"HOLD YOUR LIGHT."

BY BESSIE C. ROGERS.

A party of Alpine hunters once came in a dark night to a mountain torrent from which the bridge had been swept away, and which they were obliged to cross by torchlight, under circumstances of great peril. "The cry which rang out through the gloom and silence to the guides, "Hold your light," suggested the following lines:

Hold your light, Christian!
Brightly up on hight!
For want of its shining
Some traveller may die!
While hosts pass unheeding
His suffering cry.

Hold your light, Christian!
The beams of your FAITH
May save some sad brother
From darkness and death.
And illume his dark soul
With what dear Jesus saith.

Hold your light, Christian!
Of HOPE, the clear flame
May bring out of the shadows
The Saviour's dear name,
And some guilty, despairing.
Lost sinner, reclaim.

Hold your light, Christian!
Let CHARITY show
Such heavenly radiance,
That all can but know
Her patient, enduring,
Perpetual glow.

Hold these lights, Christian!
Let them shine on life's way;
From their gleams all pollution
And sin shrink away;
And their full wealth of blessing
Thou shall know in that day!

Miscellaneous.

TOM CARTER'S GARDEN.

I don't think anybody in the village of Frogville liked Grundy Archer. He was a surly fellow at the best, and sometimes he was downright quarrelsome. He had his good points too. He was sober and industrious. He prided himself particularly upon his own cottage-garden, in which every evening, after he had left working for his master, he worked for himself. Grundy's next neighbor was a good-tempered man, as industrious as himself; and, as their gardens joined, there was a kind of rivalry kept up as to which—Tom Carter or Grundy Archer—should have the earliest peas, the biggest cabbages, and so forth. On the part of Carter, this rivalry was carried on with pleasant good-humor; but when he happened to get the upper hand, Grundy was as savage as a bear.

One morning in spring Grundy looked out of his chamber-window as he was dressing, and saw a sight which might have made a better tempered man than himself cross. A number of fowls had got into his garden and were as busy as bees, scratching up a row of peas which were just appearing above ground, and devouring them by wholesale. He did not wait to put on the rest of his clothes, but rushing down stairs in a fury, he made a sudden onslaught into the thick of the offenders, and soon dispersed them; but not till two fine hens were gasping their last on the unlucky row of peas.

The fowls were Tom Carter's. They had made a breach in their place of confinement, and, trying to make the best of their short liberty, had unfortunately strayed into Grundy's garden, after having done mischief enough in their owner's.

Archer was rather ashamed of himself when the deed was done, and managed matters so that the dead fowls were found in a field at the back of the two gardens, while he repaired the damages they had done in his own. And when they were found he pretended to know nothing about the matter. But Tom had his suspicions, nevertheless; and from that time the two neighbors and their wives were as cool as cucumbers towards each other.

A few months later, Archer's garden began to wear a neglected look. After the autumn crops were gathered in, it became more and more of a wilderness. Weeds overran the empty beds, and there was no attempt to eradicate them—no turning up the ground to prepare it for fresh crops. Winter came; and the goose-berry bushes, and currant-bushes, and apple-trees were left uncut. Spring was coming on; and the garden looked more desolate than ever.

Grundy Archer had fallen from the top of a wagon, while carrying corn at harvest-time, had broken his leg and two or three of his ribs, and for months was lying in a bed helpless.

He was pretty well cared for by his master and the parish together; but his garden, the pride of his life, nobody cared for that.

"I can't bear to see it so," said Tom Carter one day to his wife. "Tisn't doing as we would be done by. I'll take a spell at poor Grundy's garden myself."

"He doesn't deserve it though," said Mrs. Carter, who was thinking of her two dead hens.

"The Bible tells us to bear one another's burdens," said Tom.

"Grundy wouldn't have put out his little finger to bear one of ours," said Mrs. Carter.

"If ye do good only to them that do good to you, what thank have ye?" answered Tom, quoting a text we should all do well to study more, and to follow as well as study.

"I believe you are right, Tom," returned Mrs. Carter; "but there's our own garden wants as much work as you can give it."

"Look not every man on his own things, but every man also on the things of others," rejoined Tom, who seems to have studied the Bible to some purpose.

Grundy Archer was sitting in an easy chair one evening, in no pleasant frame of mind; for he was getting better; and they say that when a sick man gets extra cross, it is one sign that he is mending.

