SHOOTING CASE .-- A man named Benjamin H. Clayton, living on the Nashwaak, was shot by a constable, Geo. B. Seely, on Wednesday. Clayton's farm had been sold by the Sheriff, but Clayton resisted every attempt to get possession of it, threatening to shoot any one who attempted to arrest him. The time for the service of the writ having nearly expired, Seely was deputised to execute the process. He found Clayton at home, but as soon as the nature of his visit was known, Clayton drew a revolver and fired three shots in rapid succession, none of them however taking effect. Seely in selfcaused instant death.
