BE NOT WEARY.

"Be not weary in well-doing."-2. Thess. iii. 13. "Be not weary," toiling Christian; Good the master thou dost serve; Let no disappointment move thee,

From thy service never swerve; Sow in hope nor cease thy sowing; Lack not patience, faith, or prayer; Seed-time passeth—harvest hasteneth—

Precious sheaves thou then shalt bear. "Be not weary," praying Christian; Open is thy Father's ear

To the fervent supplication And the agonizing prayer. Prayer the Holy Ghost begetteth, Be it words or groans or tears, Is the prayer that's always answered;

Banish then thy doubts and fears.

"Be not weary," suffering Christian; Scourged is each adopted child, Else would grow in sad profusion Nature's fruit, perverse and wild. Chastening needful for the spirit, Though 'tis painfu' to the flesh; God designs a blessing for thee;-

Let this thought thy soul refresh. "Be not weary," tempted Christian; Sin can only lure on earth: Faith is tried by sore temptation; 'Tis the furnace proves its worth; Bounds are set unto the tempter, Which beyond he cannot go; Battle on, on God relying,

Faith will overcome the foe. "Be not weary," weeping Christian; Tears endure but for the night, Joy-deep joy-thy spirit greeting, Will return with morning's light; Every tear thou shedd'st is numbered

In the register above; Heaven is tearless; sweet the prospect-Sighless, tearless land of love!

"Be not weary," hoping Christian; Though the vision tarry long, Hope will bring the blessing nearer-Change thy sorrow into song, Nought shall press thy spirit downwards, If thy hopes all brightly shine; Hold thy hope, whate'er thou losest ;-Living, precious hopes are thine!

"Be not weary," troubled Christian, Rest remains for thee on high; Dwell upon the untold glory Of thy future home of joy; There, nor sin, nor sorrow entereth; There, thy soul, attuned to praise, Shall, in strains of heavenly fulness, Sorgs of happy triumph raise. "Be not weary," loving Christian; In this heavenly grace abound; Jesus, well thou knowest, lovest thee, Though in mad rebellion found. Drink, drink deeply of His Spirit;-Jesus' love knows great nor small: Nature loves but what is lovely-

Grace embraceth one and all.

Christian, thus in grace unwearied Pass the sojourn here below; Spurn lukewarmness;—let thy bosom Ever with true fervor glow! Look to Christ, thy bright Exemplar, Copy Him in all His ways; Let thy life and conversation Tell to thy Redeemer's praise.

TIME WAITS FOR NO BOY. BY M. L. BOLLES BRANCH.

Jack and Harry had to recite their lessons to their father every day at two o'clock, but they were thoughtless boys who liked to play and idle away their time, so very often the lessons were not ready because they had put off studying too long. Over and over again they had been reproved, until they thought they would really try to be diligent and punctual. For almost a week they did pretty well, but then there came a day when the sun was bright and warm and the air so soft that it seemed as if nothing in the world could draw them away from under the old apple tree, where they lay in the tall grass on their backs, looking up at the cool green leaves and the peeps of the blue sky. There they lay and talked of all they meant to do and the things they wished they had, and the places they wanted to visit. "Uncle Henry is going to send for us some day very soon," said Harry, "to go with him out to Mr. Cheesebro's farm, to stay all night and the next day. Won't it be splendid. I shall carry my fishing-rod, for there are trout in the brook, and I may carry Ben's gun and hunt wood-chucks."

"Yes, and what good things we shall have to eat," said Jack. "There'll be mince pie and doughnuts, and roast goose and pickles, and plum pudding. Do you remember the other time we went, how Mrs. Cheesebro' gave us great slices of cake between meals and filled our pockets with

"Guess I do!" answered Harry. "I have been wanting to go ever since. Sammy Cheesebro' said the next time we came he'd have a party and play old fashioned games. Won't it be fun? I wonder her" what day uncle Henry is going."

what fun we shall have! I wish we were there now and then we shouldn't have that awful arithmetic lesson to learn."

her eyes asked the question her lips refused to speak.

"Yes, they have found her body, love. It was lying among some bushes near the shore."

sing over them and flowers to sweeten the air. If they had only learned their lessons first! But time flew, the hours sped by, and when at last they reluctantly arose and went into the house after their books, behold it was one o'clock, and there was lunch waiting for them!