The door opened and in came his neighbor Carter.

"How d'ye do, mate?" said Tom kindly.

"None the better for seeing you," Grundy would have said, perhaps, if he had spoken his mind, but he growled out a half civil reply instead.

"About your garden, neighbor," Tom began to say.

"What about it?" asked Grundy quickly.

"Tis in a terrible mess."

"Could have told you that," said the sick man.

"I want to put it to rights a bit, if you'd let me."

"You!"

"Yes I: why not? There's them goose-berry trees now; they want cutting."

"I know they do," growled Archer.

"Tis time to think of putting in seeds."

"Of course, it is," replied Archer testily.

"And a good many other things want seeing to," continued Tom Carter.

"You needn't tell me that," said the man with the fractured legs and ribs.

"May I do it?" asked Tom.

"What for?" said Grundy. "I can't pay for it, if you do."

"I don't want you to: may I do it?"

"If you like," replied Archer.

A month later and Grundy was in his garden, hobbling on with a stick, looking with a curious expression of countenance at Tom, who was raking over the onion bed. Everything was neat and tidy as ever. Trees and bushes had been trimmed, weeds urned, ground dug in, seeds sown and planted. Grundy looked over the fence into his neighbor's garden.

"Why, Tom, you are backward with your own work!"

"Rather, neighbor, but I'll soon fetch up. There, I think that puts the finishing stroke," he added shouldering the rake.

"But, Tom—stop a bit, Tom—I have got something to say. I say, Tom, this is very kind of you. I could not have thought it. And, Tom—I say, Tom, I can't bear it;" and Grundy Archer drew his brown, bony hand across his face, and took it away moist. "I can't bear it, Tom; to think how crooked I've always been with you. Them hens of yours Tom."

"Never mind about them, Grundy."

"Twas I that killed 'em, Tom."

"Never mind," answered Tom Carter, "they shouldn't have got into your garden."

"Did you know I did it, then?"

"Well, I gave a pretty close guess; but what matters?"

"You've beat me," sobbed Grundy Archer; "you've beat me out and out. God bless you for it, Tom!" and he held out his hand to Carter, who shook it with a hearty grip of good-will.

Tom Carter had found out one way of doing good.

"Be not overcome of evil."

INTERESTS OF HOME.

BY C. F. WILDER.

"My work lies before me in a tangle, and it would help me much if you would help me straighten it," said pretty Mrs. Scott, yesterday, when I made her a call of a few minutes.

"Help you straighten it!" I exclaimed, in astonishment; "why, I have twice as large a family, twice as much work to do, and no help at all."

"I know that," was the reply, "but your work is always done, and if I knew your secret, it would help me much."

"I have no secret, I only take time by the fore-lock, and never let the old rascal go; if I did he'd make me run to catch him.

"I'm afraid that I never shall catch him, run I ever so fast. Why, here it is the first of November, and my house-cleaning is not all done, and the winter's sewing is mountains high. Dresses to make for the children, underclothes for us all; sheets and comforters, and—O dear me! I wish I had some Moses to stretch out his rod and let me over. I am all worn out, and it must be with fretting, for it can't be with work. Only yesterday I hurried the whole family up to breakfast at six, so that I could commence on my parlor in good season, and I intended to have had it all cleaned and in good order by night. Well, every one was as cross as a bear, and everything went wrong, and I had but just got the carpet on the line, and the dust flying, when the ten o'clock train passed, and who should come walking in but Mrs. Dewey and her daughter; came to town to do a little shopping, and came here to dinner. Of course there was nothing cooked, and I had to shut up my room and go and get dinner,

"Then after doing the dishes (and there's lots of them), I was too tired to clean any more, so I laid down on the lounge to rest till the children came home from school. To-day I have cleaned the parlor, and shall get the carpet down to-morrow. A three days' job, where I hoped to have but one! I guess that old Time's forelock would slip through your fingers in such an emergency as that."

"My experience when my parlor was cleaned, only I had more work done at ten o'clock. The children took the tacks out the day before, and carried the furniture into another room, and after breakfast they were delighted to get the carpet out, and I had the room swept and the floor wiped by the time the carpet was dusted. I put ammonia in the water, and had the windows cleaned before the children went to school, and was cleaning the doors when my visitors came. My parlor floor was clean, and I seated them there, and went on with my work. For dinner I did the same as if they had not been there, and when they saw that I was making myself no extra trouble they seemed to enjoy themselves very much. By the time the children were home from school, the room was ready for the carpet, and they gave such efficient aid that before tea-time the room was all done but hanging the pictures, which my husband did in the evening.

