

Poetry.

BE ACTIVE.

Look up brothers! time is rolling, Rolling rapidly away; Vesper bells will soon be tolling, Tolling for the dying day.

Rouse thee, comrades! nerve for labor! In life's battles dare and do, Boldly with truth's gleaming sabre, Vanquish wrong and right pursue.

Plant your standard firm and fearless On the citadel of right; Hard may seem the task and cheerless, But the promised crown is bright.

Poor yourself, you have for others Wealth you may not—must not keep; Words of cheer for drooping brothers, Tears to shed with them that weep.

Smiles to cheer the lone one's labors, Tolling o'er life's weary way; Bread to share with poorer neighbors, Hungring starving every day.

Go to hearts which pine and perish, Wipe the fallen tear away! Every smitten spirit nourish, Drooping sadly by the way.

Carry gladness to the sighing, Give your strength to help the same! Whisper comfort to the dying; Whisper Jesus' name.

Up some hill or down some valley, Seek the lost to guide aright! Mark! the bangle sounds the rally; Gird you, comrades, for the fight.

SARAH GOODWIN AND HER FOUR BOYS.

A TRUE STORY. Sarah Goodwin was the name of a poor seamstress residing in the city of New York. She was not wholly friendless, but those whom she knew and who would have aided her in her struggles were very poor and could not.

So she, a widow, and four boys from the ages of four to nine years, struggled through the winter's cold and summer's heat, providing her little family with bread, and that was all. Her boys were good children, always in their home after night fall, and giving their mother every cent of their little earnings as often as they found work to do.

At last the mother fell sick, and through a weary illness she had no other attendance save the occasional help of a neighbor and the constant aid of her poor little boys. It was touching to behold their kind ways and to hear their gentle words. Everybody said that they would be blessed in coming years for their thoughtful love toward their mother.

The widow recovered, but it was now the middle of winter, and their little stock of fuel was almost gone. As soon as her strength permitted she walked through the cold of a cheerless day to the shop of her employer and told him her pitiful story. But he said it was hard times, her illness had made room for others as destitute as herself, and they had not one stitch of work to give her.

With a sinking heart, but trying to keep her courage up, the poor woman talked on from shop to shop until it became late, and with tears and darkness, she could hardly see her way home. "If Mr. Hart had himself been there," she said to herself, bending to the strong wind, and drawing her scanty shawl closer about her form, "I know he would have given me work."

As she whispered thus through her chattering teeth, a tall gentleman passed by her and as he did so something fell on the sidewalk and lay upon the crusted snow. Sarah paused. She had heard the noise made by the little packet, and a strange impulse led her to search for it. O, joy! it was a purse, heavy and filled to the brim! yellow and shining lay the gold within, as she carried it toward a lighted window.

"My poor boys they shall want food no more," she cried; "this is gold. I think that God must have put it in my way, for he saw I was in despair." Suddenly, like a flash of lightning, the thought occurred to Sarah that not one cent of the treasure was honestly hers. But a moment she lingered, pressing the money with her numb fingers, the sorrowful tears chasing down her thin cheeks; then starting hurriedly up the street, fearful that the temptation should see her arrive at her poor room and see her famishing children, might prove too strong for her honesty.

Opposite the great hotel, as she stood thinking which way to take, she saw the stranger enter. She knew him by the long hair which curled to his shoulders, and, timidly crossing the street, she made her way into the hall, and there, bewildered by the light, knew not what to say till twice asked by a servant what she wanted. Of course, she could do no more than describe the stranger by his tall stature and flowing hair. But he had already gone out again; she must call on the morrow, they said, and ask for Mr. Ashcraft.

"Run to the door, Jenny," said she to the eldest, as a loud knock was heard. "O, mother!" the boy cried, returning, a big bundle for us! What is it? What can it be?" "Work for me, perhaps," said the widow, untying the large package, when suddenly there came to light four suits of gray cloth with four neat, black shinning caps, exactly fitting to the heads of her boys. Almost overcome with wonder, the widow toll on her knees, her eyes fixed on the words, "A present for the fatherless," while her boys, laying hold of their suits of clothes, danced about the floor, shouting with glee.