They stared at each other in dismay, and then, being very hungry they began to eat their sandwiches and gingerbread, and talked over their sit. nation between the mouthfulls.

"We never can learn it all, never!" exclaimed Harry. "There are two endless sums in Partial payments to work out, and then all those countries! If we had only had two hours even!".

"Tell you what," said Jack, "let's set the clock back an honr! He always looks at the clock before he calls us, and he won't think nor find out about

"All right!" he said. "We'll do it. You're awfully sharp, Jack. Here, pull this big chair around, so I can stand in it and reach up to the tranquilly as before, but now the hands pointed to hours they wanted for study.

Away they hurried to their books, and while the quickest one worked out the longest sums, the other delved at boundaries. It was hard work, but they kept at it as if they were running a race. Half an hour after their father came up the avenue TO OUR FRIENDS IN THE CITY AND walking very fast and almost out of breath, "Bless me!" he said as he looked at the clock,

I thought it was a great deal later than this! So much for getting one's lunch away from home. Brown must have his as early as eleven o'clock. Well, I'm glad it's no later. I shall have time to write three or four letters before I call the boys." And he shut himself into his library among his papers. There was quiet in the house an hour longer, during which time the boys applied themselves almost breathlessly to their tasks. The arithmetic exercise was ready and the boundaries were almost learned, only it seemed as if Jack never could get Siam and Anam right.

At half past one by the clock their father came out of the library. "Come, boys," he called loudly. "No lessons important features and attractions, so that OURS shall not only be in name, but in reality, a First Class Establishment.

Your Obedient Servants, possible of the library. to say! Hurry on your jackets and hats: Uncle ment. Henry wants you to go out to Cheesebro's with him, and I'm going to drive you over to the train." How the boys sprang up and shouted, and dashed away their books. They were all ready by the time the horse was at the door. Henry had not forgotten his fishing-rod, and Jack wore his trousers that had the deepest pockets. Their mother stood on the steps to see them off.

"Hurry along!" called their father from the carriage. "We've none too much time. The train starts at ten minutes past two precisely." "Oh! Why!" faltered Jack, and Harry stopped short, looking dumbfounded. "What's the matter?" cried their father. "Hurry, I tell you! We've no time whatever to lose.' "The clock is too slow !" said Harry despairing-

"Slow! no, isn't. I set by railroad time myself this morning ; what do you mean ?"

onfessed, mournfully. "What on earth did you put it back for?" exlaimed their father.

"So we could have time to learn our lessons." Their mother looked grave and pitying. Their father jumped out of the carriage, and called the hired man to take the horse back to the barn.

"Well, my lads," he said, "come into the house, and I'll hear you recite the lessons. You have lost your chance of going out to Cheese bro's, and think you have pretty thoroughly learned another lesson besides your geography and arithmetic. Come in."

Ayer's For restoring to Gray Hair its natural Vitality and Color. A dressing which is at once agreeable. healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. It soon restores faded or gray hair to its original color, with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, fallen hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed; but such as remain can be saved by this application, and stimulated into activity, so that a new growth of hair is produced. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair I from turning grey or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. The restoration of vitality it gives to the scalp arrests and prevents the formation of dandruff, which is often so uncleanly and offensive. Free from those some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts . long on the hair, giving it a rich, glossy lustre, and a grateful perfume. Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., LOWELL, MASS.

W E have already drawn attention to the annual meeting of the Society of Arts, held on the 23rd current, under the presidentship of M. Th. de Saussure, and are now able to furnish some further details. Professor Soret, in delivering a most interesting report, passed in review the operations of the Industrial section, in reference to Commerce, laying great stress upon the competition that has taken place in the manufacture of chronometers. This competition was instituted with the object of testing the workmanship and precision of chronometers turned out by Genevese manufacturers, and none but those adopted for pocket use were admitted. They were deposited in charge of the authorities at the Observatory, and underwent the most searching ordeal possible to be applied to pocket instruments of this class. The jury specially retained to decide the difficult question as to whom to award the polyment of excellence unanimously decided. whom to award the palm of excellence unanimously decided in favor of Messrs. J. M. Badollet & Co. This firm dissertation upon subjects connected with this department.