"The best way to get along is, to know in the morning just what is to be done, then not allow ourselves to be worried by that constant friction called 'little troubles.'

"One can in that way do a great amount of work, and not feel very tired. I do not like to do house-work, but I believe God plans my life for me, and I do my work the best I can, and do it as for Him. If our little every-day duties are all that He has given us to do, we can as greatly honor him by doing those well, as we could if we were sent as missionaries to some heathen land. When we have a great deal to do, commence and do that which most needs doing, and not worry or fret over the undone. Fretting makes the thinking-cap all awry, and when one can't think clearly, the hands without the mind do slow and poor work.

"It does not help matters to look ahead and see the mountains piled upon each other, and feel that our burden is greater than we can bear. Keep in mind that God never gives us more than we are capable of doing, and that we are only required to do the work of to-day; to-morrow will take care of itself."—Zion's Herald.

HAPPY EVERY DAY.—Sidney Smith cut the following from a newspaper, and preserved it for himself:

When you rise in the morning, form a resolution to make the day a happy one to a fellow-creature. It is easily done; a left-off garment to the man who needs it, a kind word to the sorrowful, an encouraging expression to the striving—trifles in themselves light as air—will do it at least for the twenty-four hours. And if you are young, depend upon it it will tell when you are old; and if you are old, rest assured it will send you gently and happily down the stream of time to eternity. By the most simple arithmetical sum, look at the result. If you send one person, only one, happily through each day, there is three hundred and sixty-five in the course of the year. And supposing you live forty years only after you commence that course of medicine, you have made 14,600 beings happy; at all events for a time.

OUR DAUGHTERS.—I was greatly impressed last evening by a remark that was made to me by a wealthy gentleman, in response to the question, "How is your daughter?"

"Rather better, but Bessie's blood is thin. If I were to live my life over again, I would give all of my children an occupation though I were as rich as Crœsus."

THE NATIONAL

Life Insurance Company

OF THE

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

WAS Chartered by Congress, in 1868, with a capital of ONE MILLION DOLLARS, every dollar of which was paid in before commencing business.

This capital is four times as large as that of any American Company doing a Life Insurance business exclusively. Besides this immense capital, the Company have invested a premium reserve to meet maturing Policies of seven hundred and sixty-six thousand dollars, making their total assets to January 1st, 1871, one million seven hundred and sixty-six thousand dollars. Their liabilities to same date were $607,389, or in other words, they have more than two dollars assets for every dollar of liabilities. This success is owing to the facts that their business is conducted upon the only common sense plan—"so much insurance for so much money"—and that the Company's financial management has been economical and cautious.

In this Company there are none of the bewildering uncertainties and disappointments of "notes," "dividends," &c., &c., &c., which enter so largely into the business plans of Mutual Companies. The insured buy what they pay for—Insurance. They are not called upon to insure others, but they are insured by the Company.

Instead of charging thirty per cent. more than is necessary to cover possible losses, the National charges the net cost of Insurance and risks its capital to cover any extra mortality. Mutual Companies MAY not need to use this extra thirty per cent.; in that case it is returned to the Policy-holder and mis-called a "Dividend." The National does not need any extra guarantee, its capital being sufficient, and consequently its rates are from 25 to 30 per cent. lower than those of Mutual Companies.

The National's Policies are more liberal than any issued in the Provinces, allowing residence or travel anywhere in temperate climates. No extra Premiums, Policy-fees, Permits, or extra charges, except upon the half-dozen occupations generally recognized as EXTRA hazardous.

The National is the only Company which has made the required deposit at Ottawa for the SOLE benefit of Canadian Policy-holders. All others are for "POLICY-HOLDERS GENERALLY."

Five cents per day will insure a young man a thousand dollars, IN GOLD, payable to him at the age of sixty, or to his representatives should he die sooner. Four cents a day will insure a man, aged 25, for one thousand dollars, payable to his wife or children at his death, wherever that may occur. What easier way is there to make such a provision? Is it not worth your while to investigate?

Agencies are established throughout the Lower Provinces where the fullest information will be cheerfully given. Should there be none to whom you can conveniently apply, a note addressed to the General Agent at St. John, will be promptly answered. Address

JOHN C. BISTEEN, P. O. Box 428, Saint John, N. B.

