AFTER THE DARKNESS-LIGHT

After the darkness-light ! Out of the evil-good ! From foulest wrong upriseth right-Sin-cleansed, O Christ, in blood !

What though the billows roll? What though the waves sweep o'er? The tempest, Lord, thou canst control, And guide us safe to shore !

O doubting heart, be still! O fainting soul, be brave ! By devious ways works He his will-Omnipotent to save!

Truth lives ;- for this Christ died ; And, e'en though crushed to earth, Shall rise again, re-glorified, Child of immortal birth !

Then lag not, weary feet, Though rocks loom mountain high,-Press bravely on,-for, fair and sweet, Beyond, the valleys lie!

Dread not the battle hour; Move on to meet the foe! Heaven grants the hero's arm its power-Heaven guides the patriot's blow !

Though dark the dun clouds roll-Though deadly fierce the fray-God can the battle storm control, And bid the billows stay!

O doubting heart, be still ! O fainting soul, be brave ! By devious ways works He his will,-Omnipotent to save!

MY SIN.

"Mother, please look here and see my pretty block house. When I'm a man we'll have one just | could not do half enough to atone for my wicked like it."

the snow," said I.

where Harry was. Then came a horrible sense, as of the earth giving way under my feet, and I knew no more; a pleasant feeling of warmth, a languid sense pervading my whole system. I opened my eyes and glanced around the room. A strange woman by the fire; at the foot of the bed, my husband, with my hand over his eyes. I tried to think where I was and what had happened, but in vain. Then my attention was arrested by a little figure in a red flannel night-dress, cuddled up in a big chair -my Harry! Then it all flashed across my mind. I sat up straight in bed, with a faint "Why !"

"What is it ?" said I feebly. "You must not talk; lie down. Oh, darling !"

and the strong man wept like a child. And the little figure came and jumped on my bed, and, putting his arms around my neck, cried too. And I puzzled to know what it all meant, cried also. The strange figure came forward and took Harry away, saying, "Be careful, Mr. Loring, everything now depends upon quiet."

"Tell me all now," said I. "I must know; I had such a horrible feeling. Oh Harold! I dreamed Harry was drowned !"

His face grew white. "He was near death George Gray got him out of the pond. Gray sent down to the office for me; I went after Dr. Hooper, and came right up. There was but a spark of life; but we succeeded at last."

"How many days ago was it, Harold ?" said I. "Seven weeks ago yesterday," said he smiling. "Seven weeks !" said I. "Impossible !"

"You have been very sick with brain fever, Ella. You were very near death; for days we despaired of ever seeing you conscious. You would call yourself by all kinds of names; you would say, ' Harry is drowned, and I made him drown himself. Last night Dr. Hooper said the crisis was at hand; if you lived through the night, you would get well. Oh, Ella, I am so thankful you are spared to me!'

"I have been so weak and sinful, Harold," said I; and then told him all, not keeping back anything.

He heard me through stroking my hair in a gentle fashion. When I finished, he said : "It has taught you a lesson, Ella dear." And that was all. I soon recovered. For a long time, I could not bear Harry out of my sight. It semed as though I conduct. CHURNS! CHURNS! CHURNS! HEALTH! TIME! MONEY!

Why Should I Buy Kitchen's Patent Churn ? DECAUSE they preserve health, save time, save money, D and the churning is all done in 5 or 10 minutes. You will then believe what I assure you is true, viz. : That I have for sale the best churn ever invented--Kitchen's Patent Rotary Double Dasher. This churn has two Dashers, each revolving in an opposite direction It is useless to attempt a description of this churn in an advertisement, it has to be seen to be sppreciated. It is estimated by practical farmers that it will produce one-tenth more butter from the same quantity of cream than any other churn now in use The public are respectfully requested to call at my store, examine the article, and select for hemselves ELY PERKINS. threw his little arms around my neck, saying, "Oh | drives the demon away. mamma! I love you so !"

in a light stand upon which I had placed a rare to little children laid away forever? Parian vase, with a rosebud just unfolding its crimson petals in it. The stand fell over and the vase (a gift from my dead mother) was shattered.

"You, naughty boy !" I cried angrily, "You deserve to be whipped. Pick up those pieces instantly and put them in the coal-hod." He stooped, carefully picked up the fragments, scratching his little fingers as he did so against the sharp edges. He carried them away, and was gone some time. When he returned it was with something tightly clasped in his hand.

Coming up to me he placed a five cent piece in my lap saying, "Will that buy a new vase, mamma ?"

What evil demon possessed me to take the coin, his sacredly cherished treasure, a kind neighbor had given him for some little office, and throw it from me, I know not.

Harry picked it up, with tears running down his face, and sat down upon his stool with his hands folded so meekly. Presently he said : "May I go and play with Eddie Potter ?"

"I don't care where you go," said I crossly, " as long as you keep out of my sight."

Harry went to the closet where his coat and hat hung, put them on, and came and stood by my side.

