How touchingly sad and true is the following simp picture of human life without the light of immortality

- A little crib beside the bed, A little face above the spread,
- A little frock behind the door,
- A little shoe upon the floor.
- A little lad with dark brown hair,
- A little blue-eyed face and fair,
- A little lane that leads to school, A little pencil, slate, and rule.
- A little blithesome winsome maid, A little hand within his laid;
- A little cottage, acres four,
- A little old time fashioned store.
- A little family gathering round; A little turf heaped, tear-dewed mound
- A little added to his soil, A little rest from hardest toil.
- A little silver in his hair;
- A little stool and easy chair,
- A little night of earth-lit gloom; A little cortage to the tomb.

STORM AND CALM.

Poor Aunt Susan clasped her hands in dismay to her throbbing temples,—and no wonder,—for Sam and Will came tearing up the stairs like a pair of wild horses. Their release from school was a daily affliction to the invalid, who, though loving them devotedly, always declared that she considered herself in a menagerie for the hour following that storm's all over. Hadn't you better come up to melancholy event, and gave thanks nightly for her | bed ?" preservation, as from the jaws of wild beasts.

But, the boys, though distractingly noisy, were | Will, with more haste than grace. generally good-natured, hence Aunt Susan's look of pain became one of intense surprise, as Sam | the brothers scrambled up stairs. burst open the sitting-room door, almost pitching headlong in his haste, while Will, followed in a worms? furious passion, nearly overturned the low rockingchair in which she was seated.

They stood glowering at each other for a mom- I'll takeent like a couple of the most savage beasts in a menagerie. Will was the first to speak.

"You just let me have it. It's mine ! "Don't care if it is. You've had it all the morn-

"Well, what if he did ? You might let a fellow look at it. I'm going to, any way."

"You ain't." "I am."

"You ain't either." "I am teether."

Will made a dive for the hidden treasure but was unsuccessful. Then followed a reckless chase around the room endangering the welfare of chairs | with the boy, and finally proposed that I should and tables, to say nothing of human legs and arms. go with him up to Harlem (this is a great pleasure Aunt Susan discreetly vacated her rocking-chair, resort, a few miles out of the city). Will's little black eyes flashed fire, as he dealt telling blows with his small hard fists, while Sam's larger orbs gathered fury with each the door opened and in walked a lady, whose look | lection-day. of sorrowful astonishment made both boys hang their heads.

"What does this mean?" "She looked at Sam, but somehow he could find

"Will, what's the trouble?"

"Why, Jack Collins gave me a crystal, and Sam snatched it; and won't give it up.

"I just wanted to look at it," growled Sam.

"It's his, isn't it?" inquired his mother.

"Yes'm." "Then give it to him."

Sam gave the marble very ungraciously, and the brothers looked at each other in a way that betokened a renewal of hostilities at the earliest possible moment. This did not escape the prudent mother's eye, as was testified by the efficient measures she took to prevent it. She asked no more questions. Talking to such angry little lads would be quiet and decisive.

"Boys, I don't wish you to speak to each other again, until you feel pleasantly. Will you promise me ?"

Both gave a sullen assent.

"You are not to go out of this yard this afterdid'nt hear it.

But, at about midnight there came one of these terrific thunder storms, which always made brave little Will tremble, and grow sick and faint. His mother had reasoned and explained, but it did no good; so she tried petting and soothing instead. Hence, she was not surprised, just after the first flash, to see a small figure, in a white nighttie, at her bedside. He was shivering violently though it was a warm night. She took him in, hugged him tightly, kissing the poor little pale eyelids that the lightning might not seem quite so sharp.

But she was surprised when, about an hour later, a larger nightie appeared upon the scene of action (so large a one, in fact, that I most respectfully beg its pardon for the ignominious title,) and a convenient flash revealed a face most piteous in its expression, lighted up by a pair of very wide open black

"Mother, is Will struck?"

"I guess not."

"He isn't up stairs anywhere." "Do you think the lightning has carried him off?" asked mamma. Here a smothered laugh came from the bed, and

Sam drew a long breath of relief. "He's in there somewhere," said he, "so I'll go back." He was suiting the action to the word, but something made him pause.

"Mother." "Well, my son."

"I was the mean one to-day. I begun it." "I was mean too," called out a voice from the

HUMAN FRICTON MATCHES.

Of phosophorus, every adult person carries enough (13 pounds) about with him in his body to make at least 4000 of the ordinary two-cent packages of fricton-matches, but he does not have quite sulphur enough to complete that quantity of the little incendiary combustibles. This phosphorus exists in the bones and in the brain, and is one of waste of words. The few that she did speak were the most important constituents in the body. Every school-boy is acquainted with those strange metals sodium and potassium, for he has seen them flash into a brilliant flame when thrown upon water. The body contains 21 ounces of the former, and a half ounces of the latter metal-enough for all needed experimen a purposes in the schools of a large city noon. And now come down to dinner. CHURNS! CHURNS! CHURNS! HEALTH! TIME! MONEY! WHY SHOULD I BUY KITCHEN'S PATENT CHURN? ECAUSE they preserve health, save time, save money, B and the churning is all done in 5 or 10 minutes. You will then believe what I assure you is true, viz.; That I have for sale the best churn ever invented—Kitchen's Patent Rotary Double Dasher. This churn has tw Dashers, each revolving in an opposite direction It is useless to attempt a description of this churn in an adverisement, it has to be seen to be appreciated. It is estimated by practical farmers that it will produce one-tenth more butter from the same quantity of cream than any other churn now in use The public are respectfully requested to call at my store, examine the article, and select for ELY PERKINS.
