LISTENING!

"Speak, Lord, for thy servant heareth" When the world is busy round me, And each wave of sound is stirred When the thronging crowd press by me, Onward by strong impulse spurred-I am listening-Listening for the Master's word, Listening till his voice is heard.

When the heavy cloud of sorrow, Falls upon the darkened home ; 'Mid the bitter cry of anguish, Or the heart's unuttered moan-I am listening-Listening for one voice well known; For my Father's voice alone.

When conflicting thoughts assail me, And strange doctrines reach my ear; When the sheep are all bewildered, And no trusty guide seems near-I am listening, Till the Shepherd's voice I hear-Listening, till he appear.

When the voices of affection Never more on earth will wake; And the heart's deep earnest yearning, Silent keeps for their dear sake-I am listening, Listening till the Bridegroom speak, Till his love the silence break. When God's truth is placed before me,

With its holy words of cheer; But in vain my finite reason Strives to make its meaning clear-I am listening. Listening with patient ear, Till the Spirit's voice I hear.

Listening, ever, Jesus, keep us; May we at thy feet abide ; Ne'er beguiled by earthly voices, Always waiting at thy side-Waiting-listening For thy word, our faithful Guide ; Speak ! and we are satisfied. -The Christian (London).

was one of them. Do you not think this conduct admirable?

And was this vicarious punishment? It was; -one suffering from his own free will the punishment that was to have been borne by another. You see-do you not ?- that this is just what He did who bore our sins in His own body on the tree -the Saviour of men. What he suffered we cannot know in this life; but God laid on him the iniquity of us all, which he willingly bore, to save us, | Oils. from eternal shame and misery. With his stripes we are healed. How great the gratitude each of us sortment, and of the very best quality, and at low rates. owes such a Friend !- Christian Treasury.

THE IMPORTANCE OF LEARNING A TRADE .- Why is it that there is such a repugnance on the part of parents to putting their sons to a trade? A skilled mechanic is an independent man. Go where he will, his craft will bring him support. He need ask favors of none. He has literally his fortune in his own hands. Yet foolish parents---ambitious that their sons should "rise in the world," as they are more willing that they should study for a profession, with the chances of even moderate success heavily against them, or run the risk of spending their manhood in the ignoble task of retailing dry goods, or of toiling laboriously at the accountant's desk, than learn a trade which would bring them manly strength, health, and independence. In point of fact, the method they choose is the one least likely to achieve the advancement aimed at; for the supply of candidates for positions as," errand boys," dry goods clerks, and kindred occupations, is notoriously overstocked; while, on the other hand, the demand for really skilled mechanics of every description is as notoriously beyond the supply. The crying need of this country to-day is for skilled labor; and that father who neglects to provide his son with a useful trade, and to see that he thoroughly masters it, does him a grievous wrong, and runs the risk of helping, by so much, to increase the stock of idle and dependent, if not vicious, members of society. It is stated in the report of the Prison Association, lately issued, that of fourteen thousand five hundred and ninety six prisoners confined in the penitentiaries of thirty part of our Fall Stock of Gold Jewelery. States, in 1867, seventy-seven per cent. or over ten thousand of the number, had never learned a trade. The fact conveys a lesson of profound interest to those who have in charge the training of boys and girls too for the active duties of life.-Manufacturer and Builder.

VICARIOUS PUNISHMENT.

This is the term applied to such punishment as that which Christ bore when he suffered on the cross, the just for the unjust. You do not quite know what it means, do you ? I think I hear you say, "Oh, we do not want to know what such long words mean; we want to read something pretty !' But stop a minute: I have a story to tell.

It was a warm summer afternoon; a lazy breeze stole through the windows of a little hot district school-house, lifting the white curtains, and rustling the leaves of the copy books that lay open on all the desks. Thirty or forty scholars of all ages were bending over their writing, quiet and busy; the voice of the master as he passed about among the writers, was the only sound. But though so silent this little light, hot school-room has its heroes and heroines as certainly as the wider sphere of life. The bell rings for the writing to be laid aside and now comes the last exercise of the day, the spelling in which nearly all the school join. At the head of the class is a delicate little girl in a blue dress, whose bright eyes and attentive air show that she prizes her place, and means to keep it.

Presently a word which had passed all the lower end of the class came to Eunice. The word was privilege. "P-r-i-v, priv-i, priv-l-e-g-e, legeprivilege," spelt Eunice. But the teacher vexed with the mistakes of the other end of the class, misunderstood and passed it. The little girl looked amazed, the bright color came into her cheeks, and she listened eagerly to the next person, who spelt it again as she had done.

"Right," said the teacher; "take your place." "I spelt it so," whispered Eunice to herself; the tears springing to her eyes as she passed down. But too timid to speak to the master, she remained in her place, inwardly determining soon to get up again. But her trials were not yet over.

Many expedients had been tried in the school to keep out that arch-enemy of all teachers-whispering. At length the following plan was adopted : perer's place" was punished very severely-as the "good time." school phrase was, "took a ferrling!" This plan "Come," he often said to his shop-mate, "leave being found last on the floor; but though it secured | reading?" doubted its justice.

whispered, sir."

"I am hungry," said the grave. "Give me food. Death answered, "I will send forth a minister of awful destruction, and you shall be satisfied." "What minister will you send ?"

"I will send alcohol. He shall go in the guise of food and medicine, pleasure and hospitality. The people shall drink and die."

And the grave answered, "I am content." And now the church bells began to toll, and the mournful procession to advance.

"Who are they bringing now?" said the grave. "Ah," said death, "they are bringing a houseold. The drunken father aimed a blow at his wife. He killed the mother and her child together, and then dashed out his own life."

" And who said the grave, "comes next, followed by a train of weeping children ?"

"This is a broken hearted woman, who has long pined away in want, while her husband has wasted his substance at the tavern. And he, too is borne behind, killed by the hand of violence." "And who next?"

"A young man of generous impulses, who, step by step, became dissipated and squandered his all. My agent turned him out to be frozen in the street." of anguish that will not be silenced."

his mother. He spurned her love, reviled her rod, and a bloated corpse he comes to thee. And thus they come-further than the eye can reach, the procession to thy dark abodes. And still, lured by LEMAN, Halifax, N. S. the enchanting cup which I have mingled, the sons Fredericte of men crowd the paths of dissipation. Vainly they dream of escape, but I shut behind them the invisible door of destiny. They know it not, and test of its stability with song, and dance, and riot, they hasten to thee. O Grave! Then I throw my fatal spell upon new throngs of youth, and soon they, too, will be thine." "I am satisfied," said the grave; "keep on in
