THE VANISHED YEAR.

RETROSPECTION. Another year has numbered all its days, And borne its records to the throne of God, Including all our thoughts, and works, and ways, Our life at home, -our idle words abroad; Our conduct toward our FATHER and his rod; Our preparation for the world above;

The paths of right and wrong our feet have trode; Our love to Him whose very name is love.

How feebly we against temptation strove; How thoughtlessly our thoughts are prone to rove, Even when engaged in silent secret prayer. Now let us retrospect our deeds, and theirs Who one day ruled the nations as they would, The aspect Providence at present wears;

The man of France, for twenty years, who stood 'Twixt Holy Pio and his "loving Greeks;" Who thought his cause so holy, just, and good, That earth must bow when pious "Loo wee"

The P flating mind, and word, and cheeks, Enacts the part of Æsop's fabled frog; And while to rival God he vainly seeks,

Explodes,—a bubble,—whines,—a hungry dog. Remember, wealth and power are but a clog That binds the soul to earth, as all may see. Our sins and griefs make up the catalogue,

Till death comes in, and sets the spirit free.

Then think how careful every one should be, To live a life of faith and holy love; That we may sing and shine eternally, With saints and angels in the realms above.

WHAT IS CRUELTY.?

If you were asked What is cruelty? you would, perhaps, answer "Giving pain." This would be part of the right answer, but not the whole of it. When a surgeon cuts off a limb, or a dentist pulls out a tooth, he gives a great deal of pain; but food he cannot help giving pain; but this is not cruelty. The dentist is a friend to us while he is torturing us with his pinchers, because he does so to save us from far more torture; and the butcher may be a merciful man while killing the animals if he gives no more pain than he can possibly help.

Cruelty is giving needless pain; and the worst kind of cruelty is when we have pleasure in giving it. If the dentist enjoyed your agony, and tortured you more and longer than was necessary, for the pleasure of seeing you writhe and struggle, you would detest him for his cruelty; and if the butcher gives needless pain to the poor animals we detest his cruelty also. In like manner if we torture for our sport, a cat or a hedgehog, a frog or a bird, or any other animal, we are as detestable for our cruelty as that dentist or that butcher. Even animals know well the difference between pain given in kindness and pain given in cruelty. A dog will lick our hand and look gratefully up into our face while we are dressing his wound, and giving him almost more pain than he can bear. In the old story of Androcles and the lion, when the lion came limping up to Androcles with a thorn in his foot, and Andercles took the great paw tenderly up and pulled the thorn out, he most likely gave the lion quite as much pain as if he had thrust a thorn into the foot. But the lion knew the difference; he knew that this pain was given in kindness. If Androcles had dared to give the lion the same amount of pain for the purpose of seeing him suffer, there would have been a very different ending to the story, and a speedy end to Androcles. How is it that so many children, and boys especially, are so often cruel to animals? Many of them are cruel from want of thought. They did not mean to be cruel, any more than the baby who kills flies on the window-pane for the pleasure of stopping with its finger the little moving things, or than the cat that plays with the mouse. Children will often catch the butterflies and crush their beautiful, tender forms, with no more thought than if they were so many flying flowers that had no feeling.

Some children are cruel because they have been taught by ignorant people that animals have no feeling. But how do we have feeling? But the nerves that tell the brain what is being done to any part of the body. So that wherever there are nerves and brain there is feeling. Horses, dogs, cruel handling, but which can feel pleasure from covered a beautiful collection of skeleton leaves the soft stroking or patting of a friendly hand. pin a bull by the nose whenever he meets one Men who have this natural love of killing are thus partly savages; and if the higher and nobler part of their nature does not overcome the lower and brutish part; they will remain half barbarian all their lives and their children will most likely inherit the same inferior nature.

Some children are cruel from mere idleness. A number of boys have a half-holiday and turn out into the fields to enjoy themselves, and spend their holiday in hunting in every hedge, ditch and pond for something to torment and destroy. We read of a Roman emperor who, when he had nothing else to do, ordered one of his slaves to be brought How loth to cast on Him the burden of our cares; and killed before him that he might amuse himself by watching his dying agonies. He considered the slave an inferior being, whom he had, therefore, a right to treat as he pleased. And, no doubt, these boys consider the birds, frogs, cats, and hedgehogs, inferior beings that they have a right to treat And how vain man would thwart it, if he could. as they please.

