HEAVEN AT LAST.

Angel voices sweetly singing, Echoes through the blue dome ringing, News of wondrous gladness bringing; Ah, 'tis heaven at last !

Now, beneath us all the grieving, All the wounded spirits heaving, All the woe of hope deceiving; Ah, 'tis heaven at last !

Sin forever left behind us, Earthly visions cease to blind us; Fleshly fetters cease to bind us; Ah, 'tis heaven at last !

On the jasper threshold standing, Like a pilgrim safely landing, See the strange bright scene expanding; Ah. 'tis heaven at last !

What a city ; what a glory ! Far beyond the brightest story Of the ages old and hoary ; Ah, 'tis heaven at last !

Softest voices, silver pealing, Freshest fragrance, spirit-healing, Happy hymns around us stealing ; Ah, 'tis heaven at last !

Gone the vanity and folly, Gone the dark and melancholy, Come the joyous and the holy; Ah, 'tis heaven at last !

Not a broken blossom yonder, Not a link can snap asunder, Stayed the tempest, sheathed the thunder ; Ah, 'tis heaven at last !

Not a tear-drop ever falleth, Not a pleasure ever palleth, Song to song forever calleth; Ah, 'tis heaven at last !

Christ Himself, the living splendor, Christ the sunlight, mild and tender; Praises to the Lamb we render ; Ab, 'tis heaven at last!

Now at length the veil is rended, Now the pilgrimage is ended, And the saints their thrones ascended ; Ah, 'tis heaven at last !

Broken death's dread bands that bound us, felt his heart soften, and he thought of his own snug little cottage, thirty miles away, in the very heart of the country, surrounded by fields and woods, carpeted by beautiful wild flowers of every color and fragrance, nestling in the soft, green grass. And he thought of his good, kind-hearted wife, who had no children now, and would so love and care for the homeless orphans; and his dear old mother with no little hands to caress her, and no little ones to pet. And then he thought of four little graves under the oak tree in the quiet country churchyard, and of the stillness in the old house, unbroken by childish steps and merry laughter. It all passed quickly through his mind, and hardly a moment had gone by when he leaned down from his wagon and said, in a low kind voice. "Children, will you go with me into the beautiful, free couutry, and live in my house, and be my little son and daughter ? Please God, I'll be a good father to you always.'

O, how glad and happy Harry and Bessie were, as they rode along in Tom Nelson's wagon, farther and farther into the country! When night came on, Tom made a bed in the wagon, of straw covered with some large, coarse bags, for the children to sleep on; and his heart felt very warm and thankful when little Bessie came and put her soft arms around his neck and kissed him, saying, "Good night, father." It seemed as if his little girl in heaven had come back to him again.

When Tom Nelson got home the next day, how his good wife and his gentle old mother wept over the children, and kissed them, and set at once about making them comfortable! How the little garments that had been put away so carefully when the angels came for their own little ones were brought out and put upon the orphans; and how they were taught to say "mother" and "grandmother," as they had already learnt to say "father !" God had, indeed, brought the children to a happy loving home.

Little Bessie grew strong and well in the cool, green country; and Harry made himself so useful on the farm that his new father used often to wonder how he ever had done without him.

The Nelsons were true Christians too, and taught the children to know and love the blessed Savionr: so that, as they grew in strength and knowledge, they grew in goodness as well.

I must not forget to tell you that Harry wrote, at once, to good Tim Hogan, thanking him for his kindness to them, and telling him of their new home and loving friends. And when next Tom Nelson his pocket-book and returning it to him unopened; and Bessie had two ten-cent pieces, a present from a kind old man who kept the little store where Mrs. Hogan bought her groceries. This seemed a great deal of money to the children; so, without going home, for fear they should be stopped, they started off at once, in the direction Harry knew the country lay.

The sun was setting when they passed the last houses of the city, and poor little Bessie was already very tired; but she kept on bravely. The high road stretched out as far as they could see, and the houses which lay on either side had garden-patches around them, and here and there a good sized field of corn. It looked very pleasant to the children, but it was not the wild, open country yet; so, when a man, who was passing in a wagon, seeing the two children clinging to each other and looking se strange and tired, stopped and asked them where they were going, Harry answered :

"We are going to the country, sir."

"To the country, are you ?" said the man. "Well and what part of the country ?"

"The country where the green fields, and the woods, and the flowers are," replied Harry, simply. "Do you know anybody in the country my boy ?" "No, sir."

"Then, why, in the name of wonder, do you go there ?"

WHAT JESUS WILL SAY .--- Two girls were walking eisurely home from school, one pleasant day in early autumn, when one thus addressed the other : Edith Willis, what will the girls say when they hear you have invited Maggie Kelly to your party ?" Edith was silent for a moment, and then raising her soft blue eyes to those of her companion, she replied, " Ella, when mamma told me to invite Maggie, asked her the same question. She told me that it made no difference what the girls said, who thought Maggie quite beneath them because she was poor and her school-bills were paid by my papa; and she asked me if I would like to hear what Jesus would say. So she took her Bible and read to me these words: 'And the King shall answer and say unto them, Verily I say unto you, inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren

ye have done it unto me." "

Ah little readers, never ask what this or that one will say, when you are doing what is right; but what Jesus, your king, will say at the glorious resurrection morning that will soon dawn upon us.

This capital is four times as large as that of any American Company doing a Life Insurance business exclusively. Beside this immense capital, the Company have invested a premium reserve to meet maturing Policies of seven hundred and sixty-six thousand dollars, making their total assets to January 1st, 1881, one million seven hundred and sixty-six thousand dollars. Their liabilities to same date were $807,389, or in other words, they have more than two dollars assets for every dollar of liabilities. This success is owing to the facts that their business is conducted upon the only common sense plan-"so much insurance for so much money"-and that the Company's financial management has been economical and cautiou

In this Company there are none of the bewildering unrtainties and disappointments of "notes," "dividends," &c., &c., &c., which enter so largely into the business plans of Mutual Companies. The insured buy what they others, but they are insured by the Company

Instead of charging thirty per cent. more than is neces-sary to cover possible losses, the National charges the net cost of Insurance and risks its capital to cover any extra mortality. Mutual Companies MAY not need to use this extra thirty per cent.; in that case it is returned to the Policy-holder and mis-called a "Dividend." The National does not need any extra guarantee, its capital being sut-