References in regard to the Company's standing will, upon application, be given to prominent men in all parts of the Lower Provinces. [mar 3.

SPEIGHT'S

PATENT DESIDERATUM GLUE POT.

IT has hitherto been found in using any of the Domestic Glue Pots now before the public, that they have generally caused disappointment, for the Glue as soon as sufficiently heated, as speedily becomes chilled, owing to the cooling of the small quantity of water which can be used in melting the Glue. This inconvenience is avoided in the use of "SPEIGHT'S PATENT DESIDERATUM GLUE POT," where the Family Night Light not only dissolves the Glue, but will keep it in a hot and liquid state for several hours, and the necessity and manifest inconvenience is therefore obviated of having to place the Glue Pot on the bars of a hot grate or over a gas jet, as has been usually recommended, and is absolutely necessary in the use of any other Glue Pot. Another great improvement is the inner cup of porcelain which can be at any time removed for cleaning, and will be found equally useful for dissolving Gum, Isinglass, Gelatine, or any other adhesive agent.

The advantage of having a Glue Pot, the separate parts of which can be removed and cleaned, and when necessary renewed, is sufficient alone to recommend the article to public use, and altogether will be found of a character immensely superior to any other of the Domestic Glue Pots hitherto supplied, and will be admitted as a DESIDERATUM IN EVERY HOUSEHOLD, SHOP, OR COUNTING HOUSE.

For sale by GEO. STEWART, Jr., Chemist and Druggist, may 19 24 King Street.

LEMONT'S VARIETY STORE.

REMOVAL.

TO THE PATRONS of LEMONT'S VARIETY STORE. LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—We desire to inform you that we have moved our Stock of Goods (including those of our Branch Store, Hogg's Corner) to the Brick Building lately occupied by Messrs. ROBINSON & WHEELER, only next door below our old stand.

Feeling thankful for the patronage we have received during the last twenty years while doing business in Fredericton, we would respectfully ask for a continuance from you of the same. With the largest Store and Warerooms in the City, we shall have greater facilities for carrying on a Wholesale and Retail trade, enabling us more promptly to attend to the wants of customers. There are three Showrooms, eighty-three feet deep by twenty-three feet wide, besides a cellar under all, giving a floor space of 7,636 feet. The Store is situated between the Queen Hotel and Barker House, and is but three minutes walk from the City Hall.

We shall in the future, as in the past, keep the largest Stock of Goods in New Household Furniture, White Stoneware and China, Crockery, Cut and Pressed Glassware, Cutlery, Kitchen wares, Tin and Block Tin ware, Silver Plated ware, Lamps and Lamp Stock, Fancy Goods, Wooden ware, Household Hardware and Varieties, to be seen in Fredericton, and an assortment equal to any in the Province.

Our second-hand Furniture Department will be well supplied in Mahogany and Walnut Goods, bought at Auction by Mr. MARTIN LEMONT, in the Markets of New York and Boston. We have not kept common second-hand Bedsteads, Feather Beds or Mattrasses for ten years past, nor do we intend to. These Goods are of best quality, and warranted clean. In this line will be found many Bargains.

We buy our goods direct from the Manufacturers in England, France, Germany, United States, the Canadas, and in the Province, and shall sell lower than any other house in the trade.

Parties going into House-keeping, and others wanting Goods, will find this the best and most reliable place to buy their goods in Fredericton. The especial attention of the ladies is desired. Respectfully yours,

Fredericton, June 16, 1871. LEMONT & SON.

CHURNS! CHURNS! CHURNS!

HEALTH! TIME! MONEY!

WHY SHOULD I BUY KITCHEN'S PATENT CHURN?

BECAUSE they preserve health, save time, save money, and the churning is all done in 5 or 10 minutes. You will then believe what I assure you is true, viz.: That I have for sale the best churn ever invented—Kitchen's Patent Rotary Double Dasher. This churn has two Dashers, each revolving in an opposite direction. It is useless to attempt a description of this churn in an advertisement, it has to be seen to be appreciated. It is estimated by practical farmers that it will produce one-tenth more butter from the same quantity of cream than any other churn now in use. The public are respectfully requested to call at my store, examine the article, and select for themselves. ELY PERKINS, Fredericton, April 22, 1870. Sole Agent.
