

THE RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCER.

The Paris crew returned to their homes in this city on Tuesday last, and our citizens united in giving them one of the most enthusiastic receptions it has ever been our lot to witness. Long before the steamer was signalized, the wharves, streets, house-tops and windows near Reed's Point, were literally covered with a multitude of people of both sexes, and of every age and class. As the steamer came up the harbor, a battery of the Vosges Artillery fired a salute, and the crowd, only after landed amid the most enthusiastic cheers of the multitude. Carriages were in waiting to convey them to the Court House, where they were presented with a sword and a purse of one hundred dollars to each man. The streets were all gayly decorated with flags, and presented a most enlivening scene. In the evening bonfires blazed in every quarter, and a stranger would have supposed that St. John was celebrating a victory won.

MADRID, Sept. 19.—The Spanish Government has decreed its official ratification of the recognition of the French Republic, by Senor Olozagar.

To the Editor of the Telegraph and Journal:

SIR:—We cannot allow much time to elapse without tendering to the citizens of St. John our most sincere thanks for the magnificent reception which they granted us on our arrival. We fear contest, though we did our best to win, we unfortunately lost. We recognise in this act a sympathy with us in our misfortune, which to a certain extent was their own, while their allusion to our former victories was kind in the extreme. We also tender to our fellow citizens thanks for the more substantial tokens of their continued regard, and hope that a day may yet come when New Brunswick ormen may retouch the faded laurels of the Province.
