin Lace, Crotchet Work, Baby Linen, &c,; cleaning Sponges, Combs, and Brushes; 1 emoving stains from the hands, and grease from Carpets, Cloth, Flannel, &c. It makes Hard Water Soft, and may be used with good effect in Baths, as it immediately removes all condensed perspiration from the skin. A small quantity should also be used in the foot pan. It forms a cooling and cleansing wash for the head, by dissolving a teaspnonful of the Crystal in a quarter of a pint of water ; and for cleansing the Mouth, Teeth, and Gums, it is quite a luxury, by adding a teaspoonful to a tumbler of water. It renders linen beautifully white, and unlike other preparations, at the same time preserves the fabric. It contains nothing injurious to life. A child eating it by mistake, will not be injured. If you have not used this Cleansing Crystal, lose r time in obtaining it. Nothing has ever been introdu into this country which has effected such a wonderfu change upon Washing Days. It saves your time-save your clothes-saves your money; and it does not injure the most delicate hands. Pickstone's Cleansing Crystal makes washing a pleasure, reduces the cost of fuel, the wear and tear of labor, and improves every article washed. For Linens, and heavy washes, it cannot be surpassed; for Laces, and fine fabrics, it is unequalled. It does not injure the color of Prints, but strengthens and improve them--by its use they retain their original brilliancy. Flan-nels become white and soft like new.