"What's in the pocket here?" cried Jimmy, thrusting his hand into that place, when, lo! out came the very purse of gold the widow had returned that morning. A scene of joyous confusion followed, and the voice of prayer ascended from Sarah Goodwin's full heart. Again and again she counted the glittering treasure—fifty dollars. It seemed an almost endless fortune. How her heart ran over with gratitude to God and the stranger!

She could not rest till, throwing her bonnet on, with cheeks glowing with hope and happiness, she ran back to the hotel to pour forth her thanks. A carriage stood at the door laden with trunks behind. The driver mounted the seat as she had reached the steps, and, turning her head, there within sat the stranger. She had not time to speak, but he nodded his head as he saw her with her clasped hands standing there, and a prayer on her lips. Sarah never saw the stranger again. She took a little shop and stocked it well, and put her boys to school. To-day she is the owner of a respectable shop. Of her four boys two are ministers, one is a doctor, and the other is a thriving mechanic.

Nobody knows where the man with the flowing hair has gone; but if he is living, and should ever hear of widow Goodwin, he will have the consolation of knowing the noble result of this generous deed toward the worthy woman and her four boys.—Golden Hours.

GIRLS AND BOYS' BOOTS AND SHOES.

One evening, at Lexington, I was discussing before the assembled school the subject of shoes for women, and had been remarking that the soles were uniformly too narrow, when Miss B. spoke up: "Why doctor, my soles are perfectly immense. Why, they are twice as broad as my foot."

"Miss B., you will be kind enough to take off one of your shoes, and send it forward?" It was cheerfully and quickly done. "Henry, please bring the rule. Now we will measure this shoe."

"Miss B., I find that this sole is two and one-half inches wide; do you think your foot is narrower than that?" "O! a great deal. That shoe sole is twice as wide as my foot."

"Miss B., will you please come to the platform a moment?" So, limping alone, one shoe off and one shoe on, she presented herself. "Miss B., will you be kind enough to put your foot upon that sheet of white paper? Now hold up your other foot, and let your full weight press upon this one. There, now, hold still a minute, and let me draw the pencil round your foot. There, that will do. Now we will measure this mark, and see just how broad your foot is. Why, Miss B., I find that your foot is three inches and three-quarters broad—no, stop, it is three inches and seven-eighths; no, stop again, it really is four inches broad. Now what do you think? You may take the rule and measure yourself, if you doubt it. The sole is two inches and a half and your foot is four inches broad."

"But, doctor, it is four inches broad only when it is spread out by standing my whole weight on this one foot?" "Yes, Miss B., but that is exactly what takes place every time you step. For example, when, in walking you lift the right foot and push it forward, your whole weight is not only on the left foot, but, pushing with the left foot in propelling the body forward, you have in addition to your weight upon that foot the effort of pushing forward with it, which makes the toes still broader, and that takes place every time you step. So I presume when you are walking briskly, that if your foot were at liberty to spread, it would reach four inches and a quarter. This shoe sole, which you think is immense, is two inches and a half wide. Now what do you suppose becomes of the inch and a half of foot which has no sole to rest upon? Either the upper holds the foot and prevents it spreading, or the foot spreads on either side beyond the sole, and presses down upon the edge of the sole. Very few girls walk in a firm, strong way. Notice one. You see that she is balancing upon a narrow sole. There is an unsteadiness, a sidewise vibration. Besides, as she has no breadth of toe enough, she cannot push her body forward in that elastic way which we all so much admire. Again, the pressure of the upper leather checks the circulation in the foot, and makes it cold. If you check the circulation in any part it becomes cold. The tight shoe, with an elastic worn about the leg just below the knee, so checks the circulation in the foot that the great majority of the girls have cold feet. It would indeed be rare to find one with warm feet like boys."—Dio Lewis.

FALSE HEARTS. We have spoken of false hair. We do not fancy it. Braid it, curl it, crimp it, frizz it, do it as you may, it is always a hair's breadth from the true thing. But objectionable as false hair is, there is something much worse, and that is a false heart. He who carries a false heart, bears within himself a heavy burden. It is an enemy to others, but he is a worse enemy to himself. He betrays others, but he betrays himself still more deeply. He may injure another temporarily and slightly; he injures himself permanently, and with all who know him. People presently see that he is the natural enemy of all mankind; and all mankind instinctively becomes enemies to him.