But what is it to be an inferior being? Is it to be one that lives in its proper place, makes its own house, provides for its family, injures no one, and lives all its life as nature meant it to live? Or is it to be one who robs others of home, offspring, and life, and who does them all the harm he possibly can for no useful purpose whatever ?-Mrs. Chas. Bray in An American World.

PLAYING IN THE DIRT.

One of my little girl triends was once all by herself playing in the pebbles on a gravel walk. When at last she looked up from her busy employment she saw, to her surprise, that her hands and dress were very much soiled. Looking down upon herself in a troubled and puzzled way, brushing the dirt from her hands and clothing, and drawing a long sigh, supposing herself unheard, she said: "God didn't make me to play in the dirt." Then stooping again to the sand and gravel, she added with empasis; "But I will though!"

Ah! there's the secret. You, my school boy, who just begin to taste the sweets of knowledge and catch a glimpses of the heights beyond, feel in your heart: "God didn't make me to play in the dirt." Happy for you if you refuse not to climb rugged steps nor let your eyes wander to enticing lowlands, saying, although you know the easier he is not cruel. When a butcher kills animals for path is an unworthy and unsafe one: "But I will,

You, young man, who catch broader and grander views of life's possibilities, and feel the proportionately greater strength of life's temptations know it is shameful for you to "play in the dirt." But it is so much easier to get into the dirt than to always keep above it, that you say; "Perhaps I will, but only occasionally." Satan knows that this halting decision is just as sure to make you his as though it were given unreservedly and with all the strength of determined emphasis. There is a vast difference between an undecided "Perhaps I will" and a firm "I will not." One invites the devil's help and the other secures the help of God .-

WOMEN'S CLOTHES.

The average young woman expends enough inventive power, enough financial shrewdness, enough close foresight enough pertubation of spirit, enough presence of mind, enough patience of hope and anguish of regret upon one season's outfit-I had almost said upon one single street suit-to make an excellent bank cashier, or a comfortable graduate of a thelogical seminary.

I once saw a young lady ride the whole way from Portland to Boston in the cars without once leaning back against the cushioned seat, so that she should not tumble her black silk sash.

A barber told me that he "curled a young lady" once for a ball, "and she had two hundred and forty-seven curls when she was done. And I began at ten o'clock in the morning, and I never got through with her till nine o'clock at night!"

Dr. Dio Lewis tells of a being who put four hundred and twenty-five (I think) yards of trimming upon one single dress.

Four hundred and twenty-five years! Conceive of the Hon. Charles Sumner or Professor Longfellow in four hundred and twenty-five yards of trimming! Imagine the speech on San Domingo, or the "Psalm" of Life," written with a black silk sash tied to the author's coat-tails, he pausing at ever classic stanza to see if he had tumbled himself behind. Fancy Brown Sequard at a consultation in two hundred and forty-seven curls. J. S. TURNER. SPEIGHT'S PATENT DESIDERATUM GLUE POT a general assortment of Groceries, Provisions, &c.. For T has hitherto been found in using any of the Domestic Glue Pots now before the public, that they have generally caused disappointment, for the Flue as soon as suficiently heated, as speedily becomes chilled, owing to the ooling of the small quantity of water which can be used in melting the Glue. This inconvenience is avoided in the ase of "SPEIGHT'S PATENT DESIDERATUM GLUE POT," where the Family Night Light not only dissolved the Glue, but will keep it in a hot and liquid state for several hours, and the necessity and manifest inconvenlence is therefore obviated of having to place the Glue Pot on the bars of a hot grate or over a gas jet, as has been Parlor Suits, in Hair Cloth, Rep and Damask; usually recommended, and is absolutely necessary in the use of any other Glue Pot. Another great improvement s the inner cup of porcelain which can be at any time removed for cleaning, and will be found equally useful for Hall, Centre, Falling Leaf and Kitchen Tables; dissolving Gum, Isinglass, Gelatine, or any other adhesive agent.

The advantage of having a Glue Pot, the separate parts public use, and altogether will be found of a character aensely superior to any other of the Domestic Glue Pots hitherto supplied, and will be admitted as a DESIDE-RATUM IN EVERY HOUSEHOLD, SHOP, OR COUNTING HOUSE.