"Mamma, will you please forgive me? I am so sorry !" and he put his lips up for a kiss. Oh, God forgive me! I pushed the little fellow away. He stood by the door a moment, looking pitifully at me. It is twenty-five years to-day since he stood there, but I can see him, with his blue coat and red and gray worsted skating cap, and the little red mittens, as if it was but yesterday. But I looked coldly at him, the door opened and shut, the little feet went slowly down the stairs. I heard him go out the gate. Looking out the window, I saw the little fellow lift his face with a smile as he saw me, which gave place to a pitiful quiver of the lips, as he saw I took no notice of him. I watched the darling down the street with a strange, undefined feeling till the little coat and red mittens were no longer visible. Twice a sudden impulse moved me, to call him back, but I crushed it down. Oh, would to God I had! Well, I sewed all through the winter afternoon. At four o'clock, I put away my work and sat by the window. Conscience began to reproach me for my conduct. "I don't care," said I, "my beautiful vase is a ruin." "What is the value of all the vases in the world compared with your child? Have you not spoken crossly to that dear little Harry, who is also so cheerful and obedient ? And this is not the first time, either, and you calling yourself a christian mother, too! Suppose Harry should be suddenly taken from you, Would'nt your cruel words haunt you forever?"

I could bear it no longer. I rose and picked up laughing merrily, and springing to my side, he that terribe death to which Harry came so near,

CHRISTIAN UPRIGHTNESS HONORED.

Some twenty-five years ago, there was a young man, a member of my church in D., who was a stage-driver. He carried his religion with him into his business, and honored it in all places and on all occasions. At one end of his route his home was at a public house, where were the usual hangers-on at a rum-selling tavern. There unprincipled men would often get into angry disputes with one another. They had their frequent disagreements and quarrels.

On such occasions it was usual for them to say, We will leave it to H." They had no confidence in the honesty of those of their own class, but did not hesitate to refer their differences to the Christian stage-driver.

What has become of all those rum-drinking, I cannot say. They have doubtless reaped as they have sowed; and it is reasonable to infer that their history has not been a very pleasant one to contemplate.

The young stage-driver held fast his integrity in the midst of all temptations, and continually in creased in the confidence and esteem of his fellowmen. He has risen from one position to another, and is now a man of wealth, an influential member of an important church in Illinois, and superintendent of a long line of railroad, highly honored and esteemed by all that know him. A TRUE TEMPERANCE GIRL,-We were highly pleased with an incident a friend related to us, about a little girl who with her parents went to visit the fair at the American Institute. While there, one of the managers took a fancy to the little miss, who was of a lively and social turn, and, to make her visit more pleasant, himself conducted of interest. He left her for a short time, to attend to something in another part of the building : and when he returned, immediately sought the little girl offering his hand to again conduct her around. To his astonishment, she refused to accompany him.

"Why," said he, "you have not seen half the pretty things yet: come, and I will show them to you." Still she refused, and clung as if affrighted to her mother. Surprised at such conduct, her mother remonstrated, and bade her be polite to the kind gentleman. "Mother," said the little girl, whispering in her mother's ears, "I can not go with him—he smells of rum." Was she to be blamed. children?

the stray litter about the room, to give it a more tidy appearance.

Then I went to the window, peering anxiously through the gloom, but seeing nothing of my boy. My heart became terrible heavy ; this suspense was unbearable. Hastily throwing a shawl over my head, I ran into Mrs. Potter's. "Have you seen Eddie ?" was the question, before I entered the room. "Have you seen Harry?" "He was over here at half past two; he and Eddie went over to Josie Gray's, I think-

What she thought I never knew, for at that moment the door flew open and Eddie rushed in breathless, screaming : "Mother! mother! Harry Loring is drowned. We were sliding on the millpond, and there was a hole in the ice with snow on it, and Harry did'nt see it, and

"Hush Eddie !" said his mother, looking at me fearfully; "here is Mrs. Loring !"

There was a great silence in the room, broken only by the blithe, sweet voice of a canary, and the purr of a Maltese cat. Presently, Mrs. Potter came toward me and placed her hand softly upon my shoulder, saying, "Ella, my poor child !"

But I never moved, but sat gazing with wide open eyes upon an awful picture. A cold, gray afternoon, a pond, a little boy playing upon it, one little figure well known to me suddenly disappearing through the treacherousice down, down, the little hands grasping at cruel weeds, the sweet mouth full of water, and those wicked sinful words through my ears, "I don't care where you go, so long as you keep out of my sight." There was a mist before my eyes, a ringing in my ears. I remember | There is no real use in riches, except it be in the leaving the house with a blind feeling of going distribution; the rest is but conceit.

School. She was poorly dressed-a calico gown ; a hat trimmed with faded green ribbons; slippers, not boots, thin slippers, which looked as if somebody had given them to her, and a small shawl on her shoulders. Miss Jones brought her in, and she was in Miss Jones' class. Miss Jones' class were girls very nicely dressed. They had feathers and fresh ribbons and fashionable boots, Miss Jones' class, too, all knew each other. Well how did they receive the little stran-

Sabbath School and their class too, because they had often heard how the Lord Jesus became poor for their sakes, and how he left the poor among LEMAN, Hahfax, N. S. us to feel and care for.

Did they receive her kindly? Not a bit. When she sat down on the seat beside them they moved away. They glanced their eyes at her dress, then at each other, and laughed contemptuously. When she looked wistfully up to them for a look of kindness they turned their faces another way. All their conduct seemed to say, "We are above you, and high position. what business have you here, I wonder ?" Oh, was it not cruel ?"

The little girl never went again. Perhaps she | was driven from Sunday School forever.
