ROCK OF AGES.

O Rock of Ages! since on Thee By grace my feet are planted, 'Tis mine, in traquil faith to see The rising storm undaunted ; When angry billows round me rave And tempests fierce assail me, To Thee I cling, the terrors brave, For thou canst never fail me; Though rends the globe with earthquake shock. Unmoved Thou stand'st Eternal Rock !

Within Thy clefts I love to hide, When darkness o'er me closes; There peace and light serene abide, And my still heart reposes : My soul exults to dwell secure, Thy strong munitions round her; She dares to count her triumphs sure, Nor tears lest hell confound her; Though tumults startle earth and sea, Thou changeless Rock, they shake not Thee.

From Thee, O Rock! once smitten flow Life-giving streams forever ; And whose doth their sweetness know He henceforth thirstest never. My lips have touched the crystal tide, And feel no more returning The fever that so long I tried To cool, yet still felt burning : Ah, wondrous Well-Spring ! brimming o'er With living waters evermore.

On that dread day when they that sleep Shall hear the trumpet sounding, And wake to praise or wake to weep, The Judgment Throne surrounding, When, wrapped in all-devouring flame, The solid globe is wasting, And what at first from nothing came Is back to nothing hasting; E'en then my soul shall calmly rest, O Rock of Ages! on Thy breast. -R.
