THE FORTY DAYS.

Those forty days when Jesus lived our life ! Oh, read me that sweet story once again ; How Jesus, risen, from the silent tomb, Went in and out among the sons of men.

And how they talked with Him at eventide, Read me the story, wonderful and sweet ; Now while His peace fills all the fragrant air, And blossoms drift, like snow-flakes, at our feet.

We go our way; upon our daily path Falls the cool shadow of the ivied towers; Bringing sweet thoughts, dear Saviour of thy love. To make us strong for life's hard, trying hours.

We come at night, the weary day's work done, Like tired children, nestling at Thy feet; We bring our work, the work our hands have wrought,

So humanly imperfect, incomplete.

When Thy sweet dews fall on the young, green leaves ;

When the white blooms are drifting far and wide.

We come to Thee, with tired hearts, and say, Abide with us, for it is eventide.

Dear Lord, if we have met Thee, through the day, Not knowing it was Thee, like them of old; If we have missed the sweetness of Thy face, Have missed Thy presence and Thy grace untold,-

If we have missed one gracious word of Thine, One gracious word of tenderness and love,-Forgive it all, and leave us not alone ;

Speak to us still, and draw our hearts above.

Ascended Lord, be unto mine and me A shadow in a very weary land ; And let us stay our human hearts on Thee Lest we should miss the guiding of Thy haud.

LITTLE SANDIE.

In Edinburgh, two gentlemen were standing at the door of a hotel one very cold day, when a little boy, with a poor, thin, blue face, his feet bare and red with the cold, and with nothing to cover him Poor Johnny was sadly frightened, and knew not it not be written on the sleds and skates of boys as well as anything else? It is a false and very injurious notion, that religion is inconsistent with any real good. It ought rather to heighten our enjoyment of it, because it leads us to recognize and be grateful to the Giver of all."

"Well, mother, I shall respect Eddy more than ever, now I know he acts from principle." "I trust you will, and I hope that you too as well as he will learn, not only to work and to study, but to play as a Christian."-Child at Home.

THE GOLDEN RULE.

"Willie," said Mrs. Page, as she lay upon her bed, very sick, "I want to talk to you a while. I may not be here long; and I want to tell you a few things that are in my mind.

"You are trying to serve Jesus. You want to please him. Now, remember, that in no way can you please him better every day than by keeping the 'Golden Rule,'--' Whatsoever you would that men should do to you, do you even so them.' Try and follow this teaching of our blessed Lord, and you will be both good and happy. And I want you to take care of little Nellie. She is not a strong child, and will miss a mother's care. Yout must be both a mother and a brother to her. Promise me that you will, my son."

Willie was sobbing by the bedside.

"Oh! I will promise anything you ask, darling mother," said he: "only don't leave me !" And the poor boy, who was not much more than a child himself, wept bitterly.

"God knows best, my dear son; and he will do all things well. If I must go from you, he will care for and protect you. I can leave my children in his hands."

A very few days passed, and Willie was motherless. No one in all the city cared for him but little Nellie. He was poor, and too young to do hard work; but he must do something to support himself and his little sister. But he searched in vain for something to do. Some people wanted no boy, and others said he was too small. Even the crossings were all spoken for by other boys; and there eemed nothing left for nim to do but starve.

One day, he was searching for employment as usual. He was hungry and discouraged. Just as he was crossing a crowded street, he heard a cry : and, looking up, he saw a lame boy with crutches who was trying to cross. He could only walk very slowly; and, while he made his way along carefully and painfully, the street became full of vehicles. and one horse seemed to be coming right upon him.

A RUM MURDER.

One of the most horrible murders ever perpetrated, was that done recently in New York City by a drunken vagabond. Filled with whisky, he entered a shoemaker's shop and stole a knife. He next entered a small grocery on Hudson Street, asked for lodgings, was refused, and told to leave. He refused, and was approached by the owner, William Townsend, when he sprung at him, thrust the knife into his heart, and fled. In the presence of his family the poor man fell dead. This is one of rum's victories, and our legislature propose to maintain its rule, and the daily press of Boston and New York, with exceptions, defend the horrid iniquity that breeds these crimes of hell. Only prohibition will save these innocent lives. But, that men may drink at Delmonico's and the Fifth Avevenue, at Parker's, and the Revere, this family must be made fatherless. How many more such murders must there be before the politicians and the people are cured of this chiefest of abominations?

Every one who has seen the curriculum knows that where Æschylus and political economy injure one, ate hours and dissipation use up a dozen. Dissipation is a sure destroyer, and every young man who follows it, is as the early flower to untimely frost. Those who have been inveigled into the path of vice are named legion. A few hours sleep each night, high living and plenty of "smashes" make war upon every function of the body. The brains, the heart, the lungs, the liver, the spine, the limbs, the bones, the flesh, every part and faculty are overtasked and weakened by the terrific II rings; 25 half-brls. Split do. For sale by energy of passions loosened from restraint, until, like a dilapidated mansion, the "earthly house of this tabernacle" falls into ruinous decay. Fast young men, right about.

"I know of nothing to forbid it, my child, provided they play as Christians."

"Play as Christians ! Why mother, how is that ? I never heard of such a thing before."

"Perhaps not, and yet true religion will manifest itself as well in play as in anything else. The Christian child will take care to play at proper times and in proper places. He will not neglect for it his studies or his work. He will be kind and obliging to his playmates, will not deceive or wrong them in any manner.
