He'd sooner a beggar would starve than give A cent towards buyin' a dinner. I tell you our minister's prime, he is, But I couldn't quite determine When I heard him givin' it right and left, Just who was hit by his sermon.

Of course there couldn't be no mistake When he talked of long-winded prayin', For Peters and Johnson they sot and scowled At every word he was sayin'.

And the minister he went on to say, "There's various kinds o'cheatin,' And religion's as good for every day As it is to bring to meetin'. I don't think much of a man that gives The loud Amens at my preachin', And spends his time the followin' week In cheatin' and over-reachin'."

I guess that dose was bitter enough For a man like Jones to swoller; But I noticed he didn't open his mouth, Not once, after that, to boller, Hurrah, says I, for the minister !-Of course I said it quiet-Give us some more of this open talk, It's very refreshin' diet.

The minister hit 'em every time; And when he spoke of fashion, And a riggin' out in bows and things, As a woman's rulin' passion, And a comin' to church to see the styles, I couldn't help a winkin',

And a nudgin' my wife, says I, "That's you," And I guess it sot her thinkin'. Says I to myself, That sermon's pat; But man is a queer creation! And I'm much afraid that most o' the folks

Won't take the application. Now, if he had said a word about My personal mode o' sinnin,' I'd a gone to work to right myself, And not set there a grinnin.' Just then the minister says, says he,

"And now I've come to the fellers Who've lost this shower by usin' their friends As sort o' moral umbrellas. "Go home," says he, " and find your faults, Instead of huntin' your brother's;"

"Go home," he says, " and wear the coats You have tried to fit for others." My wife, she nudged, and Brown he winked, And there are lots o' smilin' And lots o' lookin' at our pew;

It sot my blood a bilin.' Says I to myself, our minister Is gettin' a little bitter; I'll tell him, when meetin's out that I Ain't at all that kind of a critter.

ANIMALS THAT CANNOT FEEL.

BY ELLEN BERTHA BRADLEY. Annie had been cleaning the glass of her Ward case, and stood upon the edge of the piazza, listlessly dipping the sponge she had used into a basin of water, watching it fill, and then squeezing it out and dipping it in again.

"Annie," said Ned, coming up behind her "What is that you have in your hand?" "This? It is a sponge," she answered, in a tone of surprise. "But what is a sponge?" he asked.

"I don't know. I never thought," she answered after a moment's hesitation. "Let us see if Harry or Susie knows," said he,

as the gate opened and the other children came up the path. "Knows what?" asked Harry, for they were near enough to hear. "What this is ?" said Ned, taking the sponge from Annie and holding it up for them to see. "That! why it's sponge!" they answered, in

"Can't you tell us something more about it? he asked. "Where did it come from?"

"Out of the sea," replied Harry. "I suppose it is a kind of sea-weed." "I suppose it is not," said Ned. "What do you think about it, Mary?" The last sentence was adin the door behind him. "It is the skeleton of an animal," I answered.

"A skeleton!" cried the children in chorus, and Annie added, "I do not see how that can be, Aunt Mary, when it is so soft."

"But it is," said Ned. "I am sure it looks and feels more like a veget-

"Such as the famous Glass Rope Sponge, do you nean?" I asked. "Yes," he replied. "That is one of the most beautiful of them all. So strong is its resemblance to spun-glass, that many of the most skilful scientific men in Europe were deceived into the belief that it was artificially made in Japan, a belief that was, countenanced by the fact that, for a long time, it could be obtained nowhere else. The question was, however, settled by its being found on the coast of Portugal, and very recently it has been brought up from a depth of thirty thousand feet in the British

"How do they get them up?" asked Harry. "With dredges," answered Ned. "I cannot now describe to you the way in which they get a dredge down in very deep water, but it takes many hours, and is a work of great difficulty. When it reaches the bottom, they allow it to drag there for an hour cr two, and then draw it up and empty out the contents."

"And sort the mud," said I. "I do not envy them their work."

"There is not much sorting of the mud," said he. 'At least not much as you mean, for most of the specimens brought up are so delicate that they would be spoiled by the least roughness in handling. "Yes, generally," he answered. HEALTH! TIME! MONEY! WHY SHOULD I BUY KITCHEN'S PATENT CHURN? DECAUSE they preserve health, save time, save money, will then believe what I assure you is true, viz. : That I have for sale the best churn ever invented-Kitchen's Patent Rotary Double Dasher. This churn has two Dashers, each revolving in an opposite direction. It is useless to attempt a description of this churn in an advertisement, it has to be seen to be appreciated. It is estimated by practical farmers that it will produce one-tenth more butter from the same quantity of cream than any other churn now in use. The public are respectfully requested to call at my store, examine the article, and select for Fredericton, April 22, 1870. Sole Agent.
