The storm-king swept the deep With such terrific fury No living thing might sleep. The tempest howled, and shrieked and moane Like some wild thing in pain,

Lashing the waves to maddened roar, Upon the distant main.

A noble vesesl homeward bound, Upon that dreadful night, ... Now tossed upon the billowy foam, Now sunk in the depths from sight, Its living freight of human souls, In horror or dismay, Look on, as every earthly hope

Is swept from them away. The captain's son, scarce five years old, Prone on the cabin floor; With tight-clasped hands and streaming eyes, Repeating o'er and o'er.

" Our Father who in Heaven art," 'Twas all the prayer he knew, Sought God to save his father's ship, The passengers and crew.

Bright as a sunbeam on the gloom, Swift as an arrow's flight, That prayer of faith from infant lips Went up to worlds of light. And He who long ago rebuked

The storm on Galilee, Commanded that the storms "be still," And calmed the troubled sea. Now, guided by that power Divine,

The ship outrides the gale; As, with renewed hopes, her men, For "home" spread every sail. And soon within the destined port, Her colors at the mast,

She gaily glides, while from her deck, With cheers and anchors cast. Oh! mariner on life's dark sea, Fearful and tempest-tossed, Though storms may roar, and waves run high,

Think not that all is lost; Trust thou in God, and soon within The port of endless rest Thy bark shall glide, and thou shalt dwell Forever with the blest.

LAUGHING LADDIE OF ESKDALE. One hundred and fifteen years ago the wife of a shepherd, who tended his master's flocks on the pastures of Dumfriesshire, gave birth to a son. The father died the same year, and poor Janet, the widow, was left to struggle as best she might in the endeavor to bring up her fatherless boy. She worked hard day and night and trusted in God; never grumbling nor complaining, but putting her shoulder to what had to be done, with a bright face and cheerful, spirit. By-and by, as soon as the little fellow was old enough she put him to a parish school. Some of her neighbours advized her to send him out to beg, but poor as she had long been, it was never in the staunch Scotch heart of her to beg for herself, much less to set her darling at it.

At school, little Tam seemed different from the other boys. He was not remarkably bright or quick, but always, wanting to know how to do a thing and then how to make it useful. Tam could only attend school during four months of winter; for being old enough for schools, was old enough for work, and therefore, in the summer, after his mother's prayer and a hymn, he had every morning to be off to the hill-sides looking after the flocks of sheep, as his father had done before him. But boys don't learn all they know in the school-house; at least Tam did not. Every book he could borrow he took into the pastures and studied it there. And then there were the misty crags garmented in the thunder when the tempest came and the warbling of the lark high up in the blue depths, and the torrent dashing down the ravine, and the glassy surface of the silver tarn lulled in the bosom of the mountain. There were the four gospels, too, every word of which he could repeat when he was seven years old. These were Tam's schoolmasters' quite as much as the domine of Westerkirk.

The boy in time grew to a sturdy lad, stout of heart and brawny of limb, and finally got himself apprenticed to a stone-mason. The work suited him exactly, and he wrought at it for years, toiling in the open air day by day, and greedily devouring at night, by the light of his mother's fire, as many books as he could beg, buy, or borrow, Far and wide he was noted for his animal spirits. His nature bubbled over with waggishness, frolic and laughter. Country-side folk said that the bare sight of him was a cure for the blues, and called him "The Laughing Laddie of Eskdale." But Tam was not always laughing, as we shall presently see.

In 1780, the boy, now a man, set out for Edinburgh in search of better employment. He found it and worked there for two years as a stone-mason, all the while studying. He then set out for London, got a job at the quadrangle of Somerset Place to expect others to do it for them. Buildings, studied, when off work, all the public edifices in the great metropolis, and was so intelligent in conversation and respectful in manner, that he made triends with the most distinguished architects of the day. His services now began to be in requisition What he said was so well done, what he suggested was so clearly said, that he was sent to Portsmouth dock-yard to erect an official mansion and chapel-While doing this, study, which was his law, was directed to the foundation and construction of graving-docks, wharves and walls. Remaining for three years, he was invited into Shropshire, to superintend alterations about to be made in the Castle of Shrewsbury. This he executed so well, that he was elected surveyor of public works for requires it, and if you would seek this blessed con-

the blood is purified, the corruptions of the system expelled, obstructions removed, and the whole machinery of life restored to its healthy activity. Internal organs which become clogged and sluggish are cleansed by Ayer's Pills, and stimulated into action. Thus incipient disease is changed into health, the value of which change, when reckoned on the vast multitudes who enjoy it, can hardly be computed. Their sugar coating makes them pleasant to take, and preserves their virtues unimpaired for any length of time, so that they are ever fresh, and perfectly reliable.

Although searching, they are mild, and operate without disturbance to the constitution, or diet, or occupation.

Full directions are given on the wrapper to each box, how to use them as a Family Physic, and for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor, and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach, and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it. For Dysentery of Diarrhoa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back, and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints diseasees.

Iron in the Blood

MAKES THE WEAK STRONG.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon. This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhoea, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or ac-companied by debility or a low state of the system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form, its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all paris of the system, and building up an Iron Con-Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures, to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.
